RIDDLE OF ANGELA DAVIS

The Collegian Meets Marcuse

By JACK V. FOX
United Press International

(Third of Five Articles)

When the Rev. William Melish drove Angela Davis from New York to Brandeis University on the outskirts of Boston in early September, 1961, the 17-year-old girl showed little enthusiasm about entering the freshman year of college.

She had been away from her parents and home in Birmingham, Ala., for two years, living with the Melishes in Brooklyn and attending the "progressive" Elisabeth Irwin High School in Greenwich Village. She had established considerable independence but she was still a shy and aloof young person.

French had been her most difficult subject at Elisabeth Irwin so, with the drive to overcome any obstacle that was to become typical, she chose French literature as her major and moved into the "French House" at Brandeis where only that language was spoken.

Angela was at Brandeis for four years on a $1,500 annual scholarship, except for a junior year abroad at the Sorbonne in Paris, until she was graduated in the spring of 1965.

Brandeis has about 3,000 students and 380 faculty members and was about the same size when Angela attended. Opened in 1948, it is the only Jewish-founded non-sectarian school in the country. It admits students of all religions and races but the majority of students are Jewish.

Brandeis has received considerable publicity in recent years as a "breeding ground" for revolutionaries and other leftist elements. It was the headquarters of a national student strike center in the spring of 1970.

Hebert Marcuse, so-called prophet of the New Left, was teaching at Brandeis the entire

A New Angela Bid On Dropping Case

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Angela Davis's attorneys yesterday asked a state appellate court to dismiss charges against her on grounds that "any first year law student knows the state has no case."

The six lawyers requested a writ of prohibition from the State District Court of Appeal to halt proceedings in Marin Superior Court against Miss Davis and her codefendant, Ruchell Magee.

The petition was an appeal from a decision by Judge Richard E. Arnason, who is presiding over the case in Marin and ruled there was enough evidence in a grand jury transcript to hold Miss Davis for trial.

Miss Davis's lawyers reviewed the circumstantial evidence against the former university instructor and said it showed only that she purchased four guns legally and had associated with a participant in the shoot-out last August.

There was no evidence that the weapons used in the escape and kidnapping attempt in which three persons died were furnished by Miss Davis with knowledge they would be used illegally, according to the lawyers.

Meanwhile, State Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger, who ruled last month that the state is not liable for the cost of the Davis-Magee trial, said in a letter that he is doing everything he can to shift the cost to the state.

In a letter to the Marin Board of Supervisors Younger said that his office is recommending to the governor that the cost be born by the state.

He also said he is supporting a bill to amend a penal code section introduced by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, which would make the state liable.

Nixon Veto Of $2 Billion Job Bill Upheld In Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate upheld today President Nixon's veto of a $2 billion emergency public works bill, backed by the Democrats as a program to help ease unemployment.

The administration's cause was helped by the fact Nixon signed Monday a measure to create an estimated 150,000 public service jobs at the state and local level.

He vetoed the other Democratic-sponsored bill on grounds it would be inflationary and would fail to put people to work soon enough because of long-range plans needed for the projects involved.

The Senate action marked the fifth time that the Democratic-controlled Congress had failed to override a Nixon veto. He has lost two veto fights since entering the White House.

With a two-thirds vote needed to override, administration forces were required to muster only 34 votes in support of the President. In sending the bill to Nixon originally, the Senate vote was 45 to 33.

The works bill authorized up to $2 billion in appropriations to areas of high unemployment. The grants would cover 80 per cent of the cost of building such public facilities as hospitals, bridges, sewers and waste treatment plants. Backers estimated 200,000 jobless could have been put to work under the bill.

The plan was a revival of an accelerated public works program first enacted in the Kennedy administration, but with antecedents dating back to the depression era Works Progress Administration (WPA).

Backers of the proposal had hoped to stave off a veto by linking it with a four-year extension of the Appalachia Regional development program and continued funding of the Economic Development Administration. The president favored both the Appalachian and the EDA features of the bill.

The total package carried a price tag of $5.4 billiion —$2 billion for the public works, $1.5 billion for Appalachia and $1.9 billion for EDA.

CHILE EARTHQUAKE RELIEF

FOOTHILL SEARCH FOR SLAYER OFF

Survivor Of Camp Ordeal Reports Attacker Entered His Tent 'Grumbling And Growling'

GRASS VALLEY, Calif. (UPI)—Sheriff's officers gave up their search in the wild Sierra foothills today for a "maniacal" killer who hacked two persons to death with a sickle at a remote campground.

A third victim, nearly decapitated by the "laughing, grumbling and growling" slayer, was near death in a Sacramento hospital and a young couple was treated for slash wounds.

"We don't feel he's hiding out there behind a pine tree," said Nevada County Sheriff Wayne Brown as he called off the ground search in the heavily-wooded area along the picturesque Bear River in Mother Lode country.

"We haven't got one iota of physical evidence," the sheriff added. He said his investigators would concentrate on the murder scene on the river bank 50 miles northeast of Sacramento.

The bespectacled, middleaged attacker crashed Monday night through the small campground occupied by 17 people— including five women and 10 children—striking out with his deadly sickle.

He killed John Simmons, 29, of the small Sierra village of Weimar, and Mrs. Donna Fitzhugh of Ontario, Calif., at the camp and wounded three others. Simmons also went by the name Jimen Satan, Sheriff Brown said.

Mrs. Martha Marie Parker, 24, of Walnut, Calif., the sister-in-law of Mrs. Fitzhugh, was most seriously hurt. The slayer cut and gouged her, then laid her neck over a tree and tried to cut her head off.

Kenneth Garbe, 20, of Applegate, Calif., who struggled with the killer after the husky man barged into his tent, was in fair condition with multiple wounds. His wife, Jean, 23, suffered minor cuts. She was treated and released.

Garbe said he and his wife were playing cards in their tent when the stranger — who weighed about 200 pounds, had thinning gray hair and wore thick glasses—ripped open the flap.

"He said, 'Hello there,'" said Garbe. "Then he came in swinging a sickle. He started taking a swing at my wife. I grabbed hold of him. She took off for a nearby tent ... The guy knocked me down in a corner of the tent. I stuck my hand up and then he got me. I ran out of the tent. I guess that was when he got me in the back."

As he fled, Garbe said, he saw the man approaching a second campsite. Simmons, who was camping alone, fired at the man three times with a .22 caliber pistol. But the assailant overpowered him, killed him with the sickle and took the gun.

Mrs. Fitzhugh, who was camping with Mrs. Parker and their six children while their husbands mined for gold 20 miles away, then ran out of her tent with a .22-caliber rifle and tried to shoot the slayer. But she couldn't get the gun's safety off and was slainm

Autopsies showed Simmons bled to death from puncture wounds and Mrs. Fitzhugh apparently died of head injuries.

"He was laughing, grumbling and growling like an animal," Garbe said of the killer.

Sheriff Brown said his best witness was 11-year-old Mark Fitzhugh, who saw the killer from about 30 feet away. "He's our only point of information at this time," Brown said. "He saw him at a distance."

An all-points bulletin said the killer, who had a "maniacal laugh," was a middle-aged white man, 5 feet 8 to 10 inches tall, "heavy or chunky" in build and wearing light-colored shirt, tan pants and tan jacket. The sheriff, who described the killings as a senseless, "maniacal attack," said the killer took the .22 pistol and a .41 magnum belonging to Simmons.

In San Francisco, police said the description of the slayer approximated that of the elusive Zodiac killer, who has claimed 17 murders and is believed by authorities to be responsible for at leat six in the past two years. However, the Placer County sheriff's office insisted emphatically that the sickle slayer had no connection with the Zodiac killings in the Bay area.

Apparent Murder In Fairfax: Few Clues

The body of a gray-haired middle-aged Fairfax woman who had apparently been shot to death was found outside her hillside home today.

The murder victim was identified as Barbara P. Shipe, about 50, of 435 Scenic Avenue.

Fairfax police said that Mrs. Shipe was found about 9:50 a.m. on a stairway landing outside her home. At least one bullet had entered her body, they said, but would not specify where.

She was apparently shot while climbing the stairs with a bag of groceries, police said. According to Officer Michael Moriarity, "she died right there." Her body which was clad in an orange dress was believed to have been there several hours and possibly since yesterday.

Police said they thought that Mrs. Shipe had been living alone in the well-kept two-story house.

Police would not discuss suspects.

They broadcast an all-points bulletin for Edwin Evan Shipe, 49. It was not disclosed what relation he was to Mrs. Shipe.

Apollo 'Glitch' Bug

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)— Apollo 15's astronauts simulated their July 26 launch to the moon today but the rehearsal was marred slightly by a momentary drop in spacecraft electrical power and the pilots opened their moonship hatch early as a precautionary measure.

Hub Voters Reject Tax Increase

San Anselmo School District voters —turning out in light numbers — yesterday — decisively turned down an 80-cent tax rate increase.

According to a school district spokesman, the issue was defeated by a vote of 1,876 against to 790 in favor. The spokesman termed the election "a disaster."

About 35 per cent of the district's 7,558 registered voters, turned out.

The district said the measure was rejected in all of its 10 precincts with the Wade Thomas School precinct the least disapproving. That precinct registered 102 votes in favor and 146 against.

The district had requested an 80-cent tax rate increase to its present general tax rate of $2.25 per $100 assessed valuation.

Phone Service Hit By National Strike

Latest In Rash Of Disputes

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A half million telephone workers launched a nationwide strike today but the use of automated equipment and supervisory personnel limited the immediate impact on the public to minor delays in service.

A spokesman for American Telephone and Telegraph Co. (AT&T) said after the walkout began at 6 a.m. EDT that "until agreement is reached, we will do everything possible to continue to serve out customers. We expect no serious disruptions of service."

A leader of the striking Communications Workers of America predicted the strike would last at least two weeks. Equipment breakdowns and lack of workers to install phones might snarl service to a greater extent in that case.

For the time being, the major hitch in service involved phone calls where operator assistance was needed, mainly for person-to-person and certain other long distance calls. About 95 per cent of normal phone calls involve self-dialing only.

The strike does not affect all of Marin County. Northern Novato, which is served by Western California Telephone Co., a part of the General Telephone System, is not affected by the strike, according to Gordon R. Lee, Novato branch manager.

A check by UPI bureaus throughout the country showed some difficulties in reaching an operator but no insurmountable problems.

Police were summoned to the Hollywood branch office of the telephone company in Los Angeles on complaints pickets threw lighted flares at the cars of company executives reporting for emergency work. No arrests were made.

Telephone operations in Bradford and Charleroi, Pa., were hampered when supervisory personnel said they were unable to get through picket lines to the local exchanges. A spokesman for the company there said a court injunction would be sought to limit picketing if the situation continued.

At Cape Kennedy, Fla., striking workers picketed two entrances to the space center.

Government officials said the dispute would have no effect on the countdown rehearsal now in progress for the July 26 Apollo 15 launching of the fifth U.S. moonshot, but for three hours, members of the Transport Workers Union who perform support operations at the base refused to cross the picket line.

An AT&T statement, issued in New York, deplored the strike as "clearly unnecessary."

"We are very disappointed in the response of the (union) leadership to our proposals aimed at averting a strike," the statement said. "We felt we were very close to reaching an agreement."

It was the first nationwide telephone strike since a 17-day walkout in 1968.

Thousands of workers left their jobs before the official strike deadline in areas where local contracts had already expired.

A union spokesman said no new negotiations were planned, but he said the situation could change "later today."

"We certainly would be receptive to proposals," he said.

The union has charged among other things that there is too much of a differential in the pay of men and women.

The negotiations broke down Tuesday. The Telephone company said it laid a new offer on the table at the last minute, but the union said it was not in writing.

The two sides have been reported close in terms of an overall financial offer, but the dispute centered on how the money was to be spent.

Telephone company employes, many wearing T-shirts which declared "Ma Bell is a Cheap Mother," staged a wildcat walkout in the San Francisco Bay Area last night.

In the Bay Area at least 6,500 operators and repairmen left

THE LONG AND THE SHORT OF IT — Trouser clad Nancy Mandley (left) takes in the fashion note struck by copicket Marilyn Hansen who donned hot pants to picket today outside the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. office at 914 Mission Avenue, San Rafael. The district manager of the company for Marin, Jack Eddy, said that about 550 employees in Marin joined in the nationwide phone strike today.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Member Of Getty Family Dies

ROME (UPI) — Talitha Pol Getty, the wife of American oil billionaire's son J. Paul Getty Jr., died in a Rome clinic Saturday, shortly after she collapsed in her home, police said today. She was 31.

Mrs. Getty

Police said the public prosecutor ordered Mrs. Getty's body taken to the morgue, and a magistrate questioned her 37-year-old husband.

Getty and his wife, a former actress, were leading members of Rome's jet set. At the time of her death, they had one son and were separated.

Getty Jr. and Miss Pol met at a London party in 1965. The next year, he divorced his first wife, Gail, daughter of a California judge. The couple had four children.

Talitha Pol Getty was born in Holland to Dutch artist Villen Pol, who lives in the south of France. One of her grandfathers was Augustus John, a renowned portraitist.

She was widely known in Rome's nightspots, where she often was photographed in revealing lace gowns when the "nude look" was fashionable.

'Joint' Deterrent

SEOUL (UPI)—Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said today only a realistic deterrent can assure peace, and that such a deterrent is possible only as a "joint venture" between the United States and its allies.

Laird ended his Asian tour and left for home with a promise that the United States would remain a Pacific power and keep its commitments to its Asian allies.

He also said the American military force in South Korea would remain at its present level of 43,000 for at least another year. The force was cut by one-third last year.

Manhunt For Rebels

RABAT, Morocco (UPI)—Army troops hunted today for more than 500 rebels who fled into the rugged Moroccan countryside after their attempt to overthrow King Hassan II failed. Reliable government sources said more rebel officers already captured soon would be executed.

On Tuesday, 10 top officers who helped lead the abortive coup Saturday went before a firing squad. As they were cut down, they shouted "Long Live King Hassan."

Moroccan television Tuesday night showed the officers — including Hassan's brother-in-law, Gen. Kiati Bougrine — being taken before the firing squad. The actual shooting was not shown, although Morocco Radio gave a live, detailed description as it happened earlier in the day.

Space Shuttle Pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A $500 million contract for delivery of 36 reusable rocket engines for a space shuttle service has been awarded by the space agency to a California company.

The contract, awarded to North American Rockwell Corp., Canog Park, Calif., was described Tuesday by Dr. James C. Fletcher, chief of the National Aeronauticsand Space Administration (NASA), as an "important first step" in the shuttle program.

The shuttle will be operated like an airliner in the atmosphere and like a rocket in space and will be used initially to launch heavy unmanned satellites into orbit.

Later it may be used to carry men to and from orbiting space stations or to moon bases and back.

Ellsberg Reveals Why He Acted

NEW YORK (UPI)—Daniel Ellsberg, one-time Pentagon hawk turned antiwar activist, decided to release the Defense Department study on the Vietnam War to the press shortly after the Army dropped charges against eight Green Berets in 1969.

"I was lying in bed reading the paper when I saw the headline: 'Green Beret case charges dropped,'" Ellsberg said Tuesday. "... And very soon after that I made my decision."

Ellsberg, 40, a former Pentagon and State Department adviser, said "a great deal had contributed" to his decision to make public the 47-volume study commissioned by former Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. But the final straw was the announcement that then-Secretary of the Army, Stanley Resor, was dropping the charges against the Green Berets, allegedly because a trial would reveal too much information concerning the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

"I knew this was untrue," Ellsberg said in a television interview. "The White House had made the decision."

Ellsburg made his remarks on ABC's "Dick Cavett Show."

He said Resor had dropped the charges on behalf of the Johnson administration, over the protests of the commander of troops in Vietnam, Gen. Creighton Abrams.

The eight Green Berets never were court-martialed for allegedly executing a suspected Vietnamese double-agent.

Civilians Caught In Jordanian Fire Line

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Hundreds of civilians fled villages and refugee camps in the line of fire today as the Jordanian army bombarded Palestinian guerrilla bases for the second day in a row.

An army doctor said 25 civilians had been wounded. He declined to give the number of military casualties, if any.

About 3,000 guerrillas who form the remnants of the armed Palestinian reistance movement in Jordan are grouped in hill bases around Jerash, site of Roman ruins 25 miles north of Amman.

In Cairo, the Egyptian government expressed disappointment over Jordan's fresh offensive against the guerrillas and asked King Hussein to delay a visit to Cairo scheduled to start July 23, the 19th anniversary of the Egyptian revolution.

In Beirut, a guerrilla spokesman accused King Hussein's government of trying to carry out "plans aimed at liqudating the Palestinian revolution."

The spokesman in Beirut said Jordanian army units have blocked roads leading to the guerrilla bases in the vicinity of Jerash 25 miles north of Amman. Government forces also shelled the area Tuesday.

In Tel Aviv, Prime Minister Golda Meir said a top American official will visit Israel within the next two weeks but she is not aware whether he will bring new proposals from Washington on how to find peace in the Middle East.

Mrs. Meir, in a statement to her ruling Labor party Tuesday, said Assistant Secretary of State Joseph J. Sisco was making the visit but denied Israel had attempted to avert Sisco's trip for fear of renewed American pressure for further Israeli concessions on Middle East issues. The meeting was private but the details were leaked to the press.

In Jordan, Palestinian sources claimed that King Hussein has resumed his war of attrition against the 3,000 Arab guerrillas who form the remnants of the Palestinian resistance movement in his nation.

Strong Quake Hits Solomon Islands

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A strong earthquake, rated at 8.1 on the richter scale, occurred at 9:11 a.m. EDT today in the vicinity of the World War II battleground of Bougainville in the Solomon Islands, the national earthquake information center said.

A spokesman for the center said the quake was strong enough to cause large waves, but he said there had been no reports of unusual wave activity.

Reagan Says He Supports President

JACKSON HOLE, Wyo. (UPI)—California Gov. Ronald Reagan insisted today his "very great concern" for President Nixon's welfare reform plan should not be construed as lack of political support for the President.

"The President isn't a bit concerned about it. He seems to think we're getting along just fine," said Reagan, who described himself and Nixon as "good friends."

The issue was raised at the Western Governors Conference when Oregon Gov. Tom McCall charged that Reagan was endangering Nixon's 1972 reelection bid by offering only "lukewarm" political support and sniping at the President's welfare plan.

Reagan today was leading a welfare discussion to describe his alternative to Nixon's proposal. Reagan's plan—which would tighten welfare eligibility requirements and clamp a specific lid on relief spending—has been rejected by the California State Senate.

McCall, like Reagan, a Republican, was the leading spokesman among Western governors for Nixon's family assistance plan, which would provide a welfare family of four minimum relief payments of $2,400 annually.

McCall said there was "fairly good support" among Western governors for Nixon's proposal, which has passed the House and is pending in the Senate.

Reagan told an airport news conference after arriving at this Rocky Mountain resort Tuesday night night that "I have very great concern about adding millions of people to the rolls in the family assistance plan."

Under Nixon's program, welfare caseloads would be roughly doubled, primarily because the working poor would receive partial payment as an incentive for recipients to find employment and ultimately get off the dole.

Reagan described welfare as "the problem that has to be solved in this country or you're going to find virtual insolvency and bankruptcy in many state and local governments."

KY OFFICIALLY ENDS THIEU TIE

S. Vietnam Vice President To Seek Leadership; U.S. Opens A New Firebase

SAIGON (UPI)—Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky broke his political alliance with President Nguyen Van Thieu today, accusing Thieu of "dictatorial practices" and trying to conduct a fraudulent election next fall.

Ky hopes to oppose Thieu in the Oct. 3 presidential election along with Gen. Duong Van (Big) Minh, although Ky reportedly is having trouble getting needed support.

The South Vietnamese Supreme Court Tuesday night ruled constitutional an election law to limit the number of candidates who can run for the presidency. The law was criticized as being weighted in Thieu's favor.

"My conscience demands that I put an end to this association which existsonly in name and that I no longer blindly follow you on the path of errors which have placed our fatherland in peril," said Ky in a letter to Thieu.

On the war front the U. S. Army, which turned over its last outpost along the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) to the South Vietnamese last week, opened a new artillery base there Tuesday. GIs, anticipating a renewal of the North Vietnamese summer offensive, today dubbed it "The Hellhole."

The U.S. 24th Corps Command, whose headquarters are in the northern coastal city of Da Nang, moved four eight-inch howitzers and two 175-millimeter self-propelled field guns into the new base.

It lies on a flat and grassy plain just west of Cam Lo and six miles south of the buffer strip between North and South Vietnam.

It is three miles due south of Charlie Two, the last base the Americans had held. About 60 Americans manned the guns today.

Military sources said the big American guns would help defend Vietnamese positions at Charlie Two and Firebase Fuller, about six miles west.

Fuller, briefly overrun in a savage Communist assault June 23, is being rebuilt with prefabricated concrete bunkers airlifted in from the coast.

The sources said the new base, which had no official name as of tonight, would form an integral link in the DMZ defense line, expected to come under heavy attack during a renewed Communist offensive aimed at disrupting the South Vietnamese presidential election Oct. 3.

The DMZ line is a chain of interlocking fire bases starting near the coast of the Gulf of Tonkin and running about 25 miles inland before turning south.

It is aimed at stopping Communist infiltration into the lowlands and along the coast.

In Saigon, military spokesmen today reported new fighting between South Vietnamese forces and Communist units in the northern provinces of South Vietnam, the Mekong Delta and Cambodia. American B52 bombers carried out raids along the Laotian border.

A single Communist shelling attack Monday was the only action involving American troops in the past 10 days.

There was still no explanation for the long lull in combat involving the 236,000 Americans still in Vietnam. U.S. officers in the north again speculated there might be some connection between the lack of fighting and the new Communist peace proposals in Paris.

Only 12 per cent of the students in Peru who start school graduate from high school, according to a government study.

House Kills Contempt Bid On CBS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rep. Harley O. Staggers blamed the "awesome power" of the television networks for the House decision Tuesday not to press contempt of Congress charges against CBS President Frank Stanton and his network.

The West Virginia Democrat said Tuesday's 226 to 181 vote to send the contempt citation back to his Commerce Committee had killed the attempt to cite CBS for defying a subpoena. Staggers had wanted to see film edited out of the CBS documentary "The Selling of the Pentagon."

"I feel this is a sad day for the American people," a somber Staggers said after the vote. "The vote today showed the awesome power of the television networks and the news media ... brought to bear on the House of Representatives."

After the vote Stanton said "we are very pleased by the decisive house vote against the Commerce Committee's resolution citing CBS for contempt. As responsible journalists, we shall continue to do our best to report on public events in a fair and responsible manner."

Halloween Sadists May Face Prison

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Halloween sadists who hand out candy and apples filled with crushed glass or pins would face heavy prison sentences under a bill approved by the Michigan House.

The measure would make it a felony punishable by a fine of up to $10,000 or up to 10 years in prison, or both, to purposely dispense food containing dangerous material.

Telephone Walkout Idles Half A Million

their jobs Tuesday. The walkout hampered operator-assisted long distance and directory information services, although PT&T officials said they expected service would be as usual today.

Some 30,000 communications workers in Southern California walked off their jobs early today and Pacific Telephone management personnel attempted to fill in for the strikers.

Tom McNaughton of Pacific Telephone, told UPI that calls going through the operators would take longer than usual but if "people use the direct dial system there would be little slowdown."

However, the strike and others in progress or threatened prompted Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson to issue a statement urging Congress to pass President Nixon's bill for settling emergency labor disputes.

"If Congress does not do something in the way of basic legislation to deal with national emergency labor disputes," he said, "then it must do something in the way of preparing to act with ever increasing frequency to resolve individual crises one at a time."

Besides the communications headache, there are current strikes by 39,000 copper workers, 20,000 telegraph workers, 15,000 longshoremen and 5,000 United Auto Workers.

To make matters worse, the United Transportation Union was continuing its efforts to strike against three railroads Friday.

Other labor problems include an unsettled contract which expires at the end of the month for 350,000 steel workers and the fact that unions representing 650,000 mailmen are seeking a 30 per cent wage increase and job security in the new postal service.

The only good news to hit the labor scene was an agreement Tuesday between the 23,000 member Screen Actors Guild with movie and television producers in Hollywood.

The actors guild approved a new three-year contract calling for 15 per cent wage hikes in the minimum pay of actors and actresses. The previous minimum was $120 a day or $420 a week.

The U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington refused to block a strike Friday against the Chicago & North Western Railway, one of the three lines threatened. However, only hours after the three-judge panel denied a C&NW petition to force the union to bargain for a separate contract with the line, a federal judge in Chicago issued an injunction forbidding the strike until after a July 23 hearing.

The UTU dispute with the rails centers on work rule changes, which the rails have threatened to put into effect immediately if the strike occurs. The UTU is objecting to new work rules which would institute longer crew runs, use of radios by crews without additional pay and permit yard crews to do work under certain circumstances.

A Supreme Court ruling last month said the union could strike individual railroads as long as such action was part of an effort to obtain a nationwide agreement.

Negotiations in the two-week old copper strike were recessed in Washington Tuesday "subject to call" between Phelps Dodge Copper Co. and the United Steel Workers.

Kennecott Copper, which had not met with the USW for four days, resumed talks Tuesday in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Negotiations were continuing in Washington today between Western Union and representatives of the 17,000-member United Telegraph Workers union with federal mediators standing by.

The 15,000 member International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union strike moved into its 4th day with no talks scheduled. The union is striking 24 West Coast ports in its demands for a 40-hour work week and a $1.65 wage increase over two years.

The UAW strike against J.I. Case Co. at Racine, Wis., and plants at Terre Haute, Ind., Burlington and Bettendorf, Iowa, and Rock Island, Ill., moved into its 5th day.

Negotiations in the wage dispute broke down Friday and none have been scheduled.

Case President J.L. Ketelsen said the firm has offered a 41 per cent wage increase during a three year contract but the UAW wants a higher cost of living increase effective immediately.

In a letter addressed to all employes Tuesday, Ketelsen indicated the company's willingness to go back to the bargaining table when the union makes a "significant" move.

Negotiations are continuing in Washington between the steel workers and the steel industry, but union representatives have said the outlook is bleak.

$93,000 Bill Draws Sonoma Fire

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors has called for an explanation of the $93,000 billing received from the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District as cost of its membership in the district in the fiscal year that began July 1.

Board chairman Ignazio A. Vella said the board felt there may have been a "slight mistake" in the billing, since only half the county has joined the district but the cost is equal to that proposed for the entire county when membership was discussed last year.

Vella said the board was also concerned that the tax rate limit of 2 cents per $100 assessed valuation would not raise the required $93,000 since tax producing industries in the northern portion of the county would not be contributing. He said that even though populous Santa Rosa and Petaluma are district members, the assessed valuation would not be enough to pay the district cost.

Vella said the board would ask that the district exclude Southern Sonoma from the backyard burning ban applied in other parts of the Bay Area.

Young Mother, Son Routed By House Fire

A young mother and her 30-month-old son were routed from their Bolinas home last night when a fire gutted one of the bedrooms.

Joann Leonard and her son, Jason, spent the night with friends following the fire at 11:29 p.m. at 505 Birch Road. The house is owned by Frank Meyer of Bolinas.

Firemen believe the fire, which caused about $5,500 damage, was started by a cigarette.

Seventeen volunteer firemen from Bolinas fought the blaze which was confined to the bedroom and hallway. Smoke damage occurred throughout the house, firemen said.

Damage was estimated at $4,000 to the building and $1,500 to the contents.

5 Days Given In Driving Case

Herbert Parker Sioussat, 56, of San Rafael, was sentenced to five days in Marin County Jail yesterday after he pleaded no contest to a reduced misdemeanor charge of drunken driving.

Judge David R. Baty, sitting in Marin Municipal Court, also placed Sioussat on probation for one year.

Sioussat was originally charged with felony drunken driving after his auto collided May 30 with another car in Greenbrae and injured the other driver.

Youth, 16, Hurt In One-Car Crash

A 16-year-old San Rafael youth suffered scalp cuts yesterday at 11:35 p.m. in a one-car crash on Lucas Valley Road west of Mount McKinley Road, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Scott H. Munzig, of 119 Nova Albion Way, was a passenger in a car driven by Daniel Guisti, 18, of 715 Knocknaboul Way, Terra Linda, which ran off the road on a curve and struck an embankment, officers said.

Munzig was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael.

Benefit To Bring 2 Beatles Together

NEW YORK (UPI) —Two of the Beatles, separated by the breakup of the famed rock group, will get together at Madison Square Garden to help a special United Nations fund drive for the victims of the Pakistani civil war.

George Harrison is expected here next week from the West Coast and Ringo Starr will come later from Spain to rehearse for their first appearance together since 1966.

Rumors Of Mill Valley Settlement

The Strikebound City of Mill Valley posted security guards at its corporation today as both sides prepared to negotiate amid rumors that a settlement is imminent and that raw sewage was being dumped into the bay.

Sources said today's scheduled negotiating session between city representatives and the employees may mark a breakthrough in the negotiations and that the 14-day-old strike may end soon.

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham confirmed today that two security guards from the Burns Protection Agency were hired Thursday to guard the city corporation yard on Sycamore Avenue after reports of vandalism there.

Cunningham said the guards, who cost the city $140 per day, were hired "to protect city-owned property worth millions of dollars." They are on duty nightly from 5 p.m. to 6 a.m.

Today's meeting was set Monday morning after negotiators broke up following an all-night bargaining session lasting until 5:30 a.m.

Thirty-nine employees, excluding police and firemen, have been on strike since July 1 for what they say is a failure by the city to negotiate in good faith.

The employees belong to the Mill Valley Employees Association, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, an AFL-CIO affiliate.

Both Cunningham and Ross Benson, director of public works, denied rumors that raw or incompletely treated sewage is being dumped into Richardson Bay from the city treatment plant.

An official of the Regional Water Quality Control Board, area engineer Dennis Mishak, also said he is unaware of any dumping of untreated sewage into the bay.

Employees yesterday disputed Cunningham's contention that they submitted a list of 304 demands to the city's paid negotiator, the San Francisco firm of Industrial Employers and Distributors Association.

That figure, they said, came from the number of paragraphs in a model contract they gave the negotiator for city consideration.

The requests, not demands, each took several paragraphs to explain but each paragraph was not a separate item, they said.

Many of the requests were merely an attempt by employees to put into writing unwritten policies that had existed for years regarding sick leave, vacation pay and other items of employment, they said.

19-Year-Old Is Booked On Drug Charge

A 19-year-old San Anselmo youth was booked into Marin County Jail yesterday by federal narcotics agents on suspicion of selling dangerous drugs.

Kenneth George Bullock of 300 Laurel Avenue was held at the jail today pending an appearance before the U.S. magistrate in San Francisco.

He was arrested at his residence about noon yesterday by a federal agent who said he had made a deal with Bullock to purchase one ounce of Psilocibin, a hallucinatory drug.

A 16-year-old San Anselmo youth who allegedly brought the drug to Bullock's residence was turned over to Marin Juvenile authorities.

Man Bound Over In Theft Case

John Michael Van Liew, 20, of Mill Valley, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on a charge of burglary.

He is to be arraigned in superior court Aug. 16.

Van Liew was arrested June 30 when a Mill Valley policeman allegedly saw him inside Quinn's Tavern, 2 Corte Madera Avenue, after the bar had closed.

Ferryboat Plans To Be Reviewed

Specifications for the Golden Gate Bridge District's fleet of four $2.1 million ferryboats will be reviewed by the building and operating committee at 2 p.m. tomorrow in toll plaza offices.

Plans for the 165-foot vessels were drawn by the district's consulting naval architect, Philip F. Spaulding of Seattle. Three are to serve a Larkspur terminal and the fourth will be added to the existing Sausalito service.

Britain Is Beating Back Pollution

By DENNIS EISENBERG
Toronto Telegram News Service

LONDON — On two successive balmy spring days recently it was found that the air above the industrial city of Sheffield was crystal-clear.

Well, if not quite crystal-clear, then at least the pollution researchers of this steel-factory city calculated that the air being breathed by its citizens was cleaner than at any known time since the Industrial Revolution of the last century.

Anybody who has lived in the industrial north of Britain, and Sheffield is one of its smoky bastions, will remember only too clearly the filthy blanket of smoke, grime and fumes which spread across the land for mile after mile.

The killing, obnoxious pall was always so persistent that children brought up in the industrial heartland of the United Kingdom thought it part of nature like rain or snow or night and day.

Now, thanks to smoke-abatement regulations which have slowly been pressed forward district by district, suburb by suburb, the sun is beginning to shine again in the industrial cities of Britain.

Combined with other anti-pollution measures, this has helped make the U.K. a healthier place to live in.

The effect is being felt in London, too, although the capital has never really been considered a major heavy manufacturing center. The once-dreaded smog seems to have gone forever. Forgotten species of fish are beginning to make their appearance in the Thames again. And in the city's parks and gardens, birds that long ago abandoned London to seek purer air are once more putting in a welcome appearance.

When Richard Crossman recently attacked the Queen on her request for more money, he must have known that the reaction from the country's Royalists would be fierce and loud. Letters from "Her Majesty's most devoted servant," heaping criticism on the head of Crossman, a senior minister in the last Labor government, appeared in The Times, and other newspapers.

Yet criticism of Britain's Royalty is nothing new. Fourteen years ago, John Grigg, then Lord Altringham, attacked the "needless errors" of the Monarchy, as well as the Queen's "tweedy" image and her upper-class schoolgirl voice.

For his outspoken views, Lord Altringham had his face slapped in public and for months afterwards there was a steady stream of abuse by telephone and mail.

A hort time afterwards, English author Malcolm Muggeridge wrote an article in the Saturday Evening Post headed Does England Really Need a Queen?

Even greater hysterics greeted this criticism. A Tory MP called the writer "a hysterical little Communist" and the BBC hurriedly dropped Muggeridge from TV and radio programs as indignant subjects of the Queen complained they "did not want to see his face ever again."

Muggeridge's house was smeared with filth and slogans saying "Glod bless the Queen" were painted across his walls.

Yet criticism of Royalty is not merely a symptom of today's permissive society. In the last century, George IV was savagely lampooned in newspapers and in privately-printed pamphlets. Even Queen Victoria was stridently attacked in print towards the end of her reign.

English-make goods may not hold the "specialness" they once enjoyed round the world as German and Japanese manufacturers grab a growing share of international markets.

With firms like Rolls-Royce going to the wall, industry in this country is having a tough time.

There is one product, however, which is enjoying a boom. It has been lying around for centuries, but nobody has ever thought of exploiting it until Londoner Anthony Abrahams had a bright idea. He is exporting like mad and his overseas customers cannot get enough of his product as he expands his business.

Simply enough, Abrahams is exporting the English language. He is "selling" British teachers to countries eager to learn this now universally sought-after tongue.

Already this year he had "sold" over 200 teachers to Germany. And several other countries are also employing the instructors on the salesman's payroll.

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI) —A fire burning more than 2,100 acres of Lodgepole pine and aspen continued out of control Wednesday in Colorado's worst forest fire of the year.

The fire near the Wyoming-Colorado border was fought by 300 men, slurry bombers, and heavy equipment.

Fresh forces of about 400 men were expected Wednesday morning in the struggle against the conflagration in the Bull Mountain area. Twelve families living in the area were evacuated Monday night because their cabins were in the path of the flames.

Americans Leave; Base Stripped

CAMP RADCLIFF, Vietnam (UPI)—The heart-shaped perimeter of Camp Radcliff, once one of the biggest U.S. bases in Vietnam, winds for 18 miles around blue-green Hon Cong Mountain.

The camp, a one-time $29 million installation alive with troops, helicopters buzzing through the air and tanks rumbling along the dirt and asphalt roads, now lies almost deserted and picked clean of virtually everything of value.

As part of the winding down of America's role in the war, the Americans pulled out of Camp Radcliff in two steps, Jan. 22 and March 12 this year.

Military sources say U.S. commanders had hoped the South Vietnamese would keep the base operating after the American pullout. The South Vietnamese, however, ordered the base dismantled.

Convoys from South Vietnamese government posts in the area rolled into Camp Radcliff throughout January, February, March and April to load up with equipment. The convoys then set out on Route 19 purportedly to bring the material back to their home bases for military construction.

In fact, according to allied officers, hardly any of the supplies reached the bases. Instead the majority of the goods was sold along the way to black marketers.

The stripping of Camp Radcliff, according to these officers, actually was a looting.

The man responsible, according to a letter written to President Nguyen Van Thieu and signed by 27 South Vietnamese officers, was Maj. Gen. Ngo Dzu, commander of the Second Military Region, which includes Camp Radcliff. Dzu is the same general accused by Rep. Robert H. Steel, R-Conn., of being "one of the chief traffickers in heroin in Southeast Asia."

Whatever the truth of the charge that Camp Radcliff was looted, rather than simply militarily evacuated, there is no question but what it has been stripped. It is also impossible to drive along Route 19 between Qui Nhon and Pleiku nowadays without seeing stacks of tin roofs, wood panels, wire screening and pipes from Camp Radcliff on sale at roadside shops. Storeowners are not able, or willing, to say where they got the goods.

Camp Radcliff is not the first base to have been stripped and, say U.S. officers, it won't be the last.

Dong Tam, the first big U.S. base to be handed over to the South Vietnamese, met the same fate in early 1970. Government troops and civilians also took apart Camp Enari near Pleiku in the Central Highlands in the summer of last year.

Most of the supplies from Dong Tam and Enari wound up on the black market. In addition, dozens of smaller artillery bases have been stripped after being turned over to the South Vietnamese.

"No one questions that there was large-scale graft, corruption and stealing at Radcliff and the other bases," a high-ranking U.S. official told UPI. "But this type of thing is going to occur whenever you give a large U.S. base to the South Vietnamese."

He said the South Vietnamese don't have enough men to man the big installations abandoned by the Americans and prefer to tear them down. In the process, much of the base equipment winds up on the black market.

"There's going to be stealing," he said. "There's nothing we can do about it. My only hope is that at least some of the stuff gets stolen by poor civilians and enlisted men, the ones who need the money the most."

The thievery in Vietnam is massive. In addition to dismantling abandoned U.S. bases, the South Vietnamese black marketers also manage to steal just about every kind of military item imaginable from American bases still operating.

On any given day you can find enough U.S. military hardware on the black market of any major city to outfit an American battalion. There's everything from Khaki drawers to field radios, combat boots, jeeps, tents, wire and fatigues.

It's been said you can even buy an Army UH-1 Huey helicopter on the black market if you look hard enough.

Radcliff, former headquarters of the U.S. Fourth Dicision, was the home base for about 20,000 troops before it was handed over to the South Vietnamese.

Some 500 Americans — a squadron of air cavalry, an artillery battery and support forces—still occupy a small strip, named Camp Buffalo, on the southeastern edge of the base. Security for the bulk of the Radcliff area, however, now rests with only about 75 South Vietnamese militiamen, compared to the two battalions of Americans that used to man the base's perimeter.

U.S. intelligence officers said the shortage of guards has permitted the Communists to set up an observation post on top of Hon Cong Mountain right in the middle of the base. The officers, however, said Communist attacks against Route 19 have, surprisingly, dropped since the withdrawal of American troops.

"It's a simple fact around here that when you turn over a place, there is going to be a lot of stealing," one U.S. adviser said. "It's just a game for them. They don't consider it stealing when you take something belonging to Uncle Sam. It's just taking from a rich uncle."

Almost all that's left of Camp Radcliff today are the heavy concrete slabs that served as the foundations of the buildings torn down. "If they ever think of a way to carry those off they'll be gone too," a U.S. Army officer said.

U.S. military advisers said there is little the United States can do to stop the looting of abandoned American bases.

"We are in a rush to get out," one officer told UPI. "We just don't have enough time to take everything with us. Even if we did it would be a waste of time and money. It'd cost us more to take these buildings apart and ship them back to the states than they're worth to us."

General Dzu has denied any connection with the alleged looting of Camp Radcliff and claims the charges are the results from a clash between him and South Vietnamese Army inspector General Lt. Gen. Lu Lan, Dzu's predecessor as Second Corps commander.

Marin Gives Workers 7.5% Raise

A three-year contract for the Marin County Employees Association, calling for a 7.5 per cent raise this year plus 5 per cent for each of the subsequent two years, paved the way for similar agreement yesterday with all county employees.

Marin County Board of Supervisors unanimously approved the three-year contract with the Marin County Employees Association, representing about 800 of the county's 1,200 employees. The association approved the 7.5-5-5 formula last Friday night.

Supervisors yesterday also approved three-year contracts with all other bargaining units except the deputy sheriffs, who settled for a 6¼ per cent raise this year, with further negotiations next year.

The other agreements are:

Social Workers Union Local 535—4.5 per cent raise this year, 5.5 per cent in July 1972, and 5 per cent in July 1973.

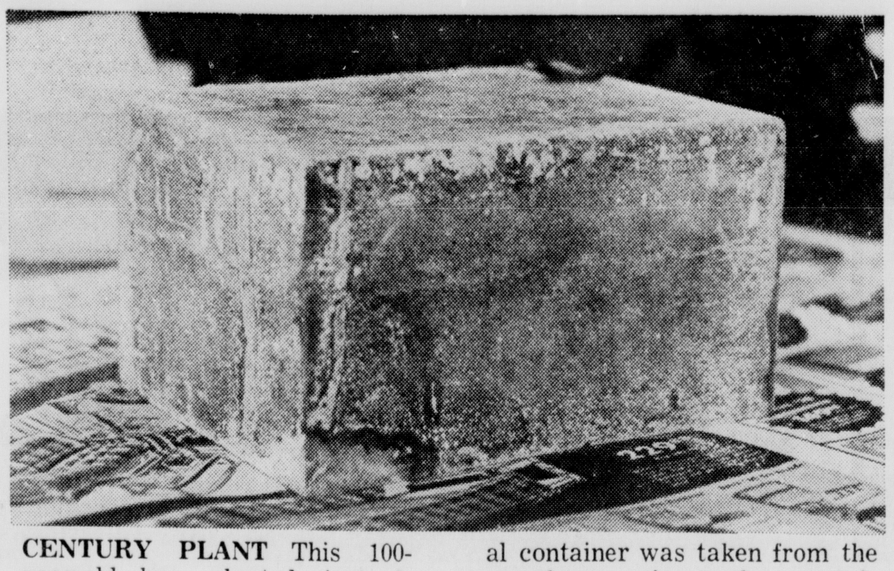
Probation Workers Union Local 535—7.5 per cent, 6 per cent, and 6.5 per cent.

California Nurses Association—7.5 per cent, 5 per cent, and 5 per cent.

The new agreements also gave additional half-day holidays for Dec. 24 and Dec. 31, higher insurance benefits, in some cases, better overtime pay and other fringe benefits.

The $45 million spending budget, hammered out by the supervisors in June, includes the pay raises because the level of increase was just about what was anticipated, County Personnel Director Maren Rinne explained.

She said she does not have a breakdown of exactly what the total increase will be in pay and benefits over last year.



CENTURY PLANT This 100-year-old box, planted Aug. 3, 1982, in the cornerstone of the old Marin County courthouse in downtown San Rafael, is believed to contain newspapers, documents, gold and silver coins and a piece of adobe dating to 1835. So said Supervisor John F. McInnis yesterday when the unprepossessing shoebox-sized metal container was taken from the courthouse ruins to the county's Civic Center. He cited an Independent-Journal article of Nov. 17, 1966 which reproduced a newspaper account of the cornerstone laying. The container will be opened at next Tuesday's meeting of the supervisors, they decided yesterday.

Supervisors Endorse New Bay Agency, Differ on Membership

Marin County supervisors yesterday endorsed the idea of a new regional governmental agency for the Bay Area, with half its members to be appointed by city and county governments, half elected by the voters.

On a motion by Supervisor John F. McInnis, supervisors unanimously endorsed Assembly Bill 1057 (by John Knox, D-Contra Costa), which would create the Bay Conservation and Development Agency of the Bay Area.

The bill calls for a 40-man board of directors, all to be elected directly by Bay Area voters. McInnis wanted that changed so that a majority would be elected officials of cities and counties, to be appointed to the agency board.

At the urging of Supervisors Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., McInnis agreed to go for one half elected city and county officials to be appointed to the board, and the other half to be elected directly.

The Bay Conservation and Development Agency would have power to approve local applications for state grants, and would have jurisdiction over regional services such as transportation, parks and open spaces.

Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

BRIDGE DISTRICT — Voted opposition to Assembly Bill 3094, which would prohibit the Golden Gate Bridge District from engaging in charter, sightseeing or excursion activities with its buses or ferries.

GEOLOGIC SURVEY — Postponed for six weeks any action on a recommendation by Public Works Director Donald R. Frost that the county conduct an $80,000 survey to determine areas in Marin which have geologic hazards.

GIACOMINI — Continued until January 1972 an application by Waldo Giacomini for diking of 132 acres of tidelands at the southern end of Tomales Bay. The state Wildlife Conservation Board is interested in buying the property as a wildlife preserve.

COASTLINE PLANNING — Approved a $6,200 outlay as Marin County's share in a program sponsored by the Association of Bay Area Governments to protect the ocean coastline, with the understanding that county funding will stop if the state decides to fund the program.

FOOD INSPECTION — Voted a $610 outlay to participate in a five-county pilot food inspection project, sponsored by the state Health Department, to simplify the process of food inspection.

ABATEMENT — Ordered abatement of a fire damaged building owned by James F. Workman at 7325 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Lagunitas.

TIDAL WATERWAYS — Extended the Marin Tidal Waterways ordinance to cover Richardson Bay tidelands near Dolan's Corner. At present, the ordinance does not apply to tidelands inland of the railroad tracks.

SWIG LAND DIVISION — Referred back to the Marin County Planning Commission a request by Melvin Swig to create four building sites on his 21-acre property on the south side of Lucas Valley Road west of Mt. Shasta Drive.

AQUADUCT — Withdrew previously expressed opposition to legislation enabling the Marin Municipal water District board to fund construction of the Sonoma-Marin Aquaduct without going to the voters for approval. The withdrawal of opposition came on assurances from Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, there would be provision for a public vote on the measure.

DEMOLITION — Authorized a letter to be forwarded to the county's insurance carrier for the demolition of the fire-damaged San Rafael courthouse. Demolition will take about two weeks after receipt of the letter.

LITIGATION — Authorized the county counsel to pursue litigation with other counties to determine if Governor Ronald Reagan's veto of state budget language is legal. Of concern, is the veto of language dealing with welfare — a veto the county administrator claims could cost local taxpayers $1 million. The veto removes open ended welfare payments to counties.

Test On School Aid Seen

MARLBORO, Mass. (UPI)—The state attorney general's office will issue an opinion soon on the constitutionality of this city's "shared time" program between public and parochial schools.

Designed to meet the constitutional prohibition against state aid to parochial schools, the program has been in effect for grades 1 through 4 at the Immaculate Conception School during the past school year. The plan is unique in Massachusetts though its basic concepts have been adopted by cities in several other states.

Under the plan, the city of Marlboro leases the entire first floor of the school from the Roman Catholic parish for $1 a year and pays one-third of the total building expenditures for heat, electricity and general upkeep. The second floor remains under the control of the parish.

The name of the school has been removed from the exterior of the building and all religious items have been taken away from the "public" sector.

The 270 children attend the "shared time school" in platoon fashion. Approximately half the students are enrolled in the public sector and the other half in the private sector during the morning hours.

In the afternoon, the private school students go downstairs to the public school while the public school students have the choice of moving upstairs to the private school or switching to a nearby public school for the remainder of the day. School curricula are synchronized so a child receives equal educational opportunity regardless of the option he chooses.

Marlboro School Supt. Raymond C. Richer said the program costs the city about $32,000 a year, mostly for the salaries of the four teachers in the public sector.

"We already have a serious enrollment problem," said Richer, echoing the plight of school administrators across the country. "The city would be in a crisis situation if the Immaculate Conception School closed. It would cost a lot more than $32,000 to absorb the entire school population."

St. Mary's School in Marlboro was forced to close last year because of financial considerations and a similar fate would probably befall the Immaculate Conception School if the shared time concept is ruled unconstitutional.

Msgr. William Sullivan, pastor of the church, said "we would have to take more money from the parish treasury" to keep the school open. He did not say how long this could be done.

The State Department of Education has asked the attorney general's office for an opinion on the constitutionality of the shared time program. Officials in that office said a ruling would be issued within a few weeks.

The plan is being examined for possible conflict with both the Massachusetts and U.S. Constitutions, especially in light of the U.S. Supreme Court's recent ruling against state support for salaries of parochial school teachers.

Convicted Of Antiwar Action

LAKENHEATH, England (UPI)—A U.S. Air Force court-martial convicted Capt. Thomas Culver Tuesday of taking part in an anti-Vietnam War demonstration in London May 31 and inciting other airmen to demonstrate.

Culver faced a maximum penalty of fur years at hard labor—two on each count—and dishonorable discharge. Court officials said they expected the sentencing Wednesday.

The 32-year-old Vietnam vekteran, who comes from Westfield, N.J. and practiced law in Santa Barbara, Calif., heard the verdict impassively.

Then he saluted the eightoffi-cer panel that convicted him did a smart about face and returned to his seat to listen while defense witnesses testified to his character before sentence was passed.

Iraq: Rule By Guns Recalled

BEIRUT (UPI)—The prime minister was careless. He neglected the iron rule that a military force not be permitted in the Iraqi capital of Baghdad unless there was a counterforce to pit against it.

Brig. Abdel Karim Kassem was shrewd enough to realize then when he camped in Baghdad July 13, 1958, that there were no other substantial government forces in the capital that night. The result was a coup that sent the Iraqi monarchy to a bloody end.

The coup was being celebrated in Baghdad this week with parades and political rhetoric.

On that hot summer night 13 years ago, Kassem was in Baghdad on his way to Jordan to reinforce King Hussian against a civil war of the type which had recently broken out in Lebanon.

Seeing his once-in-a-lifetime chance, Kassem reconnoitered key points in the city and held discussions with politicians opposed to the rule of 23-year-old King Faisal and his wily old premier, Nuri es-Said.

Kassem seized the radio station, and announced the revolution was over and the king and Nuri were dead. Then he ordered his troops to the palace to turn his words into deeds.

The royal family was blown to pieces by Kassem's gunners. Nuri was shot trying to escape. His body was dragged through the streets, then propped up before cameras in a Baghdad studio for Iraq's television viewers.

Kassem's reward was the premiership. He enjoyed it for less than five years. On Feb. 8, 1963, he was the victim of a counter-coup. He was shot and killed.

This week's celebrations underline the Iraqi propensity for changing governments by gun rather than ballot.

Three days after the ceremonies marking the fall of the monarchy, Iraqis will turn out for the third anniversary of the coup which installed the present Baathist regime.

On July 17, 1968, the Baath party came back to power in a coup carried out by young army officers. The officers were sacked and exiled by the old-guard Baathist leaders as soon as they were firmly in the saddle.

The coup itself was bloodless but almost immediately after the Baathists took office, reports filtered out of Baghdad of purges among their political opponents, unexplained disappearances, bodies found mutilated in ditches.

In January 1969 a special revolutionary court sentenced 14 men to death, nine of them Jews, for spying for Israel. Their corpses were hung from makeshift gallows in public squares in Baghdad and Basra, evoking world-wide revulsion.

But the spy hysteria continued and more than 50 persons were hanged or shot by the end of the year. Iraqi exiles insisted the spy trials were a cover for action against the regime's opponents.

The year 1970 started with trials of soldiers and policemen accused of a coup attempt. Forty-four were executed.

After that the executions apparently stopped. But early this year Air Marshal Hardan Takriti, an exiled leader of the present regime, was assassinated in Kuwait.

Naming Street For Singer Hit

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A city councilman recommended Monday the city reject a proposal to rename a Hollywood street after entertainer Rudy Vallee.

The street, now called Pyramid Place, would be named "Rue De Valle" under the proposal. Vallee lives on the street.

Councilman Robert J. Stevenson told the council's public works committee that the suggestion has already cost the city money and would cost more if it was approved because maps would have to be changed.

Way To Get Rid Of Sludge

LORAIN, Ohio (UPI)—Chemists at a Ford Motor Co. plant have discovered it is possible to turn sludge into dirt.

And they say they are happy about the discovery.

Sludge is a water industrial waste, that is toxic, worthless and difficult to dispose of.

But it can be transformed into a solid, non-toxic, chemically stable dirt, when treated with special chemicals, environmental chemists have discovered at this Lake Erie City.

THE INCHWORM FENCE — A new section of fence, blocking half of forested Baltimore Canyon Trail, is the latest move in a quiet battle between hikers and overseers of the Tiscornia estate. The chain-link barrier has been erected in sections during the last six months at the canyon's entrance near Larkspur. Nature lovers have called the fence and the piecemeal way it has been erected a "painful and annoying" infringement on the public's right of access."

County Supports Hikers' Protest

Marin County supervisors pledged their support yesterday to maintaining public access to the forested Baltimore Canyon near Larkspur — even if it means going to court.

However, they said, as long as a negotiated settlement with the Tiscornia Estate remains possible the county will put off suing.

"We have a right there and I d o n ' t think they can take it away," said Chairman Louis H. Baar. "We should continue to negotiate but if that doesn't work out we will go in legally."

Hiking enthusiasts are worried that a six-foot chain link fence at the entrance to the canyon will eventually mean their exclusion.

Since last summer, when survey stakes first dotted steep canyon slopes, hikers have been prodding the supervisors to take a hard line.

Earlier this year, when fencing took the place of survery stakes and hikers were barred entrance except for a small gap in the chain-link barrier, the p r o t e s t became louder and stronger.

Pierre W. Joske, director of the department of parks and recreation, told the board he felt the Tiscornia interests were willing to talk. In discussions with the estate's attorney, Joske said he was assured the Tiscornia estate does not intend to withhold permission to hike up the canyon.

However, A. Charles Brouse, chairman of the Larkspur Town Meeting, urged immediate action.

"This whole matter is being dragged out by the Tiscornia people," Brouse charged adding that during the weekend the h i k e r s ' 10-foot wide access through the fence had been reduced by half.

"They're nibbling away at public rights of access . . . its painful and annoying," he continued.

Supervisors Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni assured Brouse that "our policy is that public trails will remain open."

According to the county counsel's office, court decisions have upheld the public's right to private land provided it has been used without protest for more than five years.

Marinite Weathers Chile Quake; Reports Damage In Relief Plea

A Mill Valley exchange student in Vina Del Mar, Chile, weathered that country's devastating earthquake safely and has appealed to Marinites to help victims of the temblor.

The parents of Becky Brockway received a call during the weekend that she was unhurt but that bitter cold and storms are adding greatly to the suffering of many homeless Chileans.

Lyn Brockway, of 440 Throckmorton A v e n u e , said her daughter called Saturday morning to report the house in which she was staying in Vina Del Mar, Sausalito's sister city, was almost completely demolished in Thursday's quake. She has moved to temporary quarters in a nearby home with 30 others.

Mrs. Brockway, who said she and her husband, B. F. Brockway, were "pacing the floor" with anxiety Thursday and Friday, had been told by Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. that they would not be able to get through to Chile until today.

Becky, a 17-year-old junior at Tamalpais High School, has been studying in Chile since February.

"I don't know how she managed to call us," Mrs. Brockway said. She theorized Becky made the call from the American Embassy in Valparaiso.

"It's the coldest winter in 20 years, with snow in Santiago (Chile's capital) for the first time in years," Mrs. Brockway said.

Although the death toll from the quake itself is m o d e s t , many residents lost their homes and were forced into the cold and have frozen to death, Mrs. Brockway said.

She said her daughter reported that modern buildings in Vina Del Mar and nearby Valparaiso sustained little damage but that stucco structures, common in Chile, were hard hit.

Mrs. Brockway said Marinites who wish to contribute to the victims should send checks made out to the Chile Fund to her home to be forewarded to a tax-deductible relief fund. Contributions also may be sent to any Frank Howard Allen office in Marin.

Session Postponed

The regular meeting of the Novato Fire Protection District Board, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. today, has been postponed until 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the main fire station because of a lack of a quorum, according to Fire Chief Jack Kidder.

Townhouse Units In San Marin Stalled

Novato City Council, concerned about the large number of townhouses planned in the city, last night delayed action on plans for 80 units in San Marin.

Councilmen voted 3-2 to postpone action on plans by Standard Growth Properties for townhouses on the north side of San Marin Drive between San Carlos Way and Simmons Lane until the developer presents a progress report on his application to the Federal Housing Authority.

The vote to delay was 3-2 with Councilmen George C. Quesada and David Price Jones dissenting.

Councilman J. Wayne Womack said there are "1,200 townhouse units on the drawing board now" and said he would be reluctant to "approve any more townhouses in Novato until we see something, taking place."

Standard Growth Properties' plans for development of 74 units nearby previously were approved by the city, but units have not been constructed.

Mayor Joseph D. Gargiulo said Novato was "getting to the saturation point in townhouses."

The Novato City Council also:

NONCONFORMING SIGNS — Continued until July 27 action on a request by the Novato Chamber of Commerce to grant a six-month extension on enforcement of provisions to bring nonconforming signs, about 100, into conformance with the sign ordinance.

PLANNING FEES — Introduced an ordinance hiking processing fees for the planning department to include a subdivision fee of $100 plus $5 a lot for the first 100 lots and $2 for each additional lot. The vote was 4-1 with J. Wayne Womack dissenting.

CITY SEAL — Received a proposed new city seal from the Novato Federated Women's Club, depicting the city hall, drawn by Barbara I. Murphy of the Novato Art Center; advised that it be put on display and continued action until July 27.

CIVIC CENTER — Continued until July 27 review of a proposed program for expansion of the civic center at its present location until July 27.

PAY RAISES — Passed a resolution setting the salaries approved by the council during budget sessions by a 4-1 vote with J. Wayne Womack dissenting because the measure included changing the part-time custodian at the Community House to a full-time employee.

RODONI PROPERTY — Approved purchase of the Rodoni property north of the community house for civic center use at a price of $34,000 on the condition that the house on the lot is habitable, since the city hopes to obtain revenue by renting it for about a year.

BEA CARPENTER — Paid tribute to Bea Carpenter, head of the group sponsoring redecoration of city hall, who will move from Novato and agreed there should be a "Bea Carpenter Day" before she leaves.

PIZZA RESTAURANT — Approved precise plans for a Straw Hat pizza restaurant adjacent to the Copper Penny restaurant, 7089 Redwood Highway, with conditions that it be set back 18 feet from the frontage road and there be planting along the south side of the building.

REZONING — Introduced ordinances to rezone two parcels, 725 and 727 Orange Avenue from single family to multiple family as requested by John Sorum, and four lots at the southeast corner of Seventh Street and Vallejo Avenue from single family to multiple family as recommended by Margie S. Yates.

APPOINTMENT — Appointed Evelyn Werner of 35 Carmel Drive, representing senior citizens, to the Citizens Advisory Committee on Human Needs.

VACATION — Granted City Mgr. Charles A. Brown a vacation for one week from July 21 to July 28.

PERSONNEL SERVICES — Renewed the city's contract with the state Cooperative Personnel Services for three years, with the cost determined by the services given. Brown reported that $1,000 a year is budgeted, but the city seldom spends the entire amount.

HOUSING HEARINGS — Approved a proposal by the city housing committee that the committee conduct public meetings on its proposed housing policy statement, near completion, before it is adopted by the council.

BEDROOM TAX — Set July 27 at 8 p.m. at the Community House for a public hearing on the proposed bedroom tax on new residential developments, $75 for the first bedroom and $15 for each additional bedroom in a dwelling unit.

HORSES — Set July 27 for public hearing on abatement of a public nuisance, keeping of a horse at 1679 Novato Boulevard and continued until July 27, a hearing on abatement of the keeping of a horse at 603 Davidson Street.

Bogus Cast Used To Get Welfare

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI)—A 26-year-old man faced charges today of using a removable cast to obtain $1,200 a month in fraudulent welfare checks.

Santa Clara County officials accused Thomas G. Lynch of Mountain View, Calif., of wearing the cast on his arm as proof he could not work while registering at each of the county's six welfare offices. He registered under slightly different names and Social Security numbers at each office.

He was arrested on grand theft charges when he arrived at one of the offices to pick up a check. He calmly took off the cast and handed it to deputies.

Nurse's Aide Arrested For A Fatal Blaze

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—When fire swept through the Westminster Terrace Presbyterian Home for Senior Citizens Jan. 14, a young nurse's aide at the home led several residents to safety. Mary Ann Wyatt, 21, halted her rescue efforts only when she was overcome by smoke. When she recovered, she went back to help evacuate more of the residents from the fire which killed 10 elderly persons.

Tuesday, the Jefferson County grand jury indicted Miss Wyatt on 10 counts of murder and one count of arson.

The grand jury said she "willfully and maliciously" set fire to the modern, four-story concrete-and-crick structure, thus she "willfully" murdered 10 residents.

Linen was the first cloth woven from vegetable fabric.

Bonds For East Mill Valley Fire Station Due Try Again

A $240,000 bond issue to build a new fire station in East Mill Valley, rejected by voters last month, will be submitted to them again next year.

Mill Valley city councilmen last night voted 4-1 last night to place the bonds before the electorate at the April 9 city council election.

Councilman Jean S. Barnard, who voted against the motion, said she did so only because she wanted the measure to go on the November ballot.

The fire station measure was one of four bond items totaling $1.35 million defeated by voters in the June 29 special election. Only a $450,000 sewer treatment plant improvement measure was successful.

Last night's meeting was to consider the city's $411,592 capital improvements budget for 1971-72, but councilmen spent little of the three-hour session on that subject.

More than an hour was spent behind closed doors while councilmen discussed the status of negotiations with striking city employees.

The council did, however, budget $1,725 for automatic sampling equipment to conduct a monitoring program of effluent from the city's sewage treatment plant. The program is required by the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The council also considered a request by the Enchanted Knolls Homeowners Association for traffic signals at East Blithedale Avenue and Lomita Drive.

Councilmen told City Mgr. William H. Cunningham to check the gasoline tax fund for the current year to see if enough uncommitted funds remain to finance the lights, estimated to cost $30,000.

Another budget meeting on capital outlay was set for 7:30 p.m. July 22. The council adjourned to 7:30 p.m. Thursday at city hall for another closed session on employee negotiations with its professional bargainer, Industrial Employers and Distributors Association of San Francisco.

Motorcycle Injury

Richard Baldwin, 26, of 1266 McGregor Drive, Petaluma, was treated at Hillcrest Hospital for a sprained right ankle suffered at 7:20 p.m. yesterday when his motorcycle collided with a pick-up truck at Fifth and I Streets, Petaluma. Police lacked details of the accident.

Encore On Zoning Issue Fizzles; Plan Withdrawn

What could have been the biggest story of the evening at the Novato City Council meeting last night, never happened.

About 200 residents of the Marin Country Club Estates area were ready to invade the council chambers in protest of a zoning change in their area.

In a hectic hearing last month the residents and city planning commission were involved in a stormy session on the matter and an encore was expected last night.

The fight was over before it started when the developer Charles Kuhn notified the city yesterday morning to withdraw his application to rezone six lots on the north side of Fairway Drive, between Birdie Drive and Alameda De La Loma from single family to planned community.

Ralph R. Patterson, president of the Marin Country Club Estates Homeowners Association, appeared at the meeting anyway to present a petition signed by 462 residents of the area opposing the zone change.

Bus With Church Choir Overturns

NEEDLES, Calif. (UPI)—A homemade, three-deck bus packed with members of a church choir from Santa Clara, Calif. overturned on Interstate 40 Tuesday injruing 15 of the 22 persons aboard.

Thirteen persons were treated at Needles Hospital and released and two were admitted for observation.

The vehicle, described by highway patrolmen as a "home rigged, triple-deck job" with restroom and eating facilities, hit a bridge abutment, swerved out of control and turned over.

The Days Under Marcuse's Wing

time Angela was there but she did not "discover" the teacher who was to have the most profound influence of anyone on her intellectual and philosophical thinking until her last year. Then she dropped virtually all her other courses and took all those Marcuse offered.

Only a couple of weeks after her arrival, Angela went home briefly to Birmingham for the funeral of four young girls killed in a Sunday school bombing.

"Angela was a sensitive girl, loved all people," says a former teacher. "Then those children were killed."

Angela's first two years at Brandeis are notable mainly for her lack of noticeability as contrasted to the campus firebrand she later was to become, although her academic performance was outstanding.

"I was mostly struck by her capacity to work hard, her determination," says Prof Murray Sachs, Angela's adviser in French literature. "She was bright and well prepared and had all the gifts of a good student. She was easily the best person in the department."

Angela later was to graduate magna cum laude, one of 22 persons in a class of about 300 with that honor. She was one of a dozen blacks in the class.

"As I look back, I think it is interesting she never spoke of tensions because of her blackness," Sachs said. "She must have felt like an outsider. We never discussed issues like that. She was very reserved on personal matters. She didn't do much talking. Nobody (on the faculty) felt they knew her well."

"Her reserve left open the question of her stability. On the surface she gave the impression she was mature. She was poised and able to handle herself and had a certain dignity.

"At what internal cost, one couldn't tell. She was a bit of a loner, but she didn't appear to be a troubled loner. Apparently she had no close friends here but she was not a lost soul. She threw herself into her work and her determination seemed to answer many of her needs."

Sachs is wrong about her having no friends. In her sophomore year, she made the acquaintance of a young German exchange student, Manfred Lorenz, who was majoring in philosophy and who introduced her to the writings of Neitzche and Marcuse. They argued politics endlessly.

In 1964 she went to Paris under the Hamilton Junior Year Abroad program to study at the Sorbonne. She had the added incentive that Manfred also was returning to Europe—and that they had fallen in love.

The Reverend Melish, who had been corresponding with Angela and her family regularly, said that after the young couple went to Europe Manfred wrote Angela's parents asking their permission to marry.

"Manfred wrote to Sally (Mrs. Davis) a very formal letter asking for Angela's hand in marriage," says Melish. "Mama hit the roof. She wrote me enclosing a copy of the letter from Manfred. Her letter was very emotional. It said Angela was very unhappy at Brandeis and didn't want to go back there.

"I told Sally that if you refuse this and try to break this up, they'll elope. But if you leave things along it will take care of itself. Just sit tight."

Manfred and Angela went skiing together in the Alps. They tasted the excitement of Paris and Angela was particularly caught up in the fervor about the Algerian independence movement and wrote that she felt she was being watched by the French secret police because she was black. She also began learning the German language.

The young man's parents were as much opposed to the interracial marriage as was Mrs. Davis and the relationship cooled. Angela came back to take her last year at Brandeis.

That was the beginning of her tutelage under Marcuse.

Now 72 years old, Marcuse had been at Brandeis for 11 years after teaching previously at western European universities. It is doubtful whether one person in 10,000 in the United States has read any of his works. His best known book is called "The One Dimensional Man." One of its theses is that the average man in the technological society has become so switched into the material aspects of life, the "sewer system" of television and other mass media, the illusion that he has free speech and the right to protest that he is acquiescino in deprivation of his individual freedom.

In an essay, "Repressive Tolerance," Marcuse wrote that the "Establishment" had created a society in which change seems to be welcomed but in which protestors actually are "flailing at pillows." He suggested that an elite class ultimately must rule.

"If it is crazy to suggest that people qualified to rule should rule and not movie stars, tap dancers and cheap politicians, then, yes, perhaps I am in favor of an elitist rule," he once said.

Marcuse today describes Angela Davis as the best, or "one of the two or three best" students he has had in 30 years.

Why?

"I've been asked that many times," he says. "It's very simple. Her intelligence was superior and so was her interest."

Marcuse says Angela was immediately attracted to his belief that philosophy must not be something abstract, that it must bring personal involvement and change. He says it is based on a critical analysis of existing social conditions in the light of possible change and improvement.

Marcuse does not discount the role he played in shaping Angela's evolution but he says it is probably exaggerated.

"If it hadn't been me, it would have been someone much like me," he says.

Although Angela's senior year was spent mainly attending Marcuse's lectures and seminars, she wrote her senior honors thesis on "The Novels of (French writer) Robbe-Grillet: A Study of Method and Meaning."

Prof. Sachs says her 125-page thesis, hailed as one of the most brilliant ever written at Brandeis, was concerned with ideas rather than the aesthetic and literary style of Alain Robbe-Grillet as the "chief theoretician" of the new novel school of French literature.

In the introduction, Angela wrote:

"The breakdown of the traditional moral order makes itself more evident every day. The world has been beset by a general and all-penetrating fragmentation which abolished the old comprehensive and harmonious structures. The continued existence of reality itself becomes problematic in face of the present nuclear devices."

At Marcuse's urging, Angela went on from Brandeis to study for two years at Johann Wolfgang von Goethe University at Frankfurt, Germany. One of her professors was Marcuse's old Marxist compatriate, Theodor W. Adorno, who has since died, and sociology professor Oskar Negt.

A fellow student at Goethe University says Adorno and Marcuse both leaned heavily to German philosophers Kant and Hegel.

"They held a deep seriousness about social injustice," he says. "They were against materialism in modern life and taught more about the logic of life."

When Miss Davis first arrived in Frankfurt, she lived in a residence for 1,000 foreign students studying at Goethe which had an enrollment of about 17,000. A short time later she moved in with radical sociology students who had taken over an old abandoned building dubbed "The Factory".

Angela had begun to show the style and striking appearance that was to mark her thereafter. Five feet seven, she had changed from a short waved harido to the Afro style which made her look about six feet tall.

She was one of the first in Frankfurt to support a miniskirt and later a leather miniskirt.

"She was the leader of student fashion all the time she was here," says one contemporary. "All eyes were on her at a gathering."

Extreme leftwing radicals and Students for a Democratic Society shared the "Factory" and included a German student, David Wittenberg, who became Angela's closest friend shortly after her arrival and apparently steered her to the group.

Others were Gunther Armendt, a prominent SDS leader, and Jurgen Krahl, the forerunner of "Red" Rudi Dutschke as an SDS firebrand. Although Angela was close to the SDS types, she was not then considered a prime mover or activist.

Her social life did become much more active. She was a regular at the Saturday night student dances at the Students Home. She went frequently to "Club Voltaire" where students harangued over politics. She frequented the Jazz Club. The German students were fascinated by her slow Alabama drawl but soon realized how articulate she was on intellectual topics.

One of her friends was American Negro Robert Jackson, 37, from Indianapolis, who had been studying Slavic languages. He hopes to get a job eventually with the U.S. State Department or United Nations.

"Angela was very much dedicated to her studies," he says. "But she was not a one way street. She had a balance of feelings and intellect. She could express her thoughts articulately on all kinds of topics and in French, German or English.

"But she could also rap and soul. She knew the latest soul dances as well as the latest articles Adorno or Marcuse had written. She was never trying to push herself into the front row, but she had a considerable following."

Angela had been then living for eight years mainly among white people. Her student friend David Wittenberg recalls she had become increasingly concerned about racial developments in America and, as one of her teachers said, "felt she could no longer tolerate the deterioration of the situation in the U.S. without becoming actively involved."

She became involved —and with a fervor that surprised those who had known her before. She went back to study again under Marcuse at the University of California at San Diego but for the first time she put "black" before everything else.

IMPACT ON ANGELA — A police officer points to a damaged auto outside the 16th Avenue Street Baptist Church in Birmingham, Ala., in which four Negro girls were killed on Sept. 15, 1963. While the young girls were friends of Angela's sister, Fania, the tragedy is said to have had a great impact on Angela's direction in her early college days. (UPI Telephoto)

Buffalo Kills Washingtonian

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (UPI)—A charging buffalo killed a Washington tourist Monday as he tried to take a picture of the animal, park officials said today.

Marvin Leslie Schrader, 30, of Spokane, Wash., died at the scene where the buffalo knocked him to the ground.

Park officials said Schrader, who was vacationing with his family, was on a sightseeing tour of the western side of the park about six miles north of Old Faithful.

High Court Hands PUC Tart Reversal

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—With sharp language, the California Supreme Court Tuesday annulled a decision of the State Public Utilities Commission regarding geothermal power plant construction and told the commission it must consider antitrust factors.

Pacific Gas and Electric Co. was granted approval to build two new geothermal steamelectric generating units in Sonoma County over the objection of the Northern California Power Agency, representing 11 cities.

In an unanimous decision written by Justice Raymond L. Sullivan, the court found the PUC had failed to give adequate consideration to antitrust issues in the case.

"The commission should consider the antitrust implications... The task of the commission extends far beyond the passive role of a sounding board," the court held.

The high court said it was not considering the merits of the antitrust contention and that the PUC could grant the applications if in the public interest.

The 11-city group, which intervened as an interested party, contended that steam supply contracts between PG&E and Union Oil Co., Thermal Power Co. and Magma Power Co., who develop geothermal steam, violate state and federal antitrust laws.

The PUC approved the projects, saying it did not need to settle this question. PG&E also argued that the 11-city group lacked standing to raise antitrust questions, and the PUC agreed.

"It should not be necessary to rouse the commission to perform its duty, and where a private party has so clearly demonstrated the adverse impact of the proposed facilities, the commission certainly can not ignore the problem simply because it was not raised by one having impeccable credentials of legal standing," the court said.

Glenwood Scrapped As A Middle School

The San Rafael Board of Education was told last night it could begin its planned middle school program in the elementary district in the fall of 1972 without use of Glenwood School.

Although Glenwood long had been designated for conversion from an elementary into a sixth through eighth grade facility, Supt. John F. Plank said Davidson, now a junior high, and Santa Venetia, now a limited middle school, would be capable of absorbing the projected middle school population.

Plank told the board Glenwood no longer would be needed because of dwindling enrollment foreseen at the elementary level.

In the past, voters rejected bond issues to enlarge Glenwood for a middle school.

Under the plan as it now stands, sixth graders would be drawn from various elementary schools, including Glenwood, to attend middle school programs at Davidson and Santa Venetia. Davidson now houses seventh and eighth graders and Santa Venetia, although designated a middle school, serves only sixth through eighth graders in the Santa Venetia area.

Although the board repeatedly has endorsed the middle school program — which is expected, through more individualized instruction, to speed elementary students' adjustment to high school — the question has been which schools should feed sixth graders into Davidson and Santa Venetia.

That issue again went unresolved last night. The board, after reviewing a possible plan by Plank for building enrollment at Davidson and Santa Venetia over the next two years, asked the superintendent to present details of implementing the middle school program at a future meeting.

Last year, parents of students at Coleman and Bahia Vista schools objected to bussing their children over Puerto Suello Hill to enlarge the middle school program at Santa Venetia.

The need, said Dr. Lauro R. Quiros from the audience, is to convince balking parents and their children that they're "not becoming second class citizens by going on the 'other side of the tracks.' " He called, however, for improvement of the bicycle path over Puerto Suello Hill that would be used by students.

"You'll have to convince a lot of people in this community that Santa Venetia is no longer a stinking mudflat," said Donald R. Wellington, a member of the city schools' citizens advisory committee.

Plank's suggestion for middle school conversion, without specifying feeder schools, foresaw boosting enrollment at Santa Venetia to 560 and at Davidson to 920 next school year, with capacity of 630 and 930, respectively, reached in the 1973-74 year.

He said the shift could not be made fully next year unless portables were used.

In a related matter, Wellington delivered a report that was mildly critical of efforts by school officials to smooth transition of students from one school level to another, such as elementary to junior high.

Wellington, chairman of the citizens advisory subcommittee on articulation, said there was a need for teachers and principals to discuss more frequently shortcomings of students moving up in the school system.

Board members agreed, and asked Wellington's committee to look into the situation again in the near future.

The San Rafael Board Of Education Also:

BUDGET — Approved publication budgets of $5.5 million for the high school district and $5.4 million for the elementary district, indicating changes might be made before adoption of the final spending program next month.

BILLS — Questioned payment of a $2,000 bill to Computer Dynamics for data processing services, essentially report card work, and of $650 to two film companies for rental of feature movies for the work-study program. Among the films rented for the students were, "Rebel Without A Cause," "I Love You, Alice B. Toklas" and "Requiem for A Heavyweight." Plank was asked to investigate.

ATTENDANCE — Because of burgeoning enrollment in east side elementary schools, approved transfer of 46 students attending Coleman School to Laurel Dell Primary. The students live east of Highway 101 and south of Paloma Avenue, off Lincoln Avenue.

UNIFICATION — Endorsed a suggestion to meet with the Dixie School District board to discuss implications of a unification proposal, scheduled for a mandatory election next year. Under unification, Dixie's tax rate would go down and San Rafael's, up. Dixie's current rate is higher.

COLLEGE — Renewed a work-study agreement with the College of Marin, asking for periodic project reports.

High Costs For Car Anti-Smog Devices Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) believes the only certainty about development of auto antipollution devices is their high cost to the consumer.

In its first annual report to Congress on the subject, the EPA said Tuesday industry had not yet developed exhaust cleanup systems to meet the standards set by law for 1975 and 1976 model cars.

But it said auto makers were spending more than $330 million a year for research on emission control, "focused on the present internal combustion engine to meet mass production requirements of the industry within the tight time limits set by the Clean Air Act."

U.S. Organization In Athens Bombed

ATHENS (UPI) —A homemade bomb exploded today at the entrance of Hellenic-American Union building, causing little damage and no injuries, police said.

It was the latest in a series of explosions this month, none of which caused injury.

Triangle Rezoning Shot Down

The Novato City Council's long running debate about zoning of two parcels in the Diablo Triangle took a new twist last night.

Councilmen voted 3-2 against rezoning the parcels owned by Joseph DeBorba and J. C. Youngberg from retail commercial to planned residential, as recommended in the downtown plan.

Wayne Sartain and David Price Jones voted for rezoning while Mayor Joseph D. Gargiulo, J. Wayne Womack and George C. Quesada opposed it.

After the vote the council passed a resolution of intention to rezone the parcels from retail commercial to planned commercial.

This vote was 3-2 with Womack and Gargiulo opposed, but Gargiulo later changed his vote to make it 4-1.

The retail commercial zone survived after attorney Leland H. Jordan said the property owners would suffer a $150,000 loss if it were changed, and indicated they would take their case to court.

The two parcels at the corner of Diablo Avenue and South Novato Boulevard have been zoned for retail commercial for several years.

More than two million blocks of limestone, averaging two and a half tons each, were used in the Great Pyramid.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Jammed Hearing Witnesses Legal Prostitution Bill Veto

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Bible-quoting housewives, women's liberationists, policemen and a homosexual clergyman convinced a legislative committee Tuesday to kill a bill that would have legalized prostitution in California.

The measure died on a voice vote of the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee after a hearing jammed with 300 laughing and applauding spectators.

Assemblyman Leroy F. Greene's bill, introduced after voters in his Sacramento district indicated they favored legalization, would have licensed prostitutes and their business establishments. The Democratic lawmaker did not seek a vote on a second bill to allow operation of such houses on a county option basis.

Greene, who said the state should not be in the business of setting the "moral standards of its citizenry," reasoned it is a contradictory for a prostitute to be arrested for selling her talents when she would not be so treated if she gave them away free.

The legislation encountered heavy opposition. Greene produced no witnesses to testify on behalf of the measure even though he surveyed 1,500 judges, sheriffs and law enforcement officials in search of supporters.

"On the basis of women's rights, women should not be used as objects to gratify men's lust," shouted Ethelmae Yeakel-Watson of Sacramento. "When we have as many donkey clubs as we have bunny clubs, I may support prostituution."

Another woman read the committee quotations from the Old Testament condemning prostitution. A clergyman who identified himself as a homosexual charged Greene's efforts were misguided.

Joseph Gilbert, who said he was pastor of the Metropolitan Community Church of Sacramento, said the legislature should concentrate on passing a pending bill that would legalize certain sex acts between consenting adults in private. He called Greene's proposal a "misappropriation of priorities."

Another witness, Jean Riley of Sacramento, who also brought a Bible, said men believe that "God will forgive you if you use the woman. But he won't. I had 10 opportunities to become a prostitute but I shall not and will not."

Greene said under his bill "I do not see the crib, bordello, whorehouse, cathouse of the past. This would be a licensed place. I envision something like the European system in an apartment building."

A. E. Lebase of the Los Angeles County sheriff's office and Robert Devine of the Los Angeles Police Department's vice group warned legalization would mean greater law enforcement problems and increased venereal disease.

Devine said state sanction of prostitution would encourage families to hire out their children as prostitutes.

"Anyone is capable of providing a member of his family for prostitution under this," he said. The remark drew laughs from the audience.

Greene contended, however, "There's no slavery here. There's no forcing a girl into prostitution. I suggest it's just the opposite: they see the man as the sex object for money."

But his prospects dimmed when Reagan's office released a statement indicating the governor did not view the deferment as sufficient to support Beilenson's alternative plan.

REAGAN VETO

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan has vetoed legislation which would have permitted election officials to speak a language other than English at polling places.

In vetoing the bill Tuesday, Reagan said the measure "only adds uncertainty to the already confused State of California's election law."

Reagan said the bill would "create more uncertainty as to the duties and obligations of election officials "because it would remove the requirement that English be spoken at polling places and not replace the section of the law with "anything positive."

The legislation was authored by Sen. Mervyn Dymally, D-Los Angeles.

BILL PASSED

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Assembly has approved legislation which its sponsor hopes will encourage citizens to contribute to political campaigns through the incentive of state income tax deductions.

The bill by Assemblyman Henry Waxman, D-Los Angeles, was sent to the Senate Tuesday on a 41-28 vote.

Waxman said the measure would give a single person an $8 credit and a married couple a $16 credit on their state income tax returns. It would repeal current law which allows up to a $100 state income tax deduction for political cotribution.

ECOLOGY BILL

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Senate Local Government Committee has endorsed a bill designed to impose stricter requirements on rural recreational subdividers who despoil the environment.

The proposal by Assemblyman Leo T. McCarthy, D-San Francisco, enables a city or county to deny approval of a subdivision map if it determines that the plans "are likely to cause substantial environmental damage and avoidably injure fish or wildlife."

The proposal was sent to the full Senate.

WELFARE BID

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Democratic sponsor of an alternative welfare reform program to Gov. Ronald Reagan's plan pinned hopes of passage today on a rewritten and scaled down proposal.

Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, amended his measure Tuesday to defer for one year a 17 per cent increase to "full need" the grants of recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

Beilenson said the postponement of the boost would save county, state and federal state taxpayers a total of $68 million. He said the state alone would realize a $23 million savings.

"This is a second major attempt to be conciliatory and make concessions and compromises to get welfare reform passed," the lawmaker said.

Godfrey Sees Population Key

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Unless the world's population is cut in half—then held at that level—the ecology movement will not succeed, according to television and radio personality Arthur Godfrey.

Godfrey, a long time advocate of antipollution measures, told 250 representatives of local conservation councils Tuesday that population control is the key to saving our environment.

"None of the work we do — important as it is—will do any good unless we reduce our population by half and the population growth rate at zero," Godfrey said. "Man is the only species on earth whose growth rate is greater than zero."

MGM Returns To Association

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, which withdrew from the Motion Picture Association of America last February, has returned to the group, it was announced today.

"I am greatly cheered," said MPAA President Jack Valenti, who announced the return jointly with MGM President James T. Aubrey Jr.

Valenti said he and Aubrey "have concluded a series of meetings that ranged over all the problems confronting MPAA and production and distribution both here and around the world. We are in agreement on all issues."

State Begins Direct Deposit Experiment

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Reagan administration hopes it can stimulate the state's economy through an experimental program of depositing unemployment checks directly into a recipient's bank account.

Sigurd I. Hansen, deputy director of the Department of Human Resources Development, said Tuesday the pilot payment project was started this week in the town of Avalon on Catalina Island.

Under the plan, unemployment insurance benefits would be made through direct deposits in an individual's bank account instead of the present system of having the recipient collect payment at an UI office.

Hansen said the direct deposit system "eliminates handling of cash in UI offices and puts an end to the outdated practice of having claimants line up for pay when they could be looking for work."

Its greatest merit, Hansen added, "lies in its potential as a stimulus to the economy."

Hansen said that making payments directly to bank accounts would produce an increase in the banking system's reserve of money for loans and such loan money would contribute to faster economic recovery within each community."

Avalon was selected to begin the project because it has only one bank.

$10,000 Is Offered For Bombing Clues

STANFORD (UPI) —Stanford University today offered a $10,000 reward for information on the bombing of the home of the school's personnel director.

The bomb, a 2-by-14 inch steel pipe planted ahead of time, blew an 18-inch hole Monday night in the bedroom wall of Robert Nelson's home near the campus. No one was injured.

Girls Steal Show In Army Parade

PARIS (UPI)—France displayed its military might in a two-hour Bastille Day parade down the Champs-Elysees today, but it was a contingent of soldiers in skirts that drew the applause.

The girls, appearing in the annual military parade for the first time, even stole some of the show from the swaggering Foreign Legion troops who normally win all the limelight.

The girls appeared in the middle of a parade that featured all the sophisticated weaponry that has helped boost France into second place in the world arms sales. They got a special welcome from the hundreds of thousands lining the parade.

IT'S EASY to keep your cool in the kitchen —and summer cooking can be quick when the menu is Chinese. To accompany the main dish, boiled rice with vegetable topping.

FRENCH TREAT

Crepes Are Well Worth The Effort

Crepes, fragile pancakes which serve as a wrapping for various fillings either sweet or savory, are as French in their preparation as their name. Actually, crepes are not hard to make, but to be worthy of their place on the French menu, they must be made with care for detail and with the finest ingredients.

You can please your most critical guest with either Vanilla Crepes with Strawberry Lemon Filling or Cheese Filled Crepes made according to the following recipes. Ripe strawberries, fresh peaches or other fruit go in a crepe filling. Equally excellent is a mingling of cream cheese, apricot jam and, again, the fragrance of vanilla.

CREPES WITH STRAWBERRY LEMON FILLING

1 pint strawberries, or other soft fresh fruit
1¾ cups sugar, divided
5 teaspoons pure vanilla extract, divided
½ cup butter or margarine
3 eggs
3 egg yolks
½ cup lemon juice
1½ teaspoons grated lemon peel
⅛ teaspoon salt
12 crepes (recipe below)

Wash, hull and slice strawberries. Sprinkle with one-quarter cup of the sugar and two teaspoons of the vanilla; let stand one hour. In the top portion of a double boiler melt butter. Stir in remaining one and a half cups sugar. Beat eggs with egg yolks and add to butter mixture. Blend in lemon juice, peel and salt. Cook over boiling water, beating constantly with wire whisk, until mixture is thick and smooth. Stir in remaining three teaspoons vanilla extract. Cool. Stir in strawberries. Spoon about two tablespoons filling in center of each crepe. Fold into cylinder shape and arrange on platter. Serve, topped with remaining sauce or with a rich vanilla ice cream. Makes six servings.

CREPES WITH CHEESE FILLING

1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
5½ tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
¼ cup sugar
2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
12 crepes (recipe below)
Apricot Sauce (recipe below)
¼ cup toasted slivered almonds

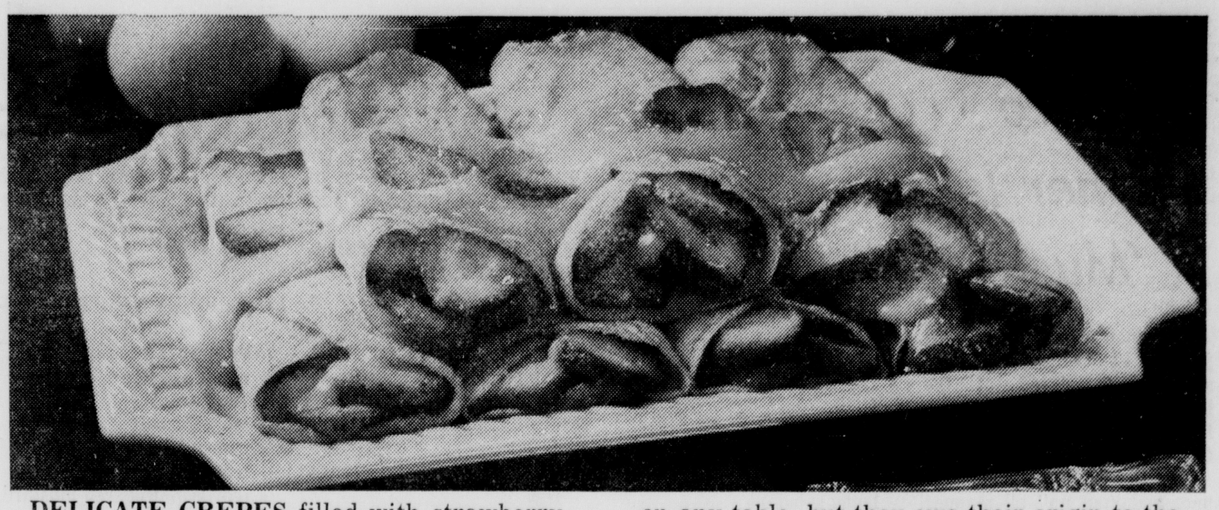
In a small mixing bowl combine cream cheese, four tablespoons of the butter, sugar, vanilla extract and lemon peel. Beat until light and fluffy. Spread each crepe to within half-inch of the edge with cheese mixture. Fold in opposite ends, almost to the center; then roll them up. Arrange the crepes side by side in a buttered shallowbaking dish. Dot with remaining 1½ tablespoons butter. Bake, uncovered in a preheated moderate oven (350° F.) 10 minutes. Serve with Apricot Sauce and sprinkle with almonds, if desired.

Makes 6 portions.

APRICOT SAUCE

⅔ cup apricot jam
⅓ cup orange juice
1 tablespoon pure vanilla extract
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

In a small saucepan combine apricot jam, orange juice, butter and vanilla extract. Heat until smooth and well blended, stirring constantly.



DELICATE CREPES filled with strawberry or other fresh fruit filling is a special dessert on any table, but they owe their origin to the renowned chefs of France.

CREPES BATTER

½ cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
⅔ cup milk
1 tablespoon salad oil
½ teaspoon pure vanilla extract

Sift flour with sugar and salt; set aside. In a small mixing bowl beat eggs thoroughly. Add milk, oil and vanilla extract; mix well. Add flour mixture, beat until smooth. Lightly grease and heat a 5-inch skillet. Pour approximately 2 tablespoons crepe batter into skillet, quickly tilting pan to spread over bottom. When delicately brown, turn to brown on other side. Repeat, lightly greasing skillet when necessary.

Makes approximately 12 crepes.

Fun clothes for fall will be more elegant, romantic, tasteful.

ACCENT ON TASTE

Flavorful Chinese Menu: Easy And Convenient

The essence of Chinese cooking lies in the traditional insistence that food must have taste or flavor, even though the ingredients used are not always the most costly.

The next time you plan a small party around a Chinese theme try the following menu: Marinated Mushrooms and Smashed Radishes, Port and Cucumber Soup, Stir-Fried Curried Shrimp, Boiled Rice with Vegetable Topping, and Almond Float.

MARINATED MUSHROOMS

½ pound fresh white mushrooms
3 to 4 cups water
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon sherry
1/8 teaspoon salt
Few drops tabasco sauce
Few drops sesame oil

Wipe fresh mushrooms with damp cloth. Cut off and discard stem ends. Place in a colander. Meanwhile, bring water to a boil; pour over mushrooms to blanch. Drain well and dry gently with paper towel. Transfer mushrooms to a bowl. Combine soy sauce, sherry, salt, tabasco sauce and sesame oil, blending well. Add to mushrooms and toss. Refrigerate covered, only to chill (about 20 minutes).

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

SMASHED RADISHES

20 radishes
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 teaspoon peanut oil
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon salt

Wash and trim radishes. Lay each on its side, then crush, by pounding decisively once or twice with the side of a cleaver or the bottom of a glass. (The radishes should split open, but not break in two.) Sprinkle with salt and let stand 5 to 10 minutes; then drain. Transfer to a bowl. Combine soy sauce, vinegar, sugar, and remaining salt. Add to radishes and toss gently. Refrigerate covered, only to chill (about 20 minutes). Sprinkle with peanut oil just before serving.

Note: Instead of crushing the radishes, you may make a crisscross cut in the top of each, to let the seasonings penetrate.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

STIR-FRIED CURRIED SHRIMP

2 pounds shrimp
2 onions (small)
4 teaspoons cornstarch
4 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon sugar
1 cup stock
dash of pepper
3 to 4 tablespoons oil
1 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons sherry
2 to 3 tablespoons curry powder

Shell and devein shrimp. Cut onion in half; then slice thin. Blend cornstarch, water, sugar and pepper to a paste. Heat oil. Add salt, then shrimp, and stir-fry at 375°F about 1 minute. Sprinkle shrimp with sherry; stir-fry until pinkish (about 1 minute more), then remove. Clean and dry pan. Add curry powder; stir ½ minute over low heat. Add onion and stir-fry until curry smells pungent (about 1 minute more). Return shrimp. Stir in stock and heat quickly. Then cook, stirring, until onion softens. Stir in cornstarch paste to thicken and serve at once.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

VEGETABLE TOPPING FOR RICE

1 cup carrots
1 cup tomatoes
1 cup string beans
1 cup peas
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
Stock

Peel and dice carrots and tomatoes. Cut string beans in 1 inch lengths. Shell peas. (Frozen green beans & peas may be used.) Leave the cooked rice still in its pot and stir in the vegetables, salt and pepper. Then cook, covered, 5 minutes more over medium heat. Reduce heat to low and cook, covered, another 30 minutes. (If necessary, add a small amount of stock to keep the mixture moist.) Then serve.

Children Prepare Plum Jam

Children attending summer school at Alpha Schools in San Rafael made a batch of plum jam, poured it into jars and took it home.

"The parents couldn't get over how good it was and that we really made it," says Faydelle Starkey, Alpha headmistress. "Several of the parents wanted the recipe so they could try it too.

"We saved enough to use on the pancakes we made for a snack at school — buckwheat cakes, butter and plum jam . . ."

ALPHA PLUM JAM

Plums
Sugar
White flour called pectin

Wash the plums and cut them and take the seeds out. Use five or four but really six cups of plums. Smash them in a big pan with a smasher. Then put the white flour called pectin in. It makes it good and keeps it from burning and running. Use a whole box full of pectin.

"Measure the sugar, seven cups full — until it's up to the '8.' Then shake it on the table to make sure it's up to the '8' (eight ounces). Pour the sugar into the big pot, and mix it up with a spoon. Put it on a little stove and wait 'til it bubbles. It has to bubble until it is ready — four whole minutes. Then take it out and pour it into jars; put the top on, lick the jam off where it spilled, and uh huh, it's good."

Pineapple Crush Salad Light, Tart

Perfect with fried chicken or baked ham, this Pineapple Crush Salad is light and slightly tart. Sliced celery and toasted slivered almonds provide pleasing crunch and, of course, toasting the almonds accentuates their good, nutty flavor.

This is a simple salad to make.

PINEAPPLE CRUSH SALAD

⅓ cup slivered almonds
1 cup (one lb. 14 oz.) pineapple chunks
2 envelopes plain gelatin
½ cup water
1 cup sliced celery
3 tablespoons white vinegar

Spread almonds in a shallow pan and place in 350-degree oven for eight minutes or until lightly toasted. Pour pineapple chunks with their own juice into electric blender container.

Whir a few seconds until almost pureed. (It should be slightly lumpy.) Soften gelatin in water in saucepan and stir over low heat until dissolved. Combine gelatin mixture, pineapple, celery, almonds and vinegar and pour into five-cup mold. Chill until firm.

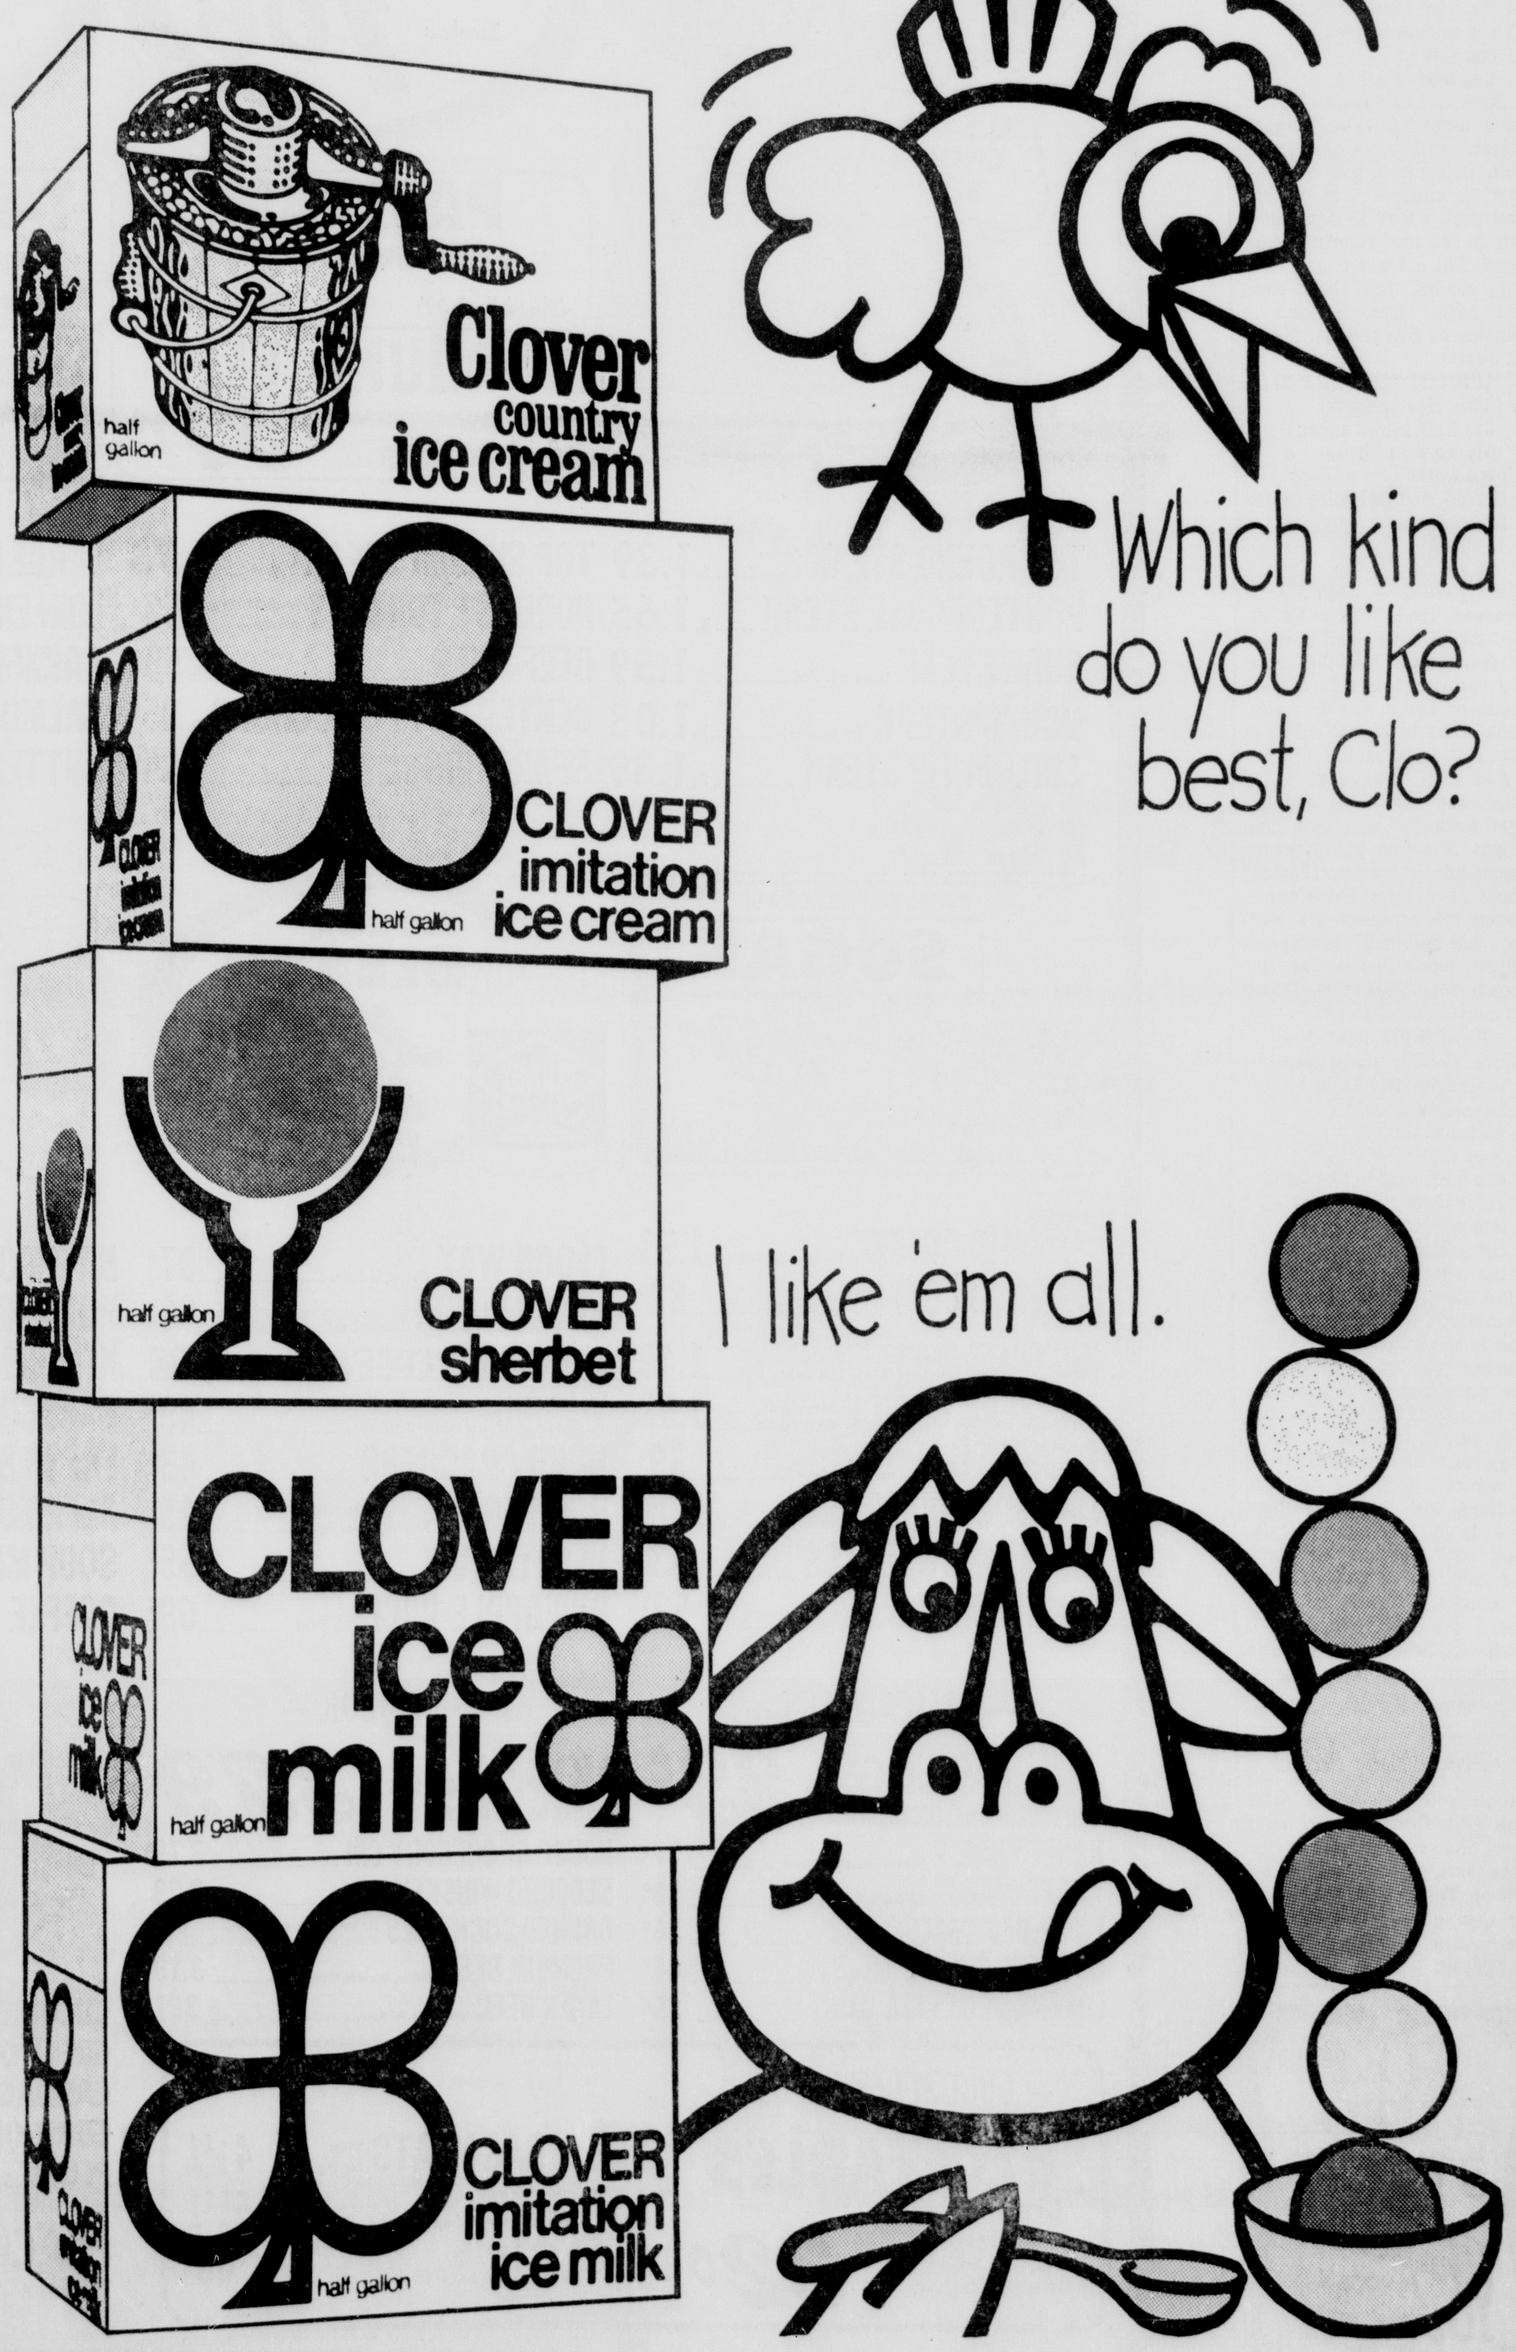
Back Ribs: Roast, Braise Or Broil

Back ribs of pork can be prepared by roasting (in oven or on outdoor rotisserie), braising or broiling on the grill top.

To broil, place back ribs on grill, rib ends down, about 5 inches from heat. Broil over moderate heat for 2 to 2½ hours or until well done, turning to brown evenly.

To roast place ribs on rack in a roasting pan or on rotisserie rod in oven or on outdoor unit. Roast at a moderate temperature (350°F.) 2 to 2½ hours.

When broiling or roasting, baste with a barbecue sauce the last hour, if desired.



Pressure Canner Is A 'Must'

Row upon row of jewel-bright jars filled with the fruits of summer, preserved at the height of freshness by loving hands. Bring back memories of Grandma's pantry?

Join the ranks of home canners and "put up" all manner of produce in the modern pressure cooker-canner.

A pressure canner is a "must" for cooking low-acid foods — vegetables, meats, poultry and fish — according to authorities, including the USDA. It cuts processing time anywhere from a third to a half in fruit processing, too.

Even if you're an old hand at pressure canning, it's a good idea to check your equipment before you begin. Leaf through the recipe and instruction book for reminders.

Here are some fruit ideas that will go Grandma one better. Why not preserve not just fruits, but pie fillings, so that all you'll have to prepare is the crust when the fancy strikes? Tart-sweet Red Cherry, sparked with lemon and just a touch of nutmeg, apricot and peach to enjoy some dreary winter day. And, when the new crop's in — a combination apple-orange filling will help bridge the gap until next summer rolls around. Each quart will make one nine-inch pie.

CHERRY PIE FILLING

15 16-lbs. sour red cherries, stemmed and pitted
2 cups water
4 lbs. granulated sugar
4 lbs. light brown sugar
1 cup minute tapioca
1 tsp. salt
Red food coloring

Stem, pit and rinse cherries. In a large saucepan, combine water, sugars, tapioca, and salt. Bring to a boil and simmer 10 minutes. Add cherries and cook about 12-15 minutes. Stir in red food coloring, if desired. Fill hot quart jars, leaving one-half-inch headspace, and adjust tops. Process 10 minutes at five pounds. Makes six quarts.

APRICOT PIE FILLING

11 12 lbs. ripe apricots
6 cups light brown sugar
6 tbsp. cornstarch
4 cups water
Grated rind and juice of one large orange
Dash salt

Prepare fruit by rinsing, splitting, and removing pits. Measure the prepared fruit, (you should have about 24 cups) or six quarts. Mix the sugar and cornstarch in a large saucepan or kettle, stir in water. Cook and stir over medium heat until sugar melts.

Add fruit, orange rind and juice, and salt. Cook and stir over moderate heat until fruit begins to soften and gives up some juice; continue cooking about 10 minutes. Pack immediately into hot quart jars, leaving one-half-inch headspace. Adjust tops. Process at five pounds for 15 minutes. Makes six quarts.

PEACH PIE FILLING

6 qts. peeled, sliced peaches (approximately 13 lbs.)
1 tsp. ascorbic acid
1 gallon water
6 cups sugar
¾ cup quick-cooking tapioca
Juice and grated rind of 1 lemon
1 tsp. ground allspice
1 tsp. salt

Put sliced peaches in a large container. Dissolve ascorbic acid in water, pour over sliced peaches; stir and drain (or follow manufacturer's directions on package). Combine peaches with other ingredients in a large kettle and let stand for 10-15 minutes. Cook and stir over medium low heat, mashing slices to get juice more quickly. Cook until peaches are juicy and soft, but not mushy, about 10 minutes. Fill into hot quart jars, leaving one-half-inch headroom. Adjust tops. Process 10 minutes at 5 pounds pressure. Makes 6 quarts.

Crown Your Salad

Give your salads an extra touch: Drain canned cling peach halves and place cup-sides down on beds of shredded lettuce. Tilt ring of green pepper over each peach half and serve with a dollop of dairy sour cream.

JUNIOR MISS of 1971 Arlene Stens of Woodlynne, N.J., was among the pageant winners who criticized Congress in a frank press conference in Washington, D.C., this week. "I've seen lawmakers sleeping or reading their papers, and then they 'come to' to vote," she commented. Here she visits the United Nations in New York.

Beauty Contestants Tell All

By MARGUERITE DAVIS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Five young beauty contestants discussed subjects ranging from women's liberation to coeducational college dormitories, at a Capitol news conference this week. They spoke frankly, no holds barred.

The high school seniors, top-ranked contestants in the 1971 Junior Miss competition, established "that beauty and brains go together," contest sponsors said.

That was the purpose of their news conference and luncheon in the Senate reception room — to prove that pretty teen-agers are not necessarily emptyheaded.

"I'M HAPPY with my life and with the way I'm treated," Janice Souza, South Windsor, Conn., said. "But I agree it's unfair to pay less to a woman who doesn't want to marry and have a family, than to a man in the same job."

"I like to have doors opened for me, and I like to have dates pay for my dinner," Kathy Morris, Forest, Miss., said.

However, she added that her mother is paid less in her job than was the man she replaced, "and that's not fair."

Kathy also disputed the theory of a "new South."

"For the first time people are beginning to see us as we really are," she said. "We're becoming more liberal. We're coming up in education. We're establishing industries. I think the rest of the world is facing up to what we are, that we're not all bigots and racists.

"And I think we handle integration very well."

Janice believed the church should not become involved in disputes over integration. There is too much turmoil surrounding the question, she said.

The girls seemed disenchanted by Congress.

"When I was in the sixth grade I considered running for public office," Kathy said, but then she decided Congress was "unreal and nightmarish.

"AND I'M tired of congressmen who want my support and ask me to solicit votes for them, and then won't listen to me."

"I've seen lawmakers sleeping or raading their papers, and then they 'come to' to vote," said Arlene Stens, Woodlynne, N.J., top winner of the contest.

Are advertisements aimed at taking advantage of the public?

"Yes," said Janice. "Advertisers believe middle class Americans are a bunch of dummies, that we can't recognize a good product. I think it's an insult."

"Hopefully, you can discriminate between television ads, but then in some cases business won't police itself," in the view of Carol Tate, Monticello, Ky.

THERE WAS support for proposals to legalize drugs.

"They're not a means of expression," Kathy Epstein, Bowie, Md., said. "I've seen friends deteriorate before my eyes."

Janice saw nothing wrong with coeducational college dormitories.

"You can enjoy yourself in more ways than one," she said. "This could test your willpower, prove that you have self-reliance."

New Look In Foods Dawning

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government not only is encouraging the proliferation of convenience foods on market shelves today, but has developed a blitz of products ranging from compressed orange juice pills to low-fat peanuts that taste like black walnuts.

The government-produced foods and snacks even have adopted the private sector's penchant for mod names — including MOD (for Milk-Orange Drink).

But most of these strange new foods are not yet available for public consumption. They have only been tested in such marketing areas as the Agriculture Department cafeteria.

THE NEW food are developed by the Agricultural Research Service, sometimes working with private firms. When scientists are satisfied with the finished product, it is made available to commercial firms which then must pay all manufacturing costs.

The Milk-Orange Drink called MOD looks like pale orange milk and tastes like creamy orange sherbet. It combines the protein and minerals of milk with the vitamins of orange juice.

O. J. Tabs, sugarless candies made by compressing dehydrated orange juice into tablets, require no refrigeration, have all the nutrition of liquid orange juice and a low calory count. Researchers said they would be ideal for campers and others who need light-weight, low-volume, nutritious food.

ANOTHER NEW product, Orange-Ho, is a beverage made of whole fruit — skins and pulp and juice.

Almost 90 per cent of the fruit is used to make Orange-Ho compared to less than half in regular orange juice.

The food industry has showed interest in Orange-Ho, but there are no firm plans yet to produce it commercially.

Another product aimed at reducing waste is a cream and whey spread. More than 14 billion pounds of whey —a byproduct of cheese — is thrown away every year. Researchers hope a snack spread made of one part cream and six parts whey will reduce the throwaway trend.

Fruit tidbits produced by the drying processes of osmosis and vacuuming —called "OsmoVacs" —retain the color and flavor of fresh fruit without refrigeration or chemical preservatives. Apples, peaches, strawberries, raspberries, and bananas have been dried successfully by the OsmoVac process.

The fruits can be reconstituted to use in baking, salads, or deserts, and they absorb water to make a sauce. An imaginative cook coated OsmoVac banana slices with chocolate, and reported the candy was delicious.

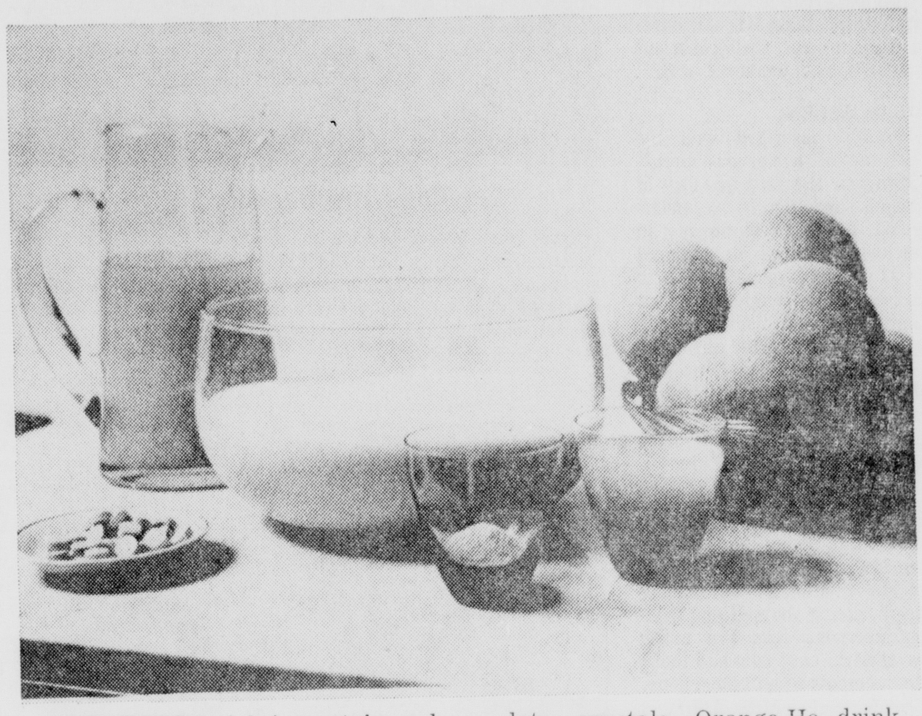
THE DEPARTMENT said a large commercial food processor was interested in producing Osmo-Vacs.

One product already on the market is low-fat peanuts, preserved so as to contain only half as many calories as the oil-roasted or dry-roasted kind. They can be used as a snack or added to soups and other processed foods, and some are flavored to taste like black walnuts and pecans.

San Francisco's famed sourdough French bread soon may be available everywhere in the country. Until now, it could be prepared only in San Francisco. Department biochemists and microbiologists identified the particular yeast and bacteria that give the bread its unique flavor.

With Chicken

Fill canned cling peach halves with whole cranberry sauce mixed with a little grated orange rind. Mold in orange or lemon gelatin as a perfect accompaniment for fried chicken.



NEW FOODS rich in protein and vitamins, good tasting and easy to prepare are being developed through the U. S. Department of Agriculture research. Shown here are some ranging from orange drinks, orange juice tablets, crystals, Orange-Ho drink and MOD, a milk-orange drink, which tastes like creamy orange sherbet. The foods are not yet available to the consumer, as they are still under testing.

Railroad Decides Not To Hire Brakewoman

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Gaylene Snow, 37, wanted to become Southern Pacific's first brakeman of the opposite sex but the railroad has decided not to hire her.

Miss Snow was admitted to the brakeman's training program three weeks ago, but among other things,she fell off a moving boxcar, Southern Pacific said Tuesday.

"We were fully prepared to hire her if she could pass the training, but she could not,' the railroad said in an announcement.

Southern Pacific said she would have been the first woman hired as a brakeman by that line. Vomen worked on lines in the East during World War II as brakemen.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Will True Tranquility Ever Come To 'Liberated' Women?

DEAR HELEN:
One thing the women's liberation movement has caused — that isn't mentioned very much — is "awakening without hope for fulfillment," which can be worse then sleep.

For the first time in their lives, many women are realizing they are downgraded, "used," almost enslaved by their roles, but what can they do about it? If they rebel, family wars start. If they divorce their male chauvinists, they aren't equipped for "single" struggle and they get into worse troubles, besides being lonely.

Today, they're aware and resentful, therefore witchy. Yesterday they were submissive and accepting so perhaps, on the whole, treated better than are modern wives who challenge their husbands and often get the worst of it.

Will true equality ever come? — DOUBTFUL

DEAR DOUBTFUL:
I think it will — in maybe two generations. Almost every major social change takes at least that long, for the first generation starts areas of controversy and the second, children of the "old guard," are only half convinced. Not until the third batch matures will total equality be considered the norm.

. . . And then, whaddya bet: someone will start a "liberate women from the drudgery of business" movement, and there we'll go again . . . . — H.

DEAR HELEN:
I've seen a lot of ads lately about learning while you sleep. Do you think people can really assimilate knowledge just because a tape recorder hands you the message as you snore? — KARL

DEAR KARL:
I'll believe this "learn while you sleep" thing when it cures snoring by subconscious suggestion. Any takers? — H.

DEAR HELEN:
"A.D." described well the tortures of a nervous breakdown and the inability of friends and family to understand. I was the victim of two such breakdowns. My husband of 23 years thought I could help myself. He became disgusted and took up with another woman. Then he started drinking, and eventually drank himself to death. My guilt threw me into deeper depressions, for had I been well, my husband might still be with me. I loved him.

Always, there was the terrible aloneness, the knowledge that I was acting "crazy," but the inability to change. Mental illness is hating life but fearing death, hating yourself and fearing everyone else. I'm under psychiatric care now and there are moments when I have hope. Pray for me! — MRS. A.R.C.

DEAR HELEN:
I'm a college student, in the State Hospital because of attempted suicide. Why? Who knows. Depressions are hard to explain rationally.

There are many truths a psychiatric patient must face, and the toughest for me aren't those the doctor digs out. The cruelest "fact" of all is that those "friends to the end" write you off when you go "mental."

I'm not violent, Helen. I'm just the same, except all the nerve ends are exposed. Why do they treat me as a pariah? Are they afraid of me? — J.J.

DEAR J.:
No, they're afraid of themselves. They are fearful that they'll say the wrong thing and perhaps head you toward another depression. Few people know how to face mental illness and so friends desert you when you need them most, excusing themselves with "I might only make her worse." I'm sorry. H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Short, Casual Hair Styles For Course

Short, casual hair styles which serve admirably on the golf course and off are preferred by the women of the Professional Golf Association. They warn that sun and wind can dry and split hair and recommend using a cream rinse hair conditioner at least once a week for women who are outdoors great amounts of time.

Sometimes the women pro golfers resort to stretch wigs that can be rinsed in warm soap suds and quick-dried.

Botulism Death Pinpoints Failures

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — The tragic death of a New York man allegedly from botulism caused by eating contaminated potato soup shocked government officials, industry executives and private citizens into a feverish search for other potentially dangerous products from the manufacturer, Bon Vivant Soups Inc.

Extensive publicity and fast footwork resulted in recall of almost all suspicious items and altered the public in time to prevent other deaths from the same cause.

But an even more shocking bit of information lies behind the story about the fatal vichyssoise. It is the scarcity of effective government supervision of sanitation in food processing plants.

THE FOOD and Drug Administration, the federal agency charged with policing most of the food industry — the Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction over meat and poultry plant sanitation -- lacks authority to go into a food plant without approval of company executives.

It has to resort to voluntary action by industry, which has its own stake in maintaining the purity of food products. Limited to the use of persuasion, the FDA has issued what it calls "Good Manufacturing Practices" guidelines designed to improve plant sanitation standards and make them uniform.

It claims that between 65 and 80 per cent of plants comply with these suggested guidelines, which are of the most elementary type. For example, they suggest "adequate hand-washing facilities," "effective sanitizing procedures" and "proper storage temperatures."

Plants that produce meat and poultry items are required not only to maintain strict sanitation standards but must pay for the services of government inspectors who watch operations on a continuous basis.

BON VIVANT comes under these requirements when it produces its chicken ala king, lamb stew and other items containing meat or poultry. But there is no government inspection required for its potato soup processing line.

Yet FDA tests later on 214 of the company products, including meat items, showed that up to 2.8 per cent of them had defects such as swollen cans. The acceptable average is .5 per cent.

These results mean that even continuous government supervision was not enough to prevent defective processing methods and potentially dangerous products getting by. The National Canners Association recently inspected the Bon Vivant plant and pronounced it acceptable.

But the FDA had not inspected the plant recently, according to spokesmen for the agency. In fact, the agency does not have enough inspectors to visit even half of the nation's food plants each year and some plants more than once every six years.

INSPECTION IS also hampered by the necessity of getting prior approval of plant executives. Few companies refuse such permission, but those companies may be the ones most in need of plant improvements. Bon Vivant has cooperated with FDA in the past. But the last FDA inspection there was in 1966.

FDA has more power to punish a company than to prevent defective products. It can test items on public sale and can ask the company to recall them at the company's expense. The FDA can also seize and confiscate the items if the company refuses to recall them. But that may be too late to prevent serious illnesses from defects that might have shown up in inspection.

Occasional human error is impossible to avoid. But consumers can be on the alert for swollen cans, a sign that botulinum is present. And they can refuse to buy otherwise defective cans regardless of how cheap they may be.

VOWS SAID — Janet Louise Wilcox became the bride of Kenneth Alan Tucker in a ceremony at St. Sebastian's Catholic Church in Kentfield. She is the daughter of Lincoln Wilcox of Denver, Colo., and the bridegroom's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Irenaeus Nicholson Tucker of Greenbrae.

Some Positive Pollution Checks

There are immediate steps you and your family can take to help control environmental pollution.

A leading in-home sales company marketing home cleaning products, suggests some positive things you can do:

Be willing to pay for adequate sewage treatment and to wait a reasonable time for industry to implement air, water and noise pollution controls. What's worth having is worth working for. Support efforts to improve sewage efficiency and capacity.

CONSERVE WATER: A family of four consumes an average of 200 gallons of water a day, without the consumption of industry.

Run dishwashers and clothes washers only when necessary and only at full capacity.

Keep at a minimum the operation of the garbage disposal.

Water the lawn only in the morning or in the evening when it is not immediately lost through evaporation.

WATER POLLUTION: Use limited or no-phosphate detergents in your washing machine. Measure your detergent according to the manufacturer's label instructions. With many cities enforcing phosphate percentages in detergents, check that your detergent conforms to local ordinances on phosphorus content. Many ordinances require that detergents contain no more than 8.7 per cent phosphorus by weight.

SOLID WASTE POLLUTION: Litter is truly a family affair. About 5.3 pounds of waste are discarded by each person in the U.S. every day. Streets, highways, campsites are littered by nice people who believe good housekeeping is for the other fellow. Here are a few corrective steps to take:

— Maintain refuse cans in good condition with tight-fitting lids.

— Take a litter walk — picking up candy wrappers, etc., as you go along.

— Equip your car or truck with a litter bag and use it.

— Leave picnic grounds and campsites better than you found them.

— Bring your own trash bags just in case the campsite containers are full or none provided. Bring trash home if necessary.

— Never use highways or open areas for disposal of washing machines, furniture and large items. This is becoming common practice, creating eyesores in our finest recreational areas.

AIR POLLUTION: Walk or bicycle instead of driving whenever possible. It's good for the body as well as the environment.

When you take your car, take a friend. Car pools, public transportation and more efficient management of short trips out of the house cut down on the number of cars in the streets.

Investigate anti-pollution devices on new car purchases.

Don't burn leaves. Use them for compost. Start a compost pile for disposal of grass cuttings and vegetable wastes. If you must burn trash, use only a properly designed incinerator.

NOISE POLLUTION: Noise is being labeled as the "new pollutant" by many authorities including the concerned medical profession. Doctors are beginning to label noise in the home, factory and outdoors as a major influence increasing tension and related diseases.

Turn down the volume on your entertainment appliances.

Noise-test appliances, toys, etc. before you buy.

Flattering!

Dieting Tips From Expert

Ada Shinabarger, Michigan State University consumer information specialist, says "The best place to start reducing fat in the dietis with foods that contribute fat and little else."

According to Miss Shinabarger, cutting back on meat, dairy, poultry and other foods in which fat is combined with other essential nutrients can be dangerous. We need the nutrients in these foods to stay healthy. She suggests cutting down on table fats, foods fried in fats, pastries and other rich desserts.

Meat and poultry contain protein and iron, milk contains protein, vitamin A, calcium and riboflavin, all essential to good health.

Dinner Suggestion: Almond Chicken Idea

Sprinkle broiler-fryer halves or pieces with garlic salt and seasoned pepper; dot with butter and bake at 400 degrees, basting occasionally, until tender (about 45 minutes).

Stir slivered or chopped almonds into drippings and return to oven for five minutes or until roasted. Spoon almonds over chicken and serve with buttered rice and peas.

VISITOR TO ECOLOGY CLASS

A strange appearing craft, which resembled a cross between a boat, airplane and raft, skimmed over the waters of Bahia Marina in Novato yesterday morning and rode ashore on a cushion of air to demonstrate its effect on the environment for more than 100 students in the Novato Unified School District's summer school class in conservation. It was the Coast Guard's experimental hovercraft which can move up to 80 miles an hour, operate in shallow water and on land and make rescues in areas unreachable by ordinary craft. Instead Of Rocks, Vegetable Garden

The San Anselmo City Council approved last night in theory the establishment of a flower, plant and vegetable garden at Robson-Harrington Park by countywide contributors.

While the council approved the concept, it sent the proposal to the parks and recreation commission to work out specific items.

Fifteen members from various county organizations attended the meeting to put forth their proposal to plant gardens where weeds, brambles, beer cans and broken glass now stand.

The produce from the vegetable garden will be given to the emergency food program of the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council, Inc., the Food Conspiracy and to people contributing in developing the project.

Mayor Kenneth L. Anderson said, "This is a very attractive offer to the city," while councilmen Warren R. Perry cautioned that the parks and recreation commission should delineate who will be responsible for the care and equipment used for the garden.

The council appointed John L. Dodge, former YMCA counselor, to the vacant post in the parks and recreation commission. He replaces Robert England whose term has expired.

After many questions were raised by Councilman James F. Reed, the council referred to participating attorneys agreements for the city library to have an inter-library loan system with the county and to join the North Bay Cooperative Library System. Reed said the 22-page report seemed to stick the city with expenses it shouldn't have to bear.

The council laid the framework for selecting a consultant and establishing a steering committee to study city and valleywide government sturcture to find out what programs the city can best handle and what programs a valleywide agency should handle. The study is funded by $10,000 budgeted by the city and matching funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The council voted to interview three or four final candidates for consultant with Philip S. Heinecke, planning commission chairman. Members of other governmental agencies in Ross Valley would be invited to listen and ask candidates questions.

The council said the steering committee should include representatives from valley wide governmental agencies and the county.

The San Anselmo City Council also:

NOISE — Put over for rescheduling two ordinances proposed to council for noise abatement. One ordinance outlaws unnecessary noise while the other outlaws noise levels measured on a decibel meter.

APPOINTMENTS — Set July 27 to appoint two members to the Planning Commission and set Aug. 10 to appoint one member to the Marin Economic Opportunity Council and two members to the mini-board.

WORKSHOP — Set Aug. 3 as the first session of a trial workshop for council and citizens to discuss matters of citizen concern.

SIDEWALK — Approved the bid of Ghilotti Brothers Inc. of San Rafael for sidewalks, driveway, curb and gutter work at a price per square foot.

PAYMENT — Approved payment of $3,109 slurry seal contract for work on public works.

FENCE — Approved an encroachment permit for A. Tatum to construct a fence four feet from the back face of the curb at 56 Suffield Avenue.

PLUM TREE — Moved to check out a plum tree asked to be removed from Robson-Harrington Park by Charles Leitzell, public works director, because children have splattered plums on restroom walls. Councilman Lewis W. Stewart said he didn't want the tree cut down while Anderson said, "It is a crime to waste fruit."

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to July 27.

Berkeley Cuts Police Budget

BERKELEY (UPI)—Berkeley's city council, slowed by arguments between radicals and conservatives on how much money the police department should get, is still without a city budget.

In another lengthy meeting Tuesday night, the council trimmed another $20,700 from the proposed $4.2 million police budget, but it took six hours to do so.

Mayor Warren Widener postponed further budget considerations until next week.

Frank Quinn, Hub Recreation Director, Submits Resignation

San Anselmo Recreation Director Frank L. Quinn last night resigned his position after nearly 18 years with the city. He said he was quitting for personal reasons.

Quinn's resignation, in which he termed his employment an "enjoyable and rewarding experience," was submitted to the city council and will take effect Sept. 1.

It follows by two weeks a council budget session at which Quinn, 68, in an emotional appeal for more recreation funds, threatened to quit on the spot.

He was talked out of the decision that time by councilmen who allocated $900 additional to the city's summer recreation program.

At a later budget meeting, disgruntled councilmen harshly criticized the recreation director for promising summer jobs to students without informing the council or having the necessary funds in his budget.

Quinn was appointed recreation director last year when that department was split from the parks department. Previously he held both jobs.

He was originally hired in 1953 as a part-time recreation director. The park maintenance duties were turned over to the public works department because Quinn said the job was too much for one man.

Quinn, whose nickname is Ninny (Italian for "little" since he stands five feet, seven inches), had been active in sports in Marin since his high school days at Tamalpais High School.

He held sway at Tam from 1922-25 and was winner of the school's first "all-star" award in 1923. In those days, to win such an honor, an athlete had to be on three championship teams. As a sophomore, Quinn helped Tam to the Northwestern League championships in baseball, basketball, football and track.

When Quinn was named the recreation department's full time director in 1964, a bitter controversy erupted that threatened to split the Hub city.

One faction wanted a professional recreation director hired full-time and the other wanted to retain Quinn only elevating him from his part-time status.

The council said last night it will consider at its next meeting whether to hire only a recreation director or a joint director for both parks and recreation.

Philadelphia department stores have revised business hours so that they don't open in the mornings until after the traffic rush, and they are closing earlier to beat the homeward bound traffic.

Ways To Check Growth In Petaluma Outlined

Stricter zoning controls and a new eastside parkway were recommended as means of controlling growth last night at the Petaluma City Council meeting.

In joint session with the planning commission, the council heard a status report from planning consultant Sidney Williams on plans to revitalize sections of the city and to gain better control over new growth.

Williams said his plan shows less urban expansion into agricultural areas and calls for more compactness of development and a greater variety of housing types.

He said that if the city monitors growth closely for five years and keeps control over it, school and park facilities can catch up with the rapid residential development of past years.

He recommended a circumferential parkway be located midway between Ely and Old Adobe roads as a new collector street for the eastside. "It would give coherence to the form of Petaluma," Williams said, showing on a map that it would connect with the westside road system for a complete loop of the city.

Councilmen and planners did not disagree with the plan, but questioned the cost of the new four-mile road. Williams said a full parkway plan could cost $500,000, but that the city could use state and federal grants as well as gasoline tax money.

The planning report recommended no further zoning for industrial uses since it estimated that currently zoned land would be sufficient for at least 15 years.

The plan also called for a halt in commercial expansion in the area near Petaluma Plaza as a means of strengthening the downtown core area.

City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer objected to the plan because more sales tax money is needed to keep property taxes within bounds. He said he did not believe that restricting commercial growth in other areas would improve the business climate for downtown stores.

The men generally agreed that if a regional shopping center were to locate in Petaluma it would not be based on the Eastside Plaza because of traffic problems.

The planners also called for a new route to the coast so that travelers need not go through downtown Petaluma. Williams suggested Skillman Lane, north of the city, be improved for that purpose.

The city officials were also urged to rezone some land to provide more specific office district and to think in terms of using flood plain zones as permanent open space and for bicycle trails.

The planners recommended no further expansion of current mobile home parks and said others should be scattered around the city, rather than grouped in one particular area.

The council and commission set another conference with the planning consultant for July 27 at 7:30 p.m.

Installation Of Officers Slated

Donald K. Maloney will be installed Wednesday as Grand Knight of San Rafael Council, Knights of Columbus.

Installation ceremonies will be at 8:15 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall at 166 Tunstead Avenue, San Anselmo.

Others to be installed and their offices are Rev. John F. McGregor, chaplain; Conrad H. Goerl, deputy; Thomas Jeastran, chronicler; Thomas Kelley, recorder; Victor Severietti, financial secretary; Anthony Petcovich, treasurer; Allan A. Trosclair, warden; William Raber, inside guard and James Barrett, outside guard.

Townhouses On Freitas Parkway Are Advanced

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night approved preliminary plans for 107 townhouses on the Manuel T. Freitas Parkway, and also instructed the developers to make plan changes to meet some objections.

On 27 hillside acres near the northwest border of the city, the houses would be clustered on 12 acres and 15 acres would be kept as open space.

The commission asked the developer, Gonzalez and Oberkamper, to move the proposed four-lane street as far away from the back property line of the houses on Butternut Drive as possible and to provide for extension of the street past the 27 acres to the city limits. The commission also asked for a bicycle path beside the street and landscape planting in the area between the street and the back yard line of the houses on Butternut Drive.

Attorney Eugene W. Doyle, representing residents of Butternut Drive, said that the street on a hilltop in back of their homes would present a traffic hazard as the street would be higher than the houses. He also said the cutting of the hill and grading for the street would make the embankments unsafe at the rear of these houses.

The commission asked for a full soils report when precise plans for the development are submitted at some unspecified date.

Kenneth Charshaf of 2 San Mateo Court, representing the residents of that street, said that they did not support the project. "If the development must go through, then we want to protect the 15 acres of open space," he said.

Commissioner Thomas R. O'Toole, acting chairman in the absence of Chairman Joseph J. Gargarino, told Charshaf that it would be up to the city attorney to decide the method of preserving the open spaces. He said it could be done by covenant or outright deed.

Approximately 50 residents from the area attended the meeting, and the few who spoke mainly objected to the width and extension of Freitas Parkway as a four lane street.

O'Toole said that it had been planned as a connector street since 1954 by both Marin County and San Rafael.

Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner told the group that these were only preliminary plans. The commission and San Rafael City Council will each hold public hearings on the precise plans and the Parkway extension, Hotchner said.

The San Rafael Planning Commission also:

RESIGNATION — Received a letter of resignation from Commissioner V. Judson Klein because he has moved out of the city. Hotchner said that only the city council could accept the resignation.

MONTECITO — Instructed Hotchner to notify the owners of the Montecito Shopping Center that they were in violation of the landscaping requirements in their use permit, and to set a date for a hearing on revoking the use permit if landscaping is not brought up to specifications.

APARTMENTS — Approved plans and a use permit for an 18 unit apartment complex at 525 Kerner Boulevard for Barbara Cross, owner. It also approved plans for a six unit apartment at 37 Pacheco Street for J. C. and George Lagomarsino, owners.

MAP — Approved the final map of Picnic Hill condominium at 237 Picnic Avenue to Edward T. Ghirardo, owner.

SUBDIVISIONS — Approved plans for a two lot subdivision at 15 Hazelwood Lane to Ronald Hurt, owner, and a two lot subdivision at Linden Lane and Grand Avenue to Dr. William Eastman, owner.

WAREHOUSE — Approved reconstruction of a 10,890-square-foot warehouse at 121 Jordan Street to Homer Rickards, owner. The original warehouse was destroyed by fire.

STORAGE YARD — Granted a use permit to Joseph Fillippo, owner, to use 23,400-square feet at 2147 Francisco Boulevard for a contractor's storage yard and steel fabrication operation.

POSTPONED — Postponed until July 27 consideration of a four lot subdivision on Makin Grade for Gibraltar Savings and Loan Association and two free standing signs for Edward and Jordan Smith at 4480 Redwood Highway.

When Spanish explorers reached the Peruvian Andes in the 1500s they discovered white potatoes and they called them patata. They probably carried the spuds to Spain and from there they went to Europe.

Moments earlier yesterday, Pederson escaped injury with the aid of his seatbelt when his car rolled over on Highway 101. The California Highway Patrol said Pederson, 20 Pierce Drive, Novato, was driving south on the freeway at 5:40 p.m., when he attempted to change lanes and his car rolled over, ending right side up in the center divider strip.

Island Ferries Service Disputed

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Competing ferryboat operators yesterday disputed whether existing service linking Tiburon and Angel Island is adequate.

The dispute came in the opening hearing by the Public Utilities Commission into an application by Harbor Carriers to extend its services during the April through September tourist season from Tiburon to Berkeley via Angel Island. Harbor Carriers now serves Tiburon commuters and recreational traffic between Tiburon and San Francisco.

Disputing the application was Milton McDonogh, operator of the ferry between Tiburon and Angel Island.

The attorney for Harbor Carriers, John G. Lyons, argued that McDonogh's service was inadequate to meet the demand. He presented evidence that McDonogh had to leave people behind at the Tiburon dock during the past two weekends because his two ferries were filled to capacity.

McDonogh's attorney, William P. Clecak, countered that no one had to wait more than 15 minutes, and said the delays were only at peak hours. Most of the runs, he said, were made with the two vessels only half full, according to Clecak.

McDonogh's position was supported by the City of Tiburon, which wrote the commission that there was no need for additional service to Angel Island. Neither McDonogh nor the city objected to Harbor Carriers serving Berkeley directly.

Closed Meeting

The San Rafael City Council will hold a closed meeting at 8 p.m. today in the city hall to discuss salary negotiations for city employees with the council's negotiator, James H. McCown, city manager.

Third Unit For Death Row Inmates Is Opened

The burgeoning population on San Quentin's death row has forced prison officials to open a third unit to house condemned men.

Associate Warden James W. L. Park said today a group of 15 cells on the second floor of the prison's adjustment center will be partially occupied by death row inmates tomorrow or Friday.

Park said the occupants of the new section will be a select group of inmates who will be permitted outside exercise for the first time. Inmates in the other two Death Row units still will be restricted to exercise within their cell blocks.

He said a small exercise yard adjacent to the adjustment center will be used for 90 minutes of daily exercise by men of the new unit.

The current death row population of 97 is housed in single cells on the top floor of the north block — the original death row — and on the top floor of the adjustment center, an annex opened in 1966.

Park said all of the new cells would not be needed at once, although the addition will give death row a capacity of 105 inmates. Further expansion could be made, if needed, to the remainder of the adjustment center's second floor, Park said.

The death row population has grown steadily in recent years as juries, despite legal challenges of the death penalty, have continued to mete out death sentences.

Thieves Take Tires From Gas Station

Tires and batteries valued at $713 were stolen between July 4 and yesterday from the Union 76 service station at 679 East Blithedale Avenue, Mill Valley police reported today.

They said Station Manager Vincent J. Mulligan said the thieves apparently broke a lock on a tire shed at the rear of the station and took the goods.

PARLIAMENTARY GOOF

Council Hears Protest On 'Bogus' Resolution

An embarrassed Tiburon City Council last night got caught with an officially published notice of a resolution supposedly passed at a meeting that hadn't yet taken place.

The rhubarb came about because of the deadline of a weekly newspaper, according to City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer, who claimed along with the city attorney, Robert I. Conn, that the procedure was "perfectly legal."

At issue was a hearing to be scheduled for residents of Strawberry, Bel Aire, Bay View Heights, Eagle Rock, Pelican Hills and Tiburon Hills to protest annexation to the city.

Apparently, in order to meet the deadline of the Ebbtide, Conn delivered to the weekly newspaper last Friday a legal notice saying that the council had adopted a resolution last night setting the hearing for July 28 by a 4-to-0 vote.

According to the notice "approved" at the imaginary meeting, only Councilman Branwell D. Fanning was absent, whereas at last night's flesh-and-blood meeting, both Fanning and Mayor Dennis T. Rice were absent.

Although the paper has a dateline of today, copies of it came out yesterday and were being waved about in the council chambers by angry residents of the areas proposed for annexation.

A Strawberry resident asked if the resolution had been "voted on in private," and a woman from Eagle Rock said that "moral structure was sadly lacking" on the council.

Two of the three councilmen present last night decided to rerun the notice after voting to set the hearing first for Aug. 9 and later in the evening for Aug. 4.

Councilman Albert H. Sennett voted against the second resolution, saying "no amount of protestations ... are going to convince certain people that there is anything but a conspiracy under way."

In other action last night the council voted to refund to the developer of the subdivision Meadowhill, $2,600 he had paid for a parks and recreation fee because of an error in computing the fee.

At the end of last night's meeting, Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood announced that she had reconsidered her decision of last month to resign and that she intended to complete her term but not run for reelection next year.

The Tiburon City Council also:

WALKWAYS — Put over to the Aug. 23 meeting a discussion of the paving of paths in the Meadowhill subdivision.

APPOINTMENT — Reappointed F. G. Knight to the parks and recreation commission.

RECYCLING — Heard a report on the Belvedere-Tiburon recycling depot by Albert Aramburu, who said that the depot had only a $275 loss after six months of operation and that a fence could solve many of the depot's problems.

SALARIES — Formally adopted a salary schedule granting city employees 4 per cent across-the-board raises.

LEASE — Signed a new lease for the city hall with Main Street Properties for $700 a month.

Budget For Transit District Is Adopted

Marin County Transit District directors yesterday adopted a $1,065,890 budget for the new fiscal year and continued the district's maximum property tax rate of 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Of the total budget, $723,270 was earmarked for a reserve to be used possibly for purchase of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way and for expansion of the Golden Gate Bridge District's intracounty bus service.

Carryover funds from last fiscal year totaled $744,203, and revenue from the property tax will total $321,687 this fiscal year. The same tax rate raised $297,080 last year before increased assessment ratios and valuations.

The new budget's largest category of expenses was $324,920 for contractual services. This included $150,000 to subsidize the bridge district's intracounty bus service to start in December, $75,000 for demonstration projects by Marin Transit Systems Inc., $54,000 for the county's balanced transportation study, $25,000 for a full-time general manager, $12,480 for the acting general manager and $8,440 for a secretary-stenographer.

The directors postponed discussion of whether to have a full-time general manager, but included the $25,000 appropriation for one to cover the anticipated cost. Several directors, however, indicated their opposition to returning to a full-time manager now that the bridge district will be running transit operations.

James B. Robertson, a traffic engineer from the Department of Public Works with a background in transportation, has been acting general manager. Forty per cent of his salary is paid by the transit district and 60 per cent by the department to reflect their sharing of his time.

Robertson proposed no increase in the staff of two, himself and one secretary-stenographer.

The League of Women Voters of Central Marin has urged his replacement with a full-time manager.

District directors also supported amendment of pending state legislation to empower the bridge district to purchase surplus railroad rights-of-way for transit purposes. The railroad reportedly is about to try again to abandon its Sausalito line, long marked for transit use.

They postponed action on a plea from William Melbern, operator of the Airport Limousine Service, for assistance in his service to San Francisco Airport. Robertson suggested the district subsidize advertising the service.

Marinite To Appear For Bad Checks

Joseph E. Moser, 52, of 213 Montego Key, Bel Marin Keys, was scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court today on suspicion of passing checks with insufficient funds.

Moser was arrested at his home by Novato police, booked at the Marin County Jail and released when he posted $315 bail. Police said he passed 10 checks in the city, totaling about $200.

Ban On New Building Considered

A ban on new construction in the entire Ross Valley, from San Francisco Bay westward through Fairfax, will be considered Tuesday by a hearing panel of the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The hearing will be at 2 p.m. in Mill Valley City Hall.

The three-member panel will report its recommendation to the full board for its action on July 22.

The ban would apply to Corte Madera, Larkspur, Greenbrae, Kentfield, Kent Woodlands, Ross, San Anselmo, Fairfax and Sleepy Hollow. One-quarter of the county's population lives in the area, served by the Ross Valley Sanitary District.

The district, charged with violating orders by the regional board, thus faces the same ban imposed by the board last month on the City of Mill Valley and Richardson Bay Sanitary District. The ban would be to prevent further pollution pending improvements.

Chairman of the panel will be Mrs. Carl H. Auer of San Francisco. Other panelists will be board members William C. Weber of San Mateo and Dr. William F. Upton of San Rafael.

Tam Fire Session

Directors of the Tamalpais Fire Protection District will hold a special closed meeting at 8 p.m. today at the Tamalpais Community Services District Office, 305 Bell Lane, to consider hiring an employee, according to Byron O. Boulware, chairman.

Don't Blame The Light For What It Exposes

When city, district or county board members take it upon themselves to reach decisions in secret "for the good of the people," they would do well to first consider some of the words of U.S. Supreme Court justices in their 6-3 decision freeing the press to publish "secrets" from a history of U.S. involvement in Vietnam prepared for the Pentagon.

The justices cited legal reasons for denying the executive department the right of injunction against the press. But some of them went farther to recall the reasons for the First Amendment to the Constitution itself. And it applies all down the line — not just in Washington.

FOR INSTANCE, Justice Hugo L. Black:

"In the First Amendment the Founding Fathers gave the free press the protection it must have to fulfill its essential role in our democracy. The press was to serve the governed, not the governors . . . The press was protected so that it could bare the secrets of government and inform the people . . . In revealing the workings of government that led to the Vietnam War, the newspapers nobly did precisely that which the founders hoped and trusted they would do."

And further, said Justice Black:

"Secrecy in government is fundamentally anti-democratic, perpetuating bureaucratic errors. Open debate and discussion of public issues are vital to our national health."

JUSTICE POTTER STEWART, concurring, went farther, hitting at the bureaucratic practice of stamping "secret" on anything that may sometime prove embarrassing.

"I should suppose," he wrote, "that moral, political and practical considerations would dictate that a very first principle . . . would be an insistence upon avoiding secrecy for its own sake. For when everything is classified, then nothing is classified, and the system becomes one to be disregarded by the cynical or careless and to be manipulated by those intent on self-protection of self-promotion."

In this, Justice Stewart touched the probable reason for much of the executive department's anxiety over the publication of a history of events running back through four administrations. For, although the government held publication of the Pentagon documents threatened "grave and irreparable" injury to the public interest, much of its alarm no doubt was because such publication threatened grave — and possibly irreparable — injury to the reputations of a series of men who had made decisions in secret, and then had misled the public as to what those decisions were.

THE NUB of the case was put a long time ago by a President of the United States, much more succinctly and neatly than the ringing pronouncements of the justices. It was President Theodore Roosevelt who said:

"If trouble comes from having the light turned on, remember it is not really due to the light but to the misconduct which is exposed."

That, too, is something for all officials and bureaucrats — big and small — to remember.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Zenger Laid The Foundation For Times, Post, And The Rest

By FRED W. KLINE

SACRAMENTO (CNS — A very important historical figure has been completely ignored in all those discussions of freedom of the press which have been taking place during the past few weeks.

"The right of exposing arbitrary power by speaking and writing the truth" was established for the press in a firm manner before the American Revolution, when a jury in 1735 allowed a New York printer, John Peter Zenger, to print articles in conflict with the colonial government.

Ever since, it has been really quite simple to obtain agreement from public officials or even private persons of the ethical truth of the concept that no law should be made which could be considered "abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press, or of the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grivances."

THIS SIMPLE agreement on press freedom usually can be expected to hold right up until the persons so much in favor of press freedom have a little self-interest item facing the gentlemen of the Fourth Estate. In fact, you will find a direct gauge measured on a scale between fearless and irresponsible journalism in relation to the amount of innocent little evasive substance necessary to lightly cover over some minor insignficant violation of public trust.

President John Adams was the first major political figure to find a really efficient means of handling a troublesome press. He had a law passed called the Alien and Sedition Act of 1798, which gave him the right to throw offending journalists into jail. This system failed when the dirty scroundels were able to publish their offensive journals with the aid of equally base acquaintances.

This perfectly great tool for bureaucrats was tossed out by Thomas Jefferson and his friend James Madison when they drafted the Kentucky and Virginia resolutions. These documents established the "right of freely examining public charters and measures" and further established the concept that any law "which does abridge the freedom of the press, is not law, but is altogether void and of no effect."

THE REAL CLINCHER came when journalists made refusal to being pushed around by politicians, mob rule, or even the PTA president a virtue. William Lloyd Garrison set the example for the whole journalism profession in 1835. A lynch mob which dragged him through the streets of Boston in an attempt to quiet an objectionable view could not errrorize him into stopping a single issue.

Garrison wrote: "I am aware that many object to the severity of my language. On this subject I do not wish to think or speak or write with moderation. Urge me not to use moderation in a cause like the present. I am in earnest. I will not equivocate, I will not excuse, I will not retreat a single inch, and I will be heard."

Thus it has always been that the right of a free press is a cornerstone of our nation. It is not just something to satisfy the whim of a young eager reporter or caprice of a publisher. It is, rather, the right and obligation of the American press to represent every single citizen of the land. The right was put in the Constitution in order that the people would be given a guarantee to know what their government was doing.

THIS RIGHT to report and comment freely serves as an essential check upon government, which tends to assume more and more authority. We must all realize that the free press combats the development of arbitary power by the right to criticize freely the conduct of public men. Corruption in public office thrives in secrecy.

No president, no governor, no mayor, no school board or insignificant town has a right to avoid public observation at such time as he decides on a public life.

The concept of freedom of press has evolved to mean an absence of definite restrictions for the good of all the people.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Fairfax Protesters Not Against Growth

The headline of the news item in The Independent-Journal on July 7, "Fairfax Unit Announces Plans to Fight Growth," is totally misleading. We are fully in accord with the master plan, drawn up by Albert Solnit, chief of advanced planning for Marin County. This plan was approved by the Fairfax Planning Commission on Jan. 10, 1968. We approve a natural growth of population, but we cannot accept a rapid increase that will overburden our facilities and increase our taxes.

A recently posted sign reads "Marin Town and Country Open for Final Year." It is our belief that the people of Fairfax value this unique area deeply enough to take whatever steps are necessary to save it from destruction. Now is the time to let the Fairfax City Council know what you think about it.

School Residence Voting Precedent

One side issue of registering 18-year-olds in California to vote has been the matter of whether a student should vote at his school residence or in the district in which his parents live. The claim is that it is hard to know where to register them for there is no precedent.

I know of one near-precedent. In the spring of 1952, a group of married veterans at the University of Cincinnati including Mrs. Durr and myself attempted to register in Cincinnati. Some of us were local and some out-of-towners. The issue was complicated because the university was collecting non-resident tuition from all veterans even if they lived across the street. We finally won our point by getting two of the local papers interested in such ludicrous situations as people being "residents" in towns their parents had moved to after they had started to college and which they had never seen. Further, they were by that time heads of their own families.

The precedent is not exact. All the people in this situation were married, all over 21, and most were parents. Also, it was in Ohio, not California. But, we did not stage a radical "take-over" of Cincinnati, most of us (but not all) voted for Eisenhower.

Time To Grow Up And Outlaw Fireworks

The Fourth of July has again come and gone. After 195 years of celebrating this country's birthday, we still have yet to learn a responsible and meaningful way of wishing our country well on this occasion, the idiotic practice of getting one's jollys by shooting off fireworks and firecrackers has gone far enough. it is time for the sale and possession of fireworks and firecrackers to the general public be outlawed.

Every year numerous fires are started by careless persons who set off fireworks with little knowledge of what kind of explosive they are really dealing with. More tragically, is the bitter fact that each year hundreds of children and adults are blinded or mutilated by these harmful explosives and by their own stupidity. People would be better off to spend the evening of the Fourth of July at home contemplating this country's Independence. That's where it's really at. It's not outside, in the streets, blowing some little kid's hand off or perhaps bliding yourself or someone else for life.

This country is 195 years old. Don't you think it's time its citizens grew up? I do, but I think they need a little help from our lawmakers. And that help is to outlaw the sale and possession of firecrackers and fireworks now.

Bias In Column On Medi-Cal Suit

Whether intentionally or through ignorance, Rus Walton, in a recent I-J column, gave a distorted "analysis" of the recent court decision that the Department of Health Care Services' cutbacks in the Medi-Cal program were illegal. Since Mr. Walton is a former member of Governor Reagan's administration, bias must be suspected in his comments.

Mr. Walton notes that the "hard-headed" director of California's Department of Health Care Services on Dec. 15, 1970, cut Medi-Cal fees and service "as an emergency measure" and that he consequently was "hauled into court" by California Medical Association and others who "complained that the cuts were unnecessary and illegal" and that he "should have held public hearings on the reductions."

What Mr. Walton failed to reveal is that such hearings are required by law, and that the CMA suit was over cutbacks in health services needed by the poor, and had absolutely nothing to do with the reduced fees paid to doctors, dentists, and other providers. And, he quickly dismissed the fact that the court upheld CMA and its associates in the suit on every point. Chances are the judge was better qualified than Mr. Walton to render a considered judgment on the matter . . .

In short, Mr. Walton's column was slanted in favor of the director of health care services and against the Medi-Cal patients who were forced to forego needed health care services — and against fact, truth and accuracy.

Questions Raised By Bennett Case

The recent (William M.) Bennett case raises more questions than it answered. Was the availability of a group of personal friends of Bennett as witnesses, the reason why the second arrest was tried first? Why the panel discussion of the case on KTIM and a front-page report of it in the I-J, with a repeat of the program scheduled in advance of the trial of the first arrest? Is the outcome of the second arrest now being used to create a basis for a change of venue or dismissal of the first arrest?

By what kind of logic does (Judge Robert A.) Smallman's handling of the case demonstrate confidence in the validity of the jury system? Is that same kind of logic responsible for his determination of the weight of evidence?

If the jury verdict had been allowed to stand, could not Bennett's attorney have appealed it? Is it not possible that in such case we might ultimately have found out just who was lying?

If this was a trumped-up case as implied by reversal of the jury verdict, were not the policemen and the doctor at Marin General guilty of perjury? According to the I-J, Smallman has subsequently convicted two or three defendants who were also arrested in Sausalito, on similar charges. If the police are not to be believed, should not these cases also have been dismised? Even if the individuals involved pleaded guilty, isn't it possible that they did so through fear, stupidity or simply lack of witnesses?

Does not the handling of this case tend to clinch the claim by minority groups, that the rich and influential can get off easy while the poor and unimportant get convicted?

Only two points were really answered. Smallman had the legal authority to reverse the jury's verdict and mere knowledge of the law does not necessarily produce common sense and good judgment.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

McCloskey In Peck Of Trouble In Home California District

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. — Rep. Paul McCloskey, the California Republican who is out to derail President Nixon, may well end up derailing himself right out of Congress.

One thing is evident: McCloskey may look like a big shot in Washington by showering his denunciations on the President and United States for war crimes in Vietnam, but he doesn't look the same here in his home district.

To the extreme doves and others on the New Left who want to rush all U.S. forces out of Vietnam regardless of the consequences, Representative McCloskey may appear to be an overnight hero, but to most of his constituents here in California's 11th Congressional District, he looms quite differently.

He appears like somebody they wish they hadn't elected and aim to defeat in next year's GOP primary.

Thus while McCloskey is busy with his dump-Nixon and elect-McCloskey-President campaign, Republican leaders in this 11th District are now getting busy with their re-elect-Nixon and dump-McCloskey-as-congressman campaign.

THIS ISN'T JUST speculation nor wishful thinking. There is evidence that the anti-McCloskey forces are gaining strength — and mean business.

The California Republican Assembly has openly censured McCloskey and urged that he take himself out of the Republican Party.

Recently, planning a major rally in the heart of his own district, members of the CRA voted not to invite McCloskey as a speaker. Instead they deliberately chose Rep. Charles Gubser of the neighboring 10th District because they knew Gubser was a firm supporter of the President's steady Vietnam withdrawal program and because they were confident he would speak out against McCloskey's actions and accusations.

He did. And then some.

THESE ARE THE EARLY signals showing that McCloskey is in trouble where it hurts — in his home congressional district — and it is probable that his trouble is going to grow.

Congressman Gubser, usually a moderate and mild-spoken man, didn't hold anything back and the Republican voters here showed they liked it.

Gubser told them that in his view McCloskey was practicing "McCarthyism" by making unproved charges against the United States and he saw McCarthyism turning into "McCloskeyism."

"When any one," Gubser declared at the CRA rally in nearby Burlingame, "reaches the point where he accuses his own country of engaging in a policy of genocide and indiscriminate bombing of civilians in Laos, when he says this nation is guilty of war crimes like those for which the Nuremburg trials decreed the penalty of death — this is a disservice to our nation, to the two and one-half million young men who served in Southeast Asia, and to the 50,000 men who have given their lives there."

PROBABLY FEW realize that McCloskey was a dedicated all-out, bomb-nearly-everything hawk on the eve of the 1968 GOP primary when he ran against Shirley Temple Black. He told people I have talked with that the United States ought to pour all the forces into Vietnam needed to win, ought to bomb all the infiltration routes and destroy Haiphong as a useable harbor, whatever it might do to Russian and British ships and crewmen.

He changed this stance when friends told him he couldn't possibly get elected with such a campaign.

In New Hampshire a few days ago he said that he is "gradually moving toward the feeling I would like to be President."

Here in his 11th District of California, his constituents are less gradually "moving toward the feeling" they would like to see him neither President nor congressman.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

Most Tailgate Murderers Don't Need To Carry Guns

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — The people in and around this capital are much less disturbed today about the world-famous Pentagon papers than they are about the senseless shooting of a Vietnam-bound naval officer and his son in what the papers call the "tailgate murders." The two were killed when the lieutenant commander stepped out of his car to admonish a smart-aleck who drove too close behind him and then cut dangerously in front of him — and the smart-aleck happened to be packing a .38 pistol.

The incident has rekindled in some offices and households those old arguments about race which had lain mostly quiet during this hot summer (although the nonracial nature of the shooting shows in the fact that the information leading to arrest of the black defendant came from other black citizens). It also has our more emotional firearms fans shouting again that they should be free to arm themselves against the day of eventual civil war, and gun control advocates swearing just as intensely that this is yet another example of why handguns should be outlawed.

I JOIN THE LATTER view about guns. I also believe the scrape took place to start with not because the victims were white and the murderer was black, but instead because he was one of a class of hundreds of thousands of Americans who toy around the edges of murder every time they slip behind a steering wheel.

Very few of them carry or even possess guns. Many of them are unconscious of what they are going — while others are arrogant about it, and dare anybody to challenge them. The police could clamp down on their crimes overnight, but unaccountably refuse to do so.

These thousands of criminals are tailgaters, operating on every highway in the United States. They are particularly dangerous in these summer months of high-speed freeway driving, of cars loaded with kids and vacation gear, of long traveling days, fatigue and accompanying loss of alertness. But the tailgater is always there, at every season.

MORE OFTEN than not, he drives a big car. There must be a statistical correlation between length of car and aggressiveness of driving. For each surplus foot of automobile, you can assume approximately 5 per cent of added arrogance behind the wheel. For each extra symbol of power, such as jacked-up rear end, gutted muffler and oversized tires, add another 5 per cent.

The psychology seems to be that anybody who has spent a foolish amount of money on an automobile has an automatic right to more of the highway than sensible people who prefer to drive normal cars and put their cash balance into things that matter.

Thus, when you are in a 70 m.p.h. zone passing other cars on your right, the tailgater rushes up behind you and starts flashing his lights in your mirrror for you to get out of his way immediately — no matter that you are already driving on the speed limit and there is nowhere for you to go. So there he sits, holding 70 and furious because he can't resume 85, blinking his lights, distracting you in traffic, riding six feet off your rear bumper. A blowout, a dog in the road, any kind of mechanical malfunction and you and he both will be dead, along with your passengers and the unlucky people in the lane alongside.

THE RULE OF THUMB, and the law in most states, is that safe driving means allowing one car length of space between yourself and the car ahead for each 10 miles of speed — under good weather conditions. By this measure, a man wheeling a 20-foot monster at 70 m.p.h. should be 140 feet back. But try to find a trooper enforcing that rule.

If you yourself try to observe it, some lane-jumper will whip around you and into the space ahead so that you have a choice of tailgating him or dropping back to a safe distance, at which point still another congenital tailgater will repeat the process.

Not all of these fools are adolescent hot-rodders, although the operators of souped-up machines are the ones who tailgate most intentionally and make the most noise about it. Overweight cigar-smokers are also common offenders — cigars go with long cars and express best the tailgater's attitude of "Get out of my way, you underprivileged yokel; don't you recognize a big-shot's car when you see one?"

BUT A HIGH proportion of offenders also are just your average oblivious drivers, in a hurry to get home and with no apparent conception of what happens to the occupants of two two-ton cars that smash together.

They operate not only on the interstates, but also on winding mountain roads. Their crime is one of the most visible and dangerous on the books, but police virtually never make arrests for it. Instead they busy themselves ticketing housewives for parking within 40 feet of intersections and other einous offenses — until a smash-up occurs, when they finally charge one driver with "following too closely."

The trouble is that too often the drivers involved are at the morgue — just as dead as if they were shot with a .38 pistol.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By GEORGE NEVIN

There's Already County-Wide Bicycle Registration Program

As any reporter can attest, some stories refuse to die.

Most articles have a beginning, a middle and a definite end. The reporter hears of the story, does one or more interviews, writes it and that's that.

There are exceptions, though. Sometimes a story will stay alive because people call the reporter to make additions to it. Sometimes it turns out there are a lot of things to add.

This was the case with a piece I did recently on the alarming rate of bicycle thefts in Marin. I made the point—already suspected by many—that bike thefts were getting to be big business.

The story appeared, and my telephone hasn't stopped ringing since.

THE FIRST CALL I got was from John W. Jaeger, chief of the Belvedere Police Department. When he began the conversation with, "I've got a bone to pick with you," I got the feeling—don't ask me how—that I'd done something wrong.

I had. I said in the story that Belvedere has no bicycle registration system. That's wrong. It does.

Jaeger, whom I quoted liberally in the story, said many Belvedere residents read the article and called him to demand why he, such a strong advocate of bike theft prevention, doesn't insist on a registration program in Belvedere.

We, Belvedere already has one, and I hope all its citizens take their bicycles down to city hall and register them. This makes stolen or lost bikes much easier to return to their owners.

I ALSO GOT a call from the Peter Pan Chapter of the Children's Home Society, which has been registering bicycles countywide since 1967.

The chapter maintains a 24-hour switchboard for owners to report thefts and finders to call when they discover an abandoned bike. Avrill Pierce of Greenbrae, last year's licensing chairman, said 50 bicycles were returned to their owners last year.

For a $1 fee, the owner gets a decal to be placed on the bike which gives an identification number and a telephone number to call if the bike is found.

Mrs. Pierce said her group works with Parent-Teacher Associations at almost every school in Marin and has registered in excess of 3,000 bicycles—surely only a fraction of Marin's total—since 1967. The license is good for two years.

Schemes for the future uniform registration of bikes in Marin—including a countywide system and inclusion of bicycles in the computerized stolen car registry run by police—exist in the minds of many, but until one of these materializes the Children's Home Society system is the closest thing to a licensing program for all of Marin.

Innocent Plea Entered On Several Counts

Robert Malcolm Potter, 28, of San Rafael, has pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court to three felony charges and two misdemeanors.

Jury trial was set for the week of Sept. 20.

Potter is accused of felony counts of possessing marijuana for sale, possessing tear gas and battery on a police officer, and misdemeanor counts of reckless driving and carrying a loaded firearm in public.

He was arrested Feb. 25 when Sausalito police allegedly saw him speeding on Bridgeway. Police said Potter kicked and punched three officers when they tried to arrest him.

A loaded pistol and 15 pounds of suspected hashish were found in the car, police said.

A law making patents liable for fines and even jail sentences for failing to keep a tight reign on children has been passed by the city of Baton Rouge, La.

Rules Committee Approves Study Of San Quentin

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly Rules Committee yesterday approved a resolution ordering a study to determine whether San Quentin Prison should be renovated or closed down because of old age.

The measure by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, was unanimously sent to the Ways and Means Committee.

Bagley told the panel that the famous prison perhaps no longer meets modern correction demands for the incarceration of inmates.

He said a new prison may have to be built. He said the $5,000 initial study should decide also whether a new prison should be constructed at the present site off San Francisco Bay or in a rural area.

Union Shop For Teachers, Do They Really Want It?

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

"Any teacher who is not a member of the association in good standing . . . shall as a condition of employment pay as a fee to the association an equal amount to the membership dues payable to the association, the NEA and the CTA . . . In the event that a teacher shall not pay such a fee directly to the association or authorize payment through payroll deductions, the board shall immediately cause the termination of such teacher."

The language is from a collective bargaining contract for Los Angeles city schools proposed by Roger Kuhn, California Teachers Association regional director in Los Angeles. The "association" to which it refers is United Teachers of Los Angeles, which was created by merger of the locals of the CTA and the AFL-CIO California Federation of Teachers. Kuhn had been an American Federation of Teachers organizer before he was hired late in 1969 by CTA, which announced with pride that he was a "veteran of 20 strikes and strike buildups."

REQUIREMENT THAT teachers pay dues whether or not they choose to join an organization was given further backing last month by CTA's State Council of Education, the organization's policy-making body.

The council approved a requirement that all CTA members also must pay dues to their local CTA chapter and to the National Education Assoication, CTA's parent body. This was coupled with a hike in CTA dues from $38 to $77 per year.

AGENCY SHOP contracts have been declared a major negotiating goal by NEA. Its strategy is to get state laws calling for them. It has been successful in several states, and some teachers as a consequence have found themselves out of jobs because they refused to pay union dues.

Although NEA describes itself as a "voluntary, independent" organization, union shop or "agency shop" philosophy is not new to it. A platform adopted at its 1966 national convention called in one article for "recognition of the right of all educators to join organizations of their own choosing," but in another urged: "Unified professional dues in each state — a single fee to be collected by the local education association to cover local, state and national dues." It is a short step from that to the checkoff, the agency shop, and loss of employment for refusal to pay union dues.

IN URGING legislation to require "agency shop" conditions in the public schools, NEA and its state affiliates — including CTA — claim to represent the great majority of teachers. Their claim is given substance by figures showing that the great majority belong to their organizations.

This majority membership, however, may not be entirely voluntary.

A California State Senate fact-finding committee in 1965 reported that the right of California public school teachers to join or refuse to join employee organizations of their own choosing was "being interfered with, abridged, and violated on a widespread basis throughout the state." It pointed to CTA as the culprit, citing instances where membership in CTA and its local chapters were made conditions of employment.

IN 1969, Instructor magazine, which circulates primarily to elementary school teachers, took a poll to try to find out what teachers themselves think about compulsory membership (the "agency shop"). It reported the results as follows:

Of the teachers polled, 57.5 per cent were opposed to being required to join a local teacher organization; 52.5 per cent rejected compulsory membership in a state organization, and 67.5 per cent were against being forced to join a national organization.

The mammoth teacher organizations — both "voluntary" NEA and admittedly labor union AFT — push for the union shop "on behalf of the teachers." But if the Instructor's poll is to be credited, they do not speak for a majority.

Crackdown On Sicilian Mafia

PALERMO, Sicily (UPI)— Authorities announced a nationwide crackdown today on the Sicilian Mafia and said police raids in several cities had netted dozens of suspects.

Several dozen Mafia suspects were rounded up, police said, and were charged with criminal conspiracy. All suspects were being transferred to Palermo, they said.

The operation came one day after a government anti-Mafia commission released a long awaited report on the Sicilian underworld which named 10 reputed Mafia chiefs and suggested Sicilian authorities were lax in dealing with organized crime.

Panel To Meet

The Nicasio School District board will discuss the possibility of health insurance for district employees at a meeting at 8 p.m. today at the school. The board is also slated to adopt a $58,000 budget for 1971-72.

Agnew, Animals Meet In Jungle

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI)— Vice President Spiro T. Agnew fulfilled a boyhood dream today, watching elephant, buffalo and other wild animals in their natural habitat. He then returned to Nairobi after his night in the jungle.

The vice president, on a 10-nation tour, had no official functions scheduled until his departure Thursday for the Congo, Kinshasa, where his African tour ends.

Agnew spent the night at the Treetops hotel, 130 miles away from Nairobi in the Aberdare Mountains. The unique hotel is built in trees overlooking a waterhole where wild animals flock to drink and lick the salt cakes put there for them.

The vice president told a reception in Nairobi Monday the journey fulfilled a boyhood dream of his generation —a safari in Africa.

His jaunt to the jungle came shortly after he was made an authentic African elder. President Jomo Kenyatta ceremoniously installed him Tuesday by draping a black-and-white striped monkey-skin robe over his shoulders.

Agnew's visit to Kenya has been relaxed, with no problems between the two nations to be discussed. Kenyatta met privately with Agnew for only 15 minutes —the brevity of their encounter underlining the lack of problems. Kenya is the second stop on the African leg of his tour, with Ethiopia behind him and the Congo on the agenda for Thursday.

When Agnew arrived at "Treetops" Tuesday night, his first encounter was with a lone bull elephant which sauntered by about 70 yards from his landrover. A baboon sat on a fire hose on the roof of the hotel, eyeing the vica president as Agnew used vinoculars for a sweep of the jungle in the fading light.

Two professional hunters with rifles stood guard over the Agnew party. They are allowed to fire only if necessary since "Treetops" is in a game preserve.

The vice president dined overlooking the waterhole as floodlights picked up the animals below: buffalo, elephants, antelope rhinos, hippos and many other animals.

Agnew already has visited Asia and the Middle East and after the Congo plans to go to Portugal, Morocco and Spain before returning to the United States July 26.

Space Shuttle Pact Is Hailed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke has hailed the awarding of a $500 million contract to the Rocketdyne Division of North American Rockwell Corp. of Canoga Park to build engines for the space shuttle program.

"This will help California in its efforts to recover from a depressed economy," Reinecke said in a statement Tuesday.

Rockwell said that when production of the engines reaches its peak about 2,000 workers will be added to its Rocketdyne payroll.

Extra Pay For Coleman Voted, 3-2

The Cotati School District board last night granted a month's vacation pay to former schools Supt. Duncan A. Coleman.

The board balked at the pay request two weeks ago, but approved it on a 3-2 vote last night. Bart C. Mitchell and Maurice Fredericks dissented.

Former board member Lucian Libarle told the board that Coleman had taken over the position on short notice three years ago and did not have a chance to take his normal vacation. Libarle said the former board made an informal agreement with him to take the vacation time later.

Although the Sonoma County Counsel's Office said the verbal agreement could be binding, Mitchell and Fredericks said they could not agree to the extra pay. Coleman left the superintendents job on June 30.

The board also elected Bart C. Mitchell as board president and Andrew Camozzi as clerk; approved the request of the citizens advisory committee to increase its membership from nine to 12 members, and granted a one-year study leave to Marianne Burbank, a kindergarten teacher at Cotati School.

For the first time in more than a decade, brown pelicans have been born in Louisiana, reviving hopes the bird will not become extinct.

Study Asked On Waterfront Policy

The Corte Madera Planning Commission last night directed its staff to begin review of town ordinances and draft recommendations for controlling waterfront development.

Of concern to the commission, according to Arthur N. Morrison, town engineer, is developers' practice of including underwater-property footage figures in development requests.

The practice allows developers to build larger developments on dry land portions of their property since development size is based on a ratio of total land size.

The matter will come before the commission again at its next regular meeting, Aug. 9.

On other matters, the commission was told no reply had been received to its letter to Bianco Cadillac ordering the auto agency's illegal parking lot be reviewed by the town's board of design.

The commission also set Aug. 9 for a public hearing on its proposed ordinance governing appointments to boards and commissions.

The commission, Morrison said, would like to reduce the number of planning commissioners now servicing on the board of design and the board of adjustments. The ordinance proposes only one serve on each board. Two currently serve on each board.

Man Sentenced In Flag Incident

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Soni Louis Ali, 28, of La Puente, who disrupted a William F. Buckley symposium by ripping up a small American flag, pleaded guilty to a charge of disturbing the peace Tuesday.

Municipal Court Judge Robert J. Cooney accepted the plea and dismissed a charge of desecrating the flag on a motion by the city attorney's office.

The judge sentenced Ali to 10 days in the county jail with a stay of sentence until Sept. 19 and placed him on three years' probation.

Bus Route To Stinson Is Granted

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Temporary permission to extend its routes to Stinson Beach this year was granted to a subsidiary of Marin Transit Systems yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission.

In an interim opinion, however, the commission also decided a public hearing would be needed if the company wants the temporary authority extended beyond this year. Both the Golden Gate Bridge District and Marin County Transit District have objected to extending the service beyond this year because the bridge district's fleet of 152 buses will start operating by December.

Officials of both districts have objected that the Marin City-based company could acquire competitive vested rights to the route if granted a permanent permit by the commission.

One of the two new midday seasonal routes will provide a shuttle service between Tiburon, Muir Beach and Stinson Beach via Shoreline Highway. The other would serve the route from Sausalito.

Service, which must be started within 30 days under the temporary PUC permit, will be provided daily to Oct. 1, with weekend service to Nov. 1 Fares will be $1.25 one way and $2.50 round trip for adults and $1 one way and $2 round trip for children under 12.

Sewer Tax Rate Cut Seen

The Novato Sanitary District board has received a preliminary operating budget of $318,530 1971-72, up $30,112 from last year.

The proposed budget is expected to boost the operating tax rate one cent, but the overall tax rate including bond redemption is slated to drop, according to Dist. Mgr. Charles A. Joseph.

In the Novato plant zone, which includes most of the district, the overall rate is expected to drop from 71.5 to 40 cents per $100 assessed valuation, Joseph reported.

The estimate of the breakdown is 32.5 cents for operating, 3.5 cents toward repayment of the 1970 bonds and 4 cents toward retirement of 1955 bonds.

Joseph said the overall rate will drop because the district will have eliminated the 35 cent rate levied this year for capital improvements.

The board, which received the budget Monday night, will consider adopting it at 6 p.m. July 22 at the North Marin County Water District office, Joseph said.

In the area outside the Novato plant zone where residents aren't paying for the 1955 bonds, the overall rate is expected to drop from 66.5 to 36 cents.

Directors haven't taken any action on salary increases, but Joseph said the budget could accommodate up to a 5 per cent raise without changing the expected tax rate.

He estimated that the district's assessed valuation has increased 16.7 per cent, including the boost in the assessment ratio from 23 to 25 per cent of market value.

The capital improvement fund, financed through connection charges, totals $142,400 with the major project to be improvement to the Marin Village pump station, Joseph said.

The Novato Sanitary District board also:

REGIONAL AGENCY — Supported passage of AB2687 which would create a Bay Area sewage services agency, whose main funtion would be planning for major collection and disposal of sewage. Joseph described the bill as the "most acceptable" of several that have been proposed for regional planning.

MARIN VILLAGE — Agreed to seek bids on major improvements and expansion of the Marin Village pump station, off South Novato Boulevard, north of Rowland Boulevard, estimated to cost $80,000, at the same time bids are received on the Olive Street pump station, next January.

Angel Park Study Bill Advanced

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to subject plans for Angel Island State Park to review by a new 19-member council has cleared its first legislative hurdle.

The Senate Natural Resources and Wildlife Committee, after weakening the council by deleting its veto power and making it merely advisory, endorsed the bill Monday and sent it to the finance committee.

The author, Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, also amended his bill (SB 1587) to cut the council's appropriation from $250,000 to $30,000, and to make citizens from all nine Bay Area counties eligible for appointment to the council. His measure previously limited eligibility to residents of Marin and San Francisco.

Marks argued that the council would give citizens "a greater opportunity to be heard" on plans to develop and improve the park.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Longer Life Means More Illness, But Aging, Disease Not The Same

By definition, anyone 10 years older than you are is old. This applies to the 15-year-old as well as to those who are 55. I do not subscribe to the idea that after 65, age does not matter and beyond this everyone is ancient.

It was Bismarck who set the retirement age at 65. Nowadays more workers reach this milestone than ever before. It will be interesting to follow future rules or customs relative to retirement age. Some authorities believe that our labor force is too large now and the 65-year-olds are a drag on the economy.

CERTAIN unions urge their members to retire at 55 and some organizations are talking about retirement at 45. This may be one way to get a pension and another job, too.

From a medical point of view, we are interested in keeping older people healthy so they can enjoy a richer and more meaningful life. Our educational system is aimed at youth but with the passing years, what many of us learned in school is outdated. Perhaps more adult education is needed to enrich the golden years.

THE IDEA that age does not matter after 65 is meaningful if we separate the process of aging from the diseases and disabilities of the aged. For example, two men of 65 retire from the same company after working 40 years. Both look hale and hearty but a month later one of them dies suddenly from a heart attack. The other enjoys a long, healthy life. Was the man who died at 65 years of age 100 per cent old or was he just unfortunate to have coronary heart arteries that became obstructed at that particular time?

The longer a person lives the more medical ailments he is subjected to. Aging and disease are not synonymous.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

MONOTONOUS EGG DIET

C. W. writes: I have a friend who goes on an egg diet periodically. She eats 40 eggs in 10 days. What do you think of this slimming plan?

REPLY

I'm "agin" it even tho it works for some people and they all seem to survive the monotonous ordeal. There is no harm in a crash diet lasting half this time but 10 days is a bit too long. Many persons become so hungry after starving for 10 days that within 48 hours they regain much of the lost weight.

PENICILLIN IN MILK

A. B. L. wirtes: Does a person get any penicillin in milk?

REPLY

Milk should not contain penicillin unless it came from a cow that was being treated for a diseased udder. Some states have laws making it illegal to sell milk from a cow that received penicillin within 48 hours. This is done to protect individuals who are extremely sensitive to penicillin. These persons might develop a severe reaction even tho the milk contains only an infinitesimal amount of the antibiotic.

MINOR COMPLICATIONS

A reader writes: Can circumcision be done in a surgeon's office or must the man be hospitalized?

REPLY

In the office, if the surgeon has the equipment. The hospital is more expensive but safer, considering the remote possibility of complications.

THE PREGNANT BOWLER

M. L. writes: I am four months pregnant. Since I belong to a ladies' league I'd like to know if it is OK for me to bowl for 6 more weeks.

REPLY

Yes.

Speaking against the annexation will be Patricia Jeremiah, chairman of the anti-annexation committee and Stephen H. Kaufmann, an attorney and longtime resident of Strawberry.

Actor Sues CBS For $25 Million

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Robert Stack named CBS system in a $25 million damage suit Tuesday, contending the network's documentary, "The Selling of the Pentagon" depicted him as a hawk on the Vietnam WAR.

Stack said the documentary put him in the position of backing the war when in fact he always has opposed the involvement of the United States in Vietnam.

The suit said CBS lifted a segment of a 1968 Air Force training film in which Stack appeared and used it without his permission in the documentary on the public relations activities of the military.

WORRIED BUT UNRESISTING

Ruhig, a 3-year-old German shepherd dog owned by Karen Windell of San Rafael, has a worried look, but passively submits to a vaccination against rabies. His rendezvous with the needle took place last night at the Corte Madera Fire House. It was the first in a series of 12 clinics to be held in Marin County during the next six weeks by the Marin County Department of Public Health and Marin County Veterinary Medical Association, which seek to vaccinate all dogs more than 4 months old.

Turkish Army Gives System A Shaking

By FERDINAND HURNI
Special From Toronto Telegram

The Turkish Army recently gave a much needed shaking to a stagnated parliamentary system to get it moving once again.

Following an intervention by the military, a civilian politician (Nihat Erim, a middle-of-the-road moderate of the Republican People's Party) was assigned to form a civilian cabinet which would enjoy, at least outwardly, the support of the largest parliamentary factions.

Modern Turkey is, or at least originally was, largely the product of military men. The founder of the state, Kemal Ataturk, who led — or forced — his people on the path toward progress and a linkup with Europe following the collapse of the Ottoman Empire, was an officer, as was his comrade and successor Ismet Inonu, the "grand old man" of Turkish politics who obviously had much to do with the fact that the most recent crisis ended harmlessly.

The Turkish officers' corps, even before World War I, was more advanced than the country's other professional groups in education and technical from there that the impulses came for a development which finally made it seem feasible to permit the originally-authoritarian government of modern Turkey to institute democratic freedoms.

Accordingly, however, the Turkish army has also taken on itself the role of "guardian of democracy," in the double sense of preventing regressions into conservative traditions or the abuse of free rights as well as a protection of these rights. Both motives were at work when the military took power in May, 1960.

The government of chief-of-state Bayar and Premier Menderes had come to power 10 years earlier, tanks to a victory by the Democratic Party over the political machinery of Ataturk and Inonu, the Republican People's Party, in the country's first completely free elections. When it was toppled by the military in 1960, it was accused by the army not only of corruption and of permitting a revival of reactionary Islamic tendencies, but even more it was said to have used undemocratic methods, drastically limiting the rights of the opposition and freedom of the press.

The first proclamation issued by the Supreme Commander of the Turkish military after the revolt stated that the armed forces had assumed administration of the country in order to carry out free elections as soon as possible.

The military remained in power for nearly one-and-a-half years. In a monster trial, in which more than 500 persons stood accused, Bayar, Menderes, Foreign Minister Zorlu, and Finance Minister Poltakan were condemned to death and the latter three were executed by hanging.

After the establishment of a new constitution, elections were held in the autumn of 1961. And they were free elections. Admittedly, the Democratic Party had been banned, but the Justice Party, which based its strength on the votes of former supporters of Menderes, won substantial numbers of seats in both houses of the legislature, while the Republicans failed to achieve the absolute majority for which the military junta had been hoping.

The military leaders helped to form a coalition government under Inonu, but then they permitted the country's political life to develop freely, raising no opposition in 1965 when the Justice Party, having gained an absolute majority in new elections under the leadership of Suleyman Demirel, took over the reins of government alone.

The military leaders confined themselves to issuing occasional warnings from the background until, in mid-March of this year, they finally issued the ultimatum which forced Demirel and his cabinet to resign, thus demonstrating that, when the chips are down, they are still the decisive power in the country.

Eleven years ago, the Turkish generals actually assumed power; last March they only threatened a coup. But that is not the only difference between the two events. On both occasions the intervention of the military was preceded by "unrest"; but the nature of that unrest, as well as the attitude of leading military figures toward it, varied considerably.

In the spring of 1960, Turkish students demonstrated against actual violations of constitutional rights by the government. Menderes reacted with disproportionately harsh measures, proclaiming a state of siege and calling in the army. The latter, however, felt it had been misued, since the chief of the military junta, the later president Gursel, had been forced to resign as commandant of the land forces just a few weeks before the coup as a result of differences with the authoritarian government.

On March 12, 1971, on the other hand, the military demanded the establishment of a strong cabinet, turning against a government which, partly as a result of a split in the Justice Party, had become virtually incapable of action; its authority had been undermined by a corruption affair involving Demirel's brothers and it had loosened its grip on the reins of government despite the fact that the activities of extremist and anarchist groups had attained dangerous proportions, including bank robberies, abductions and bloody clashes between left-wing and right-wing organizations.

There is another difference even more important. In 1960 there was, at least at the outset, obvious unanimity among the military concerning the coup, while this March such unanimity did not exist.

No details are known about what happened in the army before and immediately following March 12, but the fact that, a few days after publication of the military ultimatum, five generals and 10 colonels were forcibly pensioned and lesser punishments were imposed on some 50 additional officers (presumably majors and captains), indicated that a group of officers was pursuing goals which did not fit in with the intentions of the highest-ranking military leaders.

For the time being, the more moderate military have maintained the upper hand. The new government will enjoy their protection and their support in its steps against troublemakers. It remains to be seen, however, whether the cabinet will be able to manage without abridging civil rights.

It is also uncertain whether the program of reforms with regard to land, minimum wages, social security, welfare and education, which is to be undertaken at the behest of the military leaders, goes far enough to staisfy even the socialist circles in the armed forces, not to speak of the extremists.

Nixon Names Five To Ecology Panel

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon Tuesday appointed five persons, including former astronaut Frank Borman, to the Citizens Advisory Committee on Environmental Quality.

Also named to the committee formed two years ago to develop environmental protecton guidelines were Rene Dubox, lecturer at Rockefeller University in New York; E. Corinne Galvin, environmental expert from Ithaca, N.Y.; Jack B. Olson, former Wisconsin lieutenant governor, and Laurance S. Rockefeller, director of Rockefeller Center.

Contractors, Union Trio Reach Pacts

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Contractors' associations have reached labor contract agreements with three of the seven unions striking in Northern California.

Subject to approval by a wage stabilization committee, the Laborers Union and Operating Engineers Union decided to accept 29.6 per cent increases covering wages and fringe benefits over a period of three years. Laborers had been getting $6.80 an hour.

Previously the Association of General Contractors and the Engineering and Grading Contractors Association had reached terms with the Painters Union.

Of those unions still negotiating, the "carpenters are the mainstumbling block," said John Otto, speaking for the AGC.

Heavy construction carpenters remain off the job throughout Northern California in a shutdown that has idled major projects including Corte Madera Creek flood control and a sewage pumping station in San Rafael.

Meanwhile, a strike by the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union enters its 14th day today with no negotiations since it tied up West Coast ports. A rumor that it had been settled spread through San Francisco on Tuesday but was denied by both labor and management.

Terms were also reached in two smaller strikes.

Subject to member ratification, the Morticians' Union reached an agreement to end an 85-day walkout at 22 San Francisco mortuaries.

Port of Oakland and Oakland International Airport reached agreement that ended a 12-day strike by 225 city workers.

Tahoe Planners Under Criticism

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Officials of the League to Save Lake Tahoe have accused the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency's governing board of being "flagrantly partial" to land developers.

"Over 94 per cent of the projects submitted were approved," Steve C. Brandt, the league's executive director, told a news conference Tuesday.

Brandt and league president Donald G. Ellis said the governing body had approved one big subdivision after another at Tahoe and was violating the spirit of the California-Nevada compact that established the planning agency.

Brothers Get 10 To Life In Officer's Death

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Two teen-aged brothers have been sentenced to state prison for 10-years to life on charges resulting from a March 19 shooting of a special policeman in a tavern.

Superior Court Judge Joseph Karesh imposed sentences Tuesday on Donald Banks, 19, and his brother, Vincent, 18, after they pleaded guilty to four counts of robbery and assaulting a police officer.

Special officer Donald Fatooh, 26, was shot during a holdup in a neighborhood bar. He was paralyzed from the waist down as a result of his wounds.

A third defendant, Zuretti Garvin, 23, will be sentenced Friday. Police said he was the actual gunman.

Senator Wants Recycled Paper

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, introduced a bill today to require that the Congressional Record be printed on recycled paper.

The Senator also introduced a bill making recycled paper available for use in congressional offices.

Moss contended the United States could reclaim 200 million tons of waste paper a year. He said this amount of paper represented about 3 billion trees.

Fairfax Man To Plead In Pot Case

Allan Harvey Tucknott, 29, of Fairfax, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a felony charge of cultivating marijuana.

Preliminary hearing was set for next Tuesday. Tucknott was arrested Sunday when Fairfax police saw suspected marijuana plants growing beside his driveway.

Be our guest in the White House

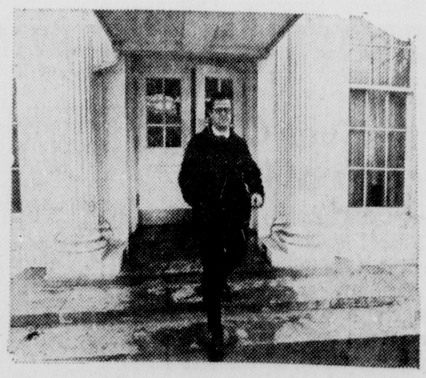
You will know as much as anyone about what goes on in the White House and in the Presidency by the simple act of reading the I-J. (Only the President and intimates will know more).

For the I-J, through its United Press International reporters, is virtually "in residence" as much as the President. Which makes you our welcome guest to the White House.

Our reporters are constantly alert to staff and cabinet meetings, to affairs of international import, to the diplomatic front, to the comings and goings which make the White House a world center of significant news. The job is sensitive. It requires a sixth sense to know when news of major concern is about to break. And concern in how to "break" it accurately and without bias.

Be our guest and stay as long as you like. Our columns lead right to the White House.

UPI A TEAM REPORT



This is Eugene V. Risher, another member of the UPI team assigned to cover President Nixon. You'll be hearing from him.

PAMPLONA, Spain (UPI)—The annual fiesta of San Fermin wound up today, leaving at least 112 people injured and thousands with jumbo hangovers after a week of bullfights, drinking and dancing in the streets.

The last of the daily "encierros"—where young men race the bulls through barricaded streets—took a tol of another eight injured this morning. This brought the total of casualties in the eight encierros to 112, including six people who were seriously gored. Two Americans were among the injured.

Behr Drops Bid To Kill Oil Law

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to abolish the state oil and gas depletion allowance to finance purchase of coastal beaches and parks has been dropped by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

"The oil boys are too strong" to overcome their opposition to his bill, the assemblyman conceded.

He stressed, however, that he had been the "mainspring" in providing that pending legislation to impose mandatory withholding of payroll taxes earmark $50 million to purchase beaches. Reform of the oil depletion allowance will have to be made through the Democats' pending tax revision package, he said, because the Democratic controlled Legislature will not allow a Repulican package to pass.

Bagley, when he introduced the bill (AB 473) in February, had predicted it could pass because of the new emphasis on the environment, because of the January oil spill in San Francisco Bay and because Democrats, now in control of the Legislature, generally look with less favor on the allowance than Republicans.

New Hampshire Primary Set 1st

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI)—Gov. Walter Peterson Monday signed the bill giving New Hampshire the nation's first presidential primary next year, one week ahead of Florida.

Florida Gov. Reuben Askew last month signed a bill setting up a March 14 primary date in his state, prompting New Hampshire legislative leaders to advance the primary here to March 7.

Alaska also had challenged New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation status, but the bill was vetoed.

A.L. Turns Back Hands Of Clock In Home Run Derby

THAT'S SHOWING THEM — Frank Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles (left) and Reggie Jackson of the Oakland A's congratulated each other in the clubhouse last night after they each hit a two-run homer to help the American League beat the National League, 6-4 in Detroit. Robinson was named the All-Star game's most valuable player. (UPI Telephoto)

National All-Stars Outmuscled

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN

DETROIT (UPI)—Home run muscle turned back the hands of the clock today and put the long-suffering American League on top of the baseball world.

With a 6-4 triumph over the National Leaue Tuesday night added to the Baltimore Orioles' world championship last Fall, the A. L. has ended the National League's eight-year rule in the diamond's "glamor game" —and, just as in the "good old days," home run power did it.

National League Tuesday night added to the Baltimore Orioles' world championship last Fall, the A. L. has ended the National League's eight-year rule in the diamond's "glamor game" — and, just as in the "good old days," home run power did it.

"As far as I'm concerned, I've got 28 Most Valuable Players on this squad," declared delighted winning manager Earl Weaver after Tuesday's triumph.

Frank Robinson of Weaver's Orioles, whose two-run homer put the A. L. ahead to stay, was officially voted the "MVP" of the game. But there was little to choose between him and the other two men who hit two-run homers for the A. L. — Reggie Jackson and Harmon Killebrew.

As a matter of fact, the American Leaguers themselves did most of their post-game cheering about Jackson's homer — a tremendous blast that nearly went out of the ball park.

"You can go your whole life and never see five blls hit that hard," declared slugger Frank Howard.

"He really crushed it," added 6-foot-7 Howard, who has crushed a few himself and did indeed hit one out of Tiger Stadium once upon a time.

Despite the MVP award to Robinson, it was Jackson's blast that turned the game around.

Until then it was all N. L., just as it had been since 1962. The "senior circuit" team had teed off on the fastballs of young Vida Blue for two homrs, a two-run blast by Johnny Bech in the second inning and a bases-empty homer by Hank Aaron in the third, and N. L. starter Dock Ellis was protecting a 3-0 lead going into the last of the third.

Luis Aparicio started the A. L. comeback with a single and then Weaver sent Jackson — ironically on the squad only as a substitute for injured Tony Oliva —up to pinch-hit for Blue.

Jackson slammed a high sli-

DEPRESSED FEELING

Things Aren't Getting Any Better For Sparky

DETROIT (UPI)—Sparky Anderson has been having problems with arms and legs for almost a year.

Not his own, mind you, but those that belong to othr people.

It was a case of too much arms and legs —all of them belonging to the Baltimore Orioles —in last season's World Series.

Then an Achilles tendon — this one belonging to Bobby Tolan, who ruptured his playing basketball in the off-season and then reinjured it trying to come back. That injury has no doubt contributed to the current fifth-place showing of the team Anderson manages, the Cincinnati Reds, along with other miseries like Wayne Simpson's sore shoulder.

Then came Tuesday night's All-Star game in Tiger Stadium, in which Anderson's National League team received a 6-4 clubbing from the American League.

Two of Anderson's starters — Henry Aaron of Atlanta and Willie McCovey of San Francisco —had to come out after three innings because the manager didn't want to take any unnecessary chances with their bad knees and thus hurt their respective team's chances in the pennant race.

"Henry's had a little knee problem recently," Anderson explained his move of removing the man who'd put his squad up 3-0 in he top of the third, a margin which lasted just slightly longer than it took the breeze which gusted up to 31 miles per hour to blow from left to right field.

"It was a tribute to McCovey just coming to play in the game," he said. "And Willie (Mays, the Giants' centerfielder who came out at the same time), let's face it —he's probably the greatest of all time.

"I didn't want to take them out but I didn't want to hurt them, either. Their teams are fighting for a pennant. San Francisco comes in to play us next.

"And you've got to remember," Anderson said, "the fellows I replaced them with are pretty good ball players. Any time you put Willie Davis and Roberto Clemente out there you're not hurting."

Mays grounded out and flied out and Aaron grounded out before showing Detroit fans why even he thinks he's got a shot at Babe Ruth's 714 figure. McCovey grounded to second and struck out before being removed.

"I felt good," Aaron said of his home run, "because I hit it off the best young prospect in the American League (Vida Blue)."

Anderson said he switched his plans to pitch Steve Carlton of the St. Louis Cardinals and instead used Juan Marichai of San Francisco because the Giants' righthander "gets lefthanded hitters out the way Cuellar (a left-hander) gets right-handed hitters out."

"I've lost the World Series and now I've lost the All-Star game," Anderson said. "Now I really feel depressed."

Wedding Bells Ring For Honor Jackson

Catching up on things after last week's all-too-brief holiday . . .

Honor Jackson, the former Tam High School, College of Marin and University of Pacific football flash, was married recently to UOP sweetheart Jacquelin Stanton.

Jackson, a wide receiver with great hands and speed, has signed a contract with the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League and will be in training camp soon.

GORDON PARR checks in to remind us that the Marin Cyclists are in the midst of their annual Time Trial Series every Wednesday evenings through Aug. 4 on the 10-mile Tiburon Peninsula course for riders of all ages. The program will be capped next month with kids' bike races at Corte Madera Center.

BOB PORTER, professional at the Rohnert Park Golf Course, says junior golf is going great guns at the Southern Sonoma County links. Currently there are 156 kids taking lessons every Monday.

And speaking of such, 12-year-old Scott Myers of Shelton, Wash., scored a hole-in-one on Rohnert Park's 165-yard 17th hole last week. Myers was vacationing at the Jack Malley home in Petaluma. Any younger ace shooters around?

F. A. SOUSA of the San Anselmo Fire Department says the Marin Figure Skating Club deserves cheers for its fine showing in the recent Central California Interclub Competition at Belmont, particularly Kym Likerman of Greenbrae, Peggy Sousa of San Anselmo, Patti Maley of Terra Linda and Allen Schramm of Greenbrae.

"I was most impressed by the dedication of all the youngsters," said Sousa, whose daughter Peggy recently received a trophy as the Marin club's most improved skater of the year.

KSFO RADIO MEN Jim Lange and Jeff Skov, both of Marin County, had a punderful time one recent morning with a sports quiz. Skov: "Do you know what they call Ron Santo's hands? They call them Santo Claws." Ooof!

Lange: "By the way, Jeff, do you know why radio announcers have small hands. Because, wee paws for station identification." Double oof.

Those are almost as bad as some of mine.

A READER suggests a plaudit for two Marin 20-year-olds, Manager Bill Johnson and Coach Don Meyer, for directing the Corte Madera Lions to their second straight championship in the very competitive Twin Cities Little League, a hotbed of junior baseball. Bill is the brother of Ken Johnson, property of the New York Yankees, and Don has been active in Marin sports for several years, currently working for the local recreation department.

Congrats, men, for a job well done.

Orduna Clocks Quickest Time

SANTA BARBARA (UPI)— The San Francisco 49ers opened team drills Tuesday with the gruelling Dick Nolan 1 3-4 mile run. Nolan, 49er head coach, requires his players to run the distance in 12 minutes.

The National Football League team officially opened their 1971 training camp Monday with 36 rookies, four veterans, and four taxi squad members on hand.

The fastest time recorded in Tuesday's run was by running back Joe Orduna, a second round draft choice from Nebraska, who made the dash in 10:07. Orduna was the most valuable player in last month's coaches all-American game in Lubbock, Texas.

The 49ers went through light morning drills following the running, and had a two hour work out during the afternoon. Veteran Jimmy Thomas, who is being converted from running back to wide receiver, was impressive in the afternoon.

Windward Passage's Record

HONOLULU (UPI) —Robert Johnson, whose sleek ketch Windward Passage set a new record in the transpacific yacht race, doesn't take his victory for granted.

"I never think you've got anybody in the bag until you get across the finsh line," Johnson said after his 73-foot ketch set a new elapsed time record in the biennial race.

Windward Passage, flying the colors of Hawaii's Lahana Yacht Club, completed the 2,225-mile race which began July 4 from San Pedro, Calif., in 9 days 9 hours 6 minutes, cutting 1 hour 14 minutes 12 seconds ff the old record of 9 days 10 hours and 21 minutes set by Blackfin in 1969.

Travelling at 15 knots over the finish Tuesday night with her spinnaker billowing in the island tradewinds, Windward Passage also broke her own unofficial record in the 1969 race by 18 minutes 11 seconds.

The record crossing was an espcially meaningful one for skipper Robert Mark Johnson and crew. Johnson's father, the late Robert F. Johnson, sailed Windward Passage to a first-to-finish two years ago but was penalized two hours for a rule infraction at the starting line. The two-hour penalty threw the victory to Blackfin.

Windward Passage, threatened earlier by a possible collision with hurricane Denise, took advantage of the tropical depression, the remains of the storm, at the end. The ketch sailed through the 25 knot gusts in the Hawaiian waters and despite small craft warnings, a spectator fleet of several hundred sail and power boats welcomed her arrival.

Race officials expect Blackfin today, a few minutes after the 73-foot ketch Ondine from the Larchmont Yacht Club. Ondine was expected to finish about 10 minutes ahead of Ken Demeuse's 73-foot ketch out of the St. Francis Yacht Club of San Francisco.

The Canadian ketch Graybeard, which lost her rudder and began taking on water Sunday night, was being towed by a Coast Guard cutter and also expected to arrive today. Graybeard, a 73-foot ketch out of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, once held the lead in the biennial race.

In corrected times, the 40-foot sloop Moon Day, out of the King Harbor Yacht Club, was in first place although she was not expected to cross the finish line until July 16.

The 50-foot cutter Warrior out of the Bahia Corinthian Yacht Club was the first in corrected class A, while Encore, a 43-foot sloop from the Balboa Yacht Club led class B. Moon Day topped class C and L'Allegro, a 36-foot sloop from the Richmond Yacht Club was first in class D.

Suyderhoud To Ski For U.S.

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (UPI) — Three men and three women were named Tuesday to represent the United States at the 12th biennial World Water Ski Championships Sept. 10-19 at Banolas, Spain.

All three are veterans of the 1969 team that competed in Copenhagen, Denmark.

Two newcomers are among the three women selected for the team by the American Water Ski Association. Lisa St. John of Fall River Mills, Calif. and Christy Freeman of Thayer, Mo., will join Christy Lynn Weir of McQueeney, Tex., the winner of the women's Masters title.

The selections were made after two days of trials at Callaway Gardens.

All six skiers will be among the competitors at the California World Cup competition at Berkeley's Aquatic Park July 24-25.

Ray Leach Fires 75 At Spyglass

I-J Special Report

PEBBLE BEACH — All-American Ray Leach of Novato improved upon his first round score by a stroke yesterday to finish sixth in the 36-hole qualifying phase of the Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournament.

Leach, who will be a senior at Brigham Young in the fall, carded a 75 over the par-72, 6,795-yard Spyglass Hill course which ranks as the toughest layout in California. Together with the 76 he shot Monday, that gave Leach a qualifying score of 151 going into today's start of match play. He will face Mark Lye, who qualified at 157.

Medalist honors for the qualifying part of the tourney went to Bruce Robertson of San Mateo, who tied the course record yesterday with a 70. Robertson, an 18-year-old freshman enrollee at Stanford, had a two-day total of 147, one stroke ahead of Tom Kite, Jr. of Austin, Tex.

Defending champion Alan Miller of Pensacola, Fla., was exempt from the qualifying, which cut the original field of 170 amateurs to 64.

NICE SHOT — Reggie Jackson of the Oakland A's was greeted by Baltimore's Don Buford when he returned to the dugout following his mammoth home run in the third inning of the All-Star game last night in Detroit. Jackson's homer, which gave the American League its first two runs, hit the light tower above the second deck in right field.

der by Ellis so far to right field that it would have gone completely out of the stadium if it had not struck a light tower atop the 80-foot stands.

"I wish it hadn't hit that tower," sighed Al Kaline of Detroit. "I would like to see how far it would have gone."

"That was some shot," said catcher Bench. "Reggie and I both just stood there at home plate and watched it for a while before he started to run. We must have looked silly."

The N. L. was to look sillier, because that blast turned the whole tide. Moments later in the same inning Rod Carew walked and Frank Robinson lined his two-run homer to right and the A. L. was out front, 4-3. Killebrew's blast off reliever Ferguson Jenkins in the sixth after Kaline had singled made it 6-3 and actually proved to be the winning margin when Roberto Clemente hit a last-gasp homer for the N. L. in the eigth to cut the margin to 6-4.

The six homers tied the All-Star record, which was set in the same park in 1951 and tied in Cleveland in 1954.

"I knew we were going to see some long balls hit," said losing manager Sparky Anderson, "but this was the greatest exhibition I ever saw in one game."

There was speculation on how much part the wind, which gusted from 17 to 31 mph during the game, blowing straight toward right field, played in the homer barrage. Four of the homers were by righthanded batters to right field.

"Sure, the wind helped," said Howard. "But Jackson's homer would have gone out of any ballpark in the major leagues."

Actually, the A. L. had good pitching, too. Blue, Jim Palmer, Mike Cuellar, and Mickey Lolich held the N. L. to just five hits. The A. L. made seven off Ellis and three other pitchers.

The loss was a tough one for Anderson. Everything has been downhill for the Reds' pilot since his "Big Red Machine" won the National League pennant last year. First, the Orioles crushed them in the Series, then the Reds staggered this year, and now this.

"Now I have lost the World Series and I have lost the All-Star game,"said Anderson. "I really am beginning to feel depressed."

Weaver, as the winner, had no explaining to do, of course.

"It's about time we won one of these games," he said. "Actually, of the eight straight games we lost, several were close and we deserved to win at least a few of them."

It was a happy ending for Weaver, who heard himself heavily booed by the 53,559 capacity crowd when he was introduced at the start. That was because local hero Norm Cash only got on the team as a substitute for injured Boog Powell after Weaver had failed to pick him.

'RIGHT MAN FOR MVP'

Jackson Praises Robinson

DETROIT (UPI) — Reggie Jackson said they picked the right man.

He meant Frank Robinson, who was voted MVP in the American League's 6-4 victory over the National in Tuesday night's All-Star game.

In the clubhouse after the game, it looked as if Jackson had engineered the American Leaguers' conquest because he had the biggest crowd around him. Everybdy wanted to ask him about his titanic third inning pinch homer that hit an electric generator on the right field roof and Frank Howard said would've have gone 600 feet for sure if it hadn't.

But Jackson preferred talking about Robinson, for whom he played with Santurce which won the Puerto Rican League championship this past winter.

"I could've played with several clubs this winter but I picked Santurce because Frank was the manager," said Jackson, who got into Tuesday night's All-Star game as a substitute when Tony Oliva had to pull out with a pulled hamstring muscle.

"Nobody has any idea what he did for me," Jackson said, still talking about Robinson. "Frank is a tremendous man. I've never seen him lose control of any situation. Look, I'm not a hero worshipper. I'm not saying he's the greatest thing going, and I'm not blowing smoke. To me though, he's a walking, winning attitude. He taught me the most important thing in the world. How to control myself. He told me, 'Reggie, go out there and let your ability do it for you. Don't throw your bat; don't throw your helmet; that's never going to help you. I listened to him. It has made all the difference in the world."

Robinson connected for one of six homers that were hit in Tiger Stadium Tuesday night. His two-run shot off loser Dock Ellis climaxed a four-run rally in the third inning and put the American League ahead for keeps Oddly, Jackson was playing with a pulled hamstring muscle in his leg also. Before the game he told Earl Weaver, the A.L. manager, he wouldn't be able to run much.

Jones Traded To St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Wide receiver Homer Jones, a veteran of seven seasons with the National Football League, was acquired Tuesday by the St. Louis Cardinals from the Cleveland Browns in exchange for a high future draft choice.

Jones, 30, stands 6-2 and weighs 215 pounds. The graduate of Texas Southern, where he also was a 9.3 sprinter, had his greatest success with the New York Giants. He was traded to Cleveland last year for Ron Johnson, Jim Kanicki and Wayne Meylan.

Steelers Have Now Signed All Draftees

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Steelers completed the signing of their 1971 draft choices Tuesday when they linked tight end Larry Brown of Kansas, placekicker Paul Rogers of Nebraska, defensive back Mike Wanger of Western Illinois and defensive back Walt Huntley of Trinity.

Brown also was named to the collegeAll-Star team for its July 30 game against the Baltimore Colts in Chicago.

Despite Home Runs, Vida Blue Is Winner

DETROIT (UPI) — Nobody who witnessed Tuesday night's home run-studded All-Star game would argue with those pitchers who claim Tiger Stadium is a hitters' ball park.

Except possibly Vida Blue, who was stung for two of the record-tieing six roundtrippers in the three innings he pitched and still managed to emerge as the winner for the victorious American League.

"Every ball park is a hitters' ball park," said the 21-year-old Oakland A's southpaw.

Blue felt that he "threw good" against the power-hitting National Leaguers, but admitted that the satisfaction that comes with pitching a complete game and walking off the field with the victory was not there.

Cincinnati's Sparky Anderson, who managed the losers, said he thought Blue "did an excellent job" and that he showed "terrific poise" for a young man participating in his first All-Star game.

However, Anderson added, "I don't think I was seeing Vida Blue at his best. Or Dock Ellis (the National League starter) either, for that matter. Both of them are so young and must have been under considerable pressure."

Hank Aaron, the Atlanta Braves' slugger who clipped Blue for a solo homer in the third inning in his first extra base hit in 20 All-Star appearances, said he was "very impressed" with Blue's fast ball, which is his primary pitch.

But that didn't stop Aaron from lifting one of those fast balls into the right field seats.

Blue said that he thought the pitching talent on tap for this year's mid-season exhibition would keep the run total down.

"I thought that the two teams combined wouldn't score more than two or three runs," he said. "But, then I guess good pitching won't always stop good hitting."

Asked if he was at all disappointed in his performance, Blue pointed out that he faced "the best guys in the majors. This was the All-Star game. What am I, a super AllStar?"

Sample Is Free On Bail

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Johnny Sample, a controversial former pro football cornerbak who runs on a ticket agency, is free on $2,500 bail today on charges of cashing stolen U.S. Treasury checks worth $5,699.

The Secret Service said Sample was not accused of stealing the checks but of "cashing them with knowledge that they were stolen."

Sample, 34, who charged pro football had blackballed him after his 11-year career ended in release by the New York Jets in 1969, was arrested Tuesday and identified by bank employes as the man who cashed the 15 stolen checks.

Francis X. Bauer, a Secret Service agent, testified at Sample's arraignment before a U. S. magistrate that all of the checks were endorsed with the signature "Johnny B. Sample."

Bauer said Sample denied either signing or cashing the checks and volunteered to give a handwriting sample for comparison.

But, Bauer added, Harry Arnold, the bank manager, told him Sample was well-known to bank personnel. Arnold personally handled 10 of the 15 transactions, Bauer testified.

Sample was charged with 15 counts of cashing forged checks, which carry a maximum 10 year prison term on each, and 15 counts of possession of stolen mail, each carrying a five-year maximum prison term.

Sample, a native of Cape Charles, Va., grew up in Philadelphia, attended Maryland State, and began his career with the Baltimore Colts in 1958.

He later played for the Pittsburgh Steelers, Washington Redskins and New York Jets.

After his release by New York, Sample wrote a book called "Confessions of a Dirty Ballplayer."

Prudhomme, Garlits Head Field For Drag Racing

ENGLISHTOWN, N.J. (UPI) —Don Prudhomme and Don Garlits bring their revolutionary rear-engine fuel dragsters to Madison Township Raceway Park this weekend as the highlight of the National Hot Rod Association's $150,000 Summernationals.

Garlits began the rear-engine revolution earlier this year by beating the conventional dragsters in two NHRA national meets while Prudhomme's new dragster features an enclosed cockpit and wide, sloping rear end.

Seven other classes also will compete in the event, fourth of eight on the NHRA championship circuit. Qualifying will be held on Friday, and qualifying and elimination trials will be on Saturday.

Frazier To Tour S.E. Asia

HOUSTON (UPI) — Heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, taking hie troupe of entertainers to southeast Asia next month, said Tuesday he wants to visit Hanoi to ask for the realease of American prisoners.

In Houston for an exhibition bout tonight, Frazier said he will appear in Bangkok three days during the middle of August as part of his worldwide singing tour.

He said he has asked Bob Hope, who entertains troops in Vietnam every Christmas, to arrange appearances for him at American bases.

Frazier is a member of a committee trying to free POWs. He said as long as he is that close to Hanoi he would like to go there in behalf of the prisoners.

"I want to see if I can talk with the people and see if they would let some of the boys who are in prison come home," Frazier said.

Frazier would need U.S. State Department permission to visit Hanoi. If he gets approval, he then would make his request to North Vietnam through that country's delegation in Paris or by contacting government officials in Hanoi.

Frazier is a member of the VIP committee, along with such sports figures as Johnny Unitas of the Baltimore Colts and Manager Ted Williams of the Washington Senators.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Costs Come Down On Sport Of Sailing

The two-car family is now commonplace, but how about the two-BOAT family. There'll be a lot more by the end of 1971, and it's almost a certainty the second boat will have sails.

The boom in sailing is the recreational phenomenon of the past five years, and the statistics indicate it's continuing. Undoubtedly it's the result of the discovery that what used to be an expensive sport is now much cheaper — and just as exciting.

ONE REASON for the change in attitude is the change in sailboats themselves. It used to be that owning a sailboat automatically meant joining a yacht club. Nowadays many sailboat enthusiasts have their own yacht club in their backyard and trailer their boats to any water they like.

Also, sailboats are now faster and more exciting to handle. They plane and skim over the water like power boats. They have simplified rigging that doesn't require a large crew to handle, and above all they are now made of sophisticated jet-age materials that make them cheaper and within the economic reach of more people. These materials also make the manufacturing easier and the maintaining effortless.

IF YOU ARE bored with power boats as many people are, the next logical step is to try sailing. You'll discover an exhilaration that power boating can't give and a sense of accomplishment that can be surpassed only by learning to fly.

That sailing is a lively topic is obvious from some of the questions we've been asked:

Q. Are sails made of synthetic materials worth the extra cost over cotton?

A. From a practical standpoint, yes. They can be stored wet and are mildew proof. Cotton or canvas must be dried carefully before being put away.

Q. What are good first texts on sailing?

A. There are thousands, but the three I like are: "Sail in a Day" by George O'Day, Royces Sailing Illustrated; both available at boating bookstores and "A Minimum Sailing Primer" at 50 cents from John C. Jones III, 56 Hawes St., Brookline, Mass, 02146.

Q. Why are sails made of several pieces of material sewn together, instead of being in one piece?

A. Mainly it's a question of shape of the sail. Also seams give strength at points of strain, and anyway, most fabrics aren't made in such widths.

Q. In the shortest terms, tell me, how do you pick up a mooring under sail alone . . .?

A. Approach buoy from downwind on a course that would put mooring about a boat length to windward if you were to sail past it. On the approach, lower and secure jib. When mooring buoy is one boat length to windward, bring boat's head into wind (luff). The craft's momentum allows it to coast up to buoy. Secure mooring line, then lower mainsail. It sounds complicated, but watch an expert do it once, and you're an expert.

Q. Which is better for sails, Terylene or Dacron.

A. It's the same material. Terylene is the British name, fairly common in the U.S., because they have produced it just a little cheaper . . . so it was imported.

Q. What are the fastest sailboats?

A. There are several types of very light catamarans that will beat any other type of sailing craft under "average" conditions. That means fairly light winds and calm water. Most will do 20 to 25 knots (23 - 28 mph) easily. They are great fun but not very practical. C-class catamarans have to be clocked at 35 mph.

Q. What does "close-hauled" mean?

A. This is sailing against the wind, with the wind coming from ahead. A sailboat will not travel directly into the wind, but will make good speed in a direction that is only 45 to 50 degrees off the direction from which the wind is coming.

THIS DAY IN SPORTS

JULY 14, 1953

WARREN SPAHN, WHO PITCHED HIS FIRST BIG LEAGUE VICTORY ON THIS DAY SEVEN YEARS EARLIER, WAS THE WINNING TWIRLER AS THE NATIONALS TOOK THE ALL-STAR GAME 5-1, BEHIND ENOS SLAUGHTER'S BAT AND GLOVE.

Averages Show Dip In Minors

John Dolinsek of Novato saw his batting average drop to .284 with the Oklahoma City Astros of the Class AAA American Association in the latest figures available on Marin Countians playing in the minor leagues.

However, he was the only Marinite to get a hit during the week. Dolinsek had 7 safeties in 29 at-bats, including 2 home runs and 3 runs-batted-in for a .241 week.

Elsewhere, it was a dismal week for the four other local players. Dewey Forry of San Rafael went hitless in nine at-bats with Daytona Beach of the Class A Florida State League and is now batting .216 on the season.

Tom Corder of Novato was hitless in only one at-bat with Bakersfield of the Class A California State League and is now hitting .278 on the season.

Tom Thomas of Novato saw no action with Niagra Falls of the Class A New York-Pennsylvania League. He is hitless in only three at-bats this season.

On the pitching front, Russ Dillon of Novato walked the only batter he faced all week. On the season he has appeared in 18 games, winning 5 and losing 3 with a 2.51 earned run average. In 61 innings of work this year, Dillon has yielded 44 hits while striking out 64 and walking 30.

Amateur Golf Champion Lanny Wadkins Turns Pro

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (UPI) — National amateur champion Lanny Wadkins said today he has turned professional and will go to work next Monday as a teaching pro in his native Virginia.

"I'm married and I need the money," said Wadkins. "Amateur golf is getting pretty expensive. I can't afford it right now."

Wadkins, 21, is giving up a year's eligibility at Wake Forest University, where he has twice been an All-America selection, to enter the pro ranks.

Wadkins said that while he will initially be employed at his home club of Meadowbrok in Richmond, Va., he plans to try out for the pro tour this fall.

"I think I'll be pretty successful," he said. "I've played tournament golf all my life."

He intends to make his tournament debut as a professional two weeks from now in the Virginia State Open.

The timing of his decision, he said, was "mainly so I could play in the Virginia Open as a pro."

After that he will sharpen his game for the first step in becoming a touring pro, a preliminary qualifying round at the Tanglewood Course here.

If successful at Tanglewood, he will go to Palm Beach, Fla., and attend the professional golfers school.

In addition to the U. S. Amateur title, Wadkins has won the Western Amateur, the Southern Amateur, the Palmetto, Dixie Intercollegiate and Red Fox college titles.

The Diablo Gymnastics Club, based in Pleasant Hill, has one of the country's top Amateur Athletic Union girls' team.

Bears' Fullback Calls It Quits

CHICAGO (UPI)—Ralph Kurek, a fullback with the Chicago Bears, Tuesday announced he was quitting professional football because of injuries sustained in a motorcycle accident last summer.

Kurek, 28, joined the Bears in 1965 as their 20th draft choice after playing collegiate ball at Wisconsin.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Taxes Are Factor In Sale Of Issues

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. In 1954 I bought 100 shares of Gillette. Subsequent stock splits increased my holdings to 600 shares and reduced my cost to $12.50 per share. Should I retain these shares or take profits? — W. T.

A. Since 1967, Gillette has made scant earnings headway, despite impressive strides in sales. A similarly uninspired performance was reported for the March quarter when earnings dropped 10.6 per cent on a 3.4 per cent year-to-year gain in sales. It is doubtful that 1971 earnings will reach to $2.45-$2.50 estimated by some analysts, and in my opionion only a very modest year-to-year gain is in prospect.

Several steps have been taken to correct the profit squeeze, including sale and liquidation of two loss operations last year. Because its consumer products business is highly competitive, promotional costs are a major factor for Gillette.

In 1970, 18 cents out of every sales dollar was spent on advertising and sales promotion; in 1969 the figure was just under 20 cents. A slower economy in Germany plus higher product prices combined to reduce contributions from the Braun division in the first quarter. Offsetting this, however, will be the continued brisk demand in the Toiletries, Safety Razor and PaperMate divisions, spurred by newly-introduced products.

While shares have moderate long range growth potential, dividend return is modest if income is of primary importance to you. In addition, you must consider the tax implications of the large capital gain which would result if shares were sold. Partial sale appears to be your best choice.

Q. I would appreciate your advising me what has happened to Bermec Corp., formerly listed on the NYSE. — B.R.

A. The New York Stock Exchange suspended trading in these shares in Nov. 1970, because the company no longer met the minimum listing requirements. However, the shares, which are listed on the Philadelphia-Baltimore-Washington Exchange, recently changed hands at 50 cents a share. On June 3, 1971, company's amended petition for reorganization under Chapter X of the Bankruptcy Act was approved by the Federal Court.

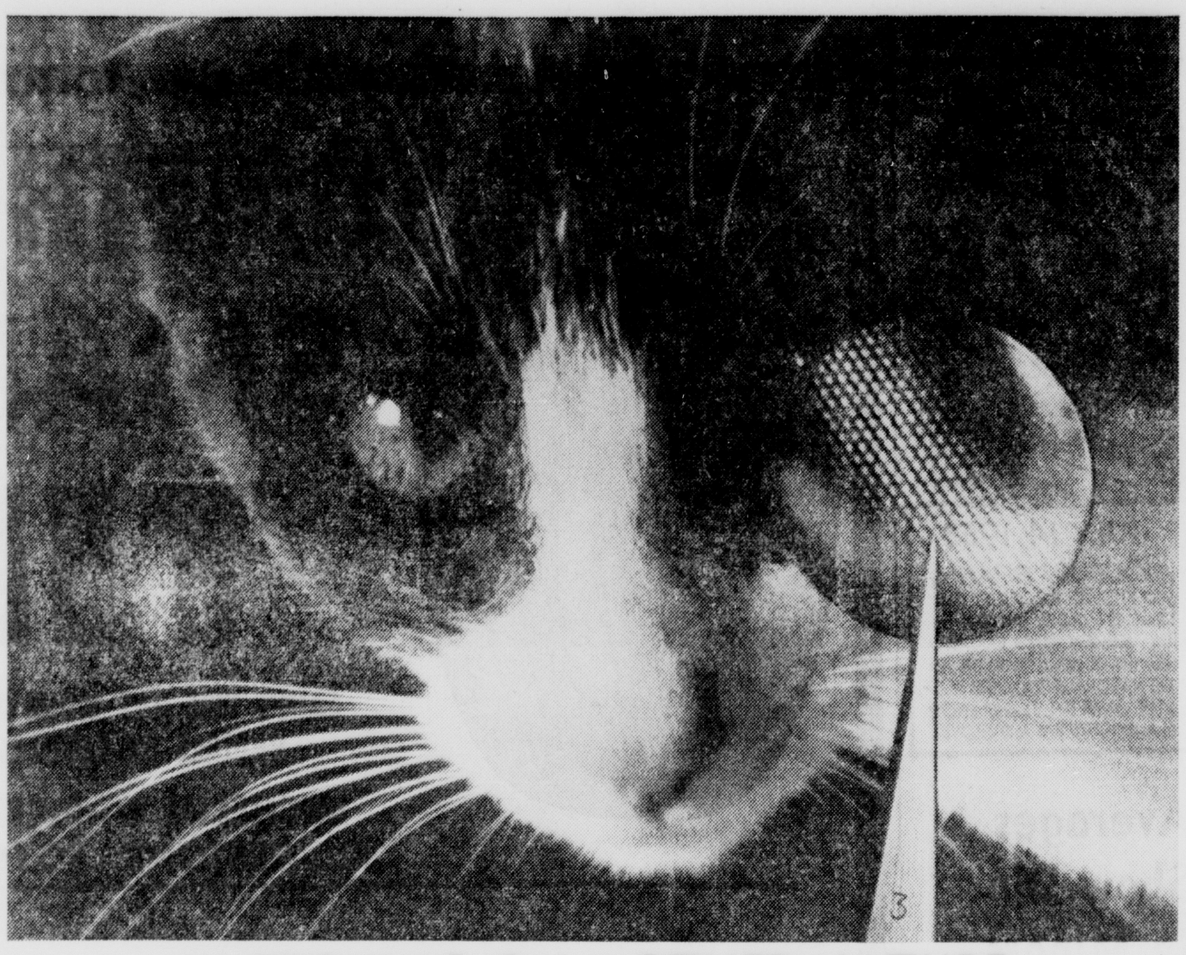
Stocks Drop With IBM Leading Way

NEW YORK (UPI) —IBM again led the way lower on Wall Street today after having tumbled 13 points the previous session. Turnover, however, was relatively light.

After almost two hours of trading, the computer giant's stock was off another 5 3-4. On Tuesday, IBM reported second quarter per share earnings in line with the year ago period. One analyst said investors were disappointed with IBM's quarterly report and added that there now was concern other glamor stocks also may report flat second quarter earnings.

Prices moved lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Declines led advances by more than 300 issues.

Among the most active issues were Asamera Oil fractionally lower on 15,000 shares, T. T. B. Corp. down slightly on 14,000 shares, and Emery Industries also slightly lower on 14,000 shares.



IMPROVING ON MOTHER NATURE

Cats long have been acknowledged champions of night vision, but Tabby now takes a back seat to this two-inch disc containing hundreds of microscopic image intensifiers called multiplier arrays. The tiny array, developed by Varian Associates of Palo Alto, Calif., is so sensitive it can be used in special equipmnet to let an observer "see" a person hundreds of yards away even on the darkest night. It is capable of making an image up to 10,000 times brighter.

Tristar, Rolls Engine Pass Tests

PALMDALE, Calif. (BW) — Rolls-Royce RB .211 fanjet engines for Lockheed's L-1011 Tristar have completed more than 1,000 test flying hours in the new jetliner.

The 1,000 hour milestone was achieved in the 127th test flight last Friday. In eight months of flight testing, the Tristar has successfully met its most critical flight objectives, said Jack Woodman, chief engineering test pilot for Lockheed-California Co.

"Our tests have shown the L-1011 to have stability and handling qualities rarely found in any large aircraft," Woodman said.

L-1011's will enter airline service in April 1972. Rolls-Royce has delivered 20 RB.211 engines to Lockheed and will deliver an additional 18 engines by year end.

Pilots from seven airlines have flown the tristar and have praised the smoothness of the RB.211, its handling characteristics, as well as its low noise and smoke levels. Airline crews have also praised the engine's thrust reversing system, which has been demonstrated down to zero speed, Woodman reported.

"RB.211's have proved very responsive to acceleration and deceleration in flight and their ground handling characteristics have been excellent. We've successfully operated engines in a 45-knot cross-wind and have started engines in a 20-knot tail wind," he said.

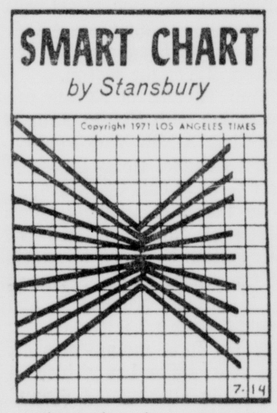
L-1011 test flights have reached a peak altitude of 42,000 feet, well above the expected cruising altitude. The L-1011 has flown at a top speed of 660 miles per hour, also well beyond its airline cruising speed.

Other highlights of L-1011 flight 1,000 RB.211 engine hours have included take-offs up to a maximum weight of 404,570 pounds and a maximum flight time of 6 hours, 41 minutes. Test flights have included two North Atlantic crossings, when the third L-1011 flew to Europe in June for the Paris Air Show and visited Rolls-Royce facilities in England.

A "perfect performance" has been turned in by the Tristar's automatic landing system, which will permit landings under poor weather conditions, Woodman said.

The L-1011's "flying tail," used for the first time in any American commercial aircraft, has also drawn compliments from test pilots, Woodman said. The "flying tail" gives a pilot better control of an aircraft, particularly in cases of severe air turbulence.

A third innovation in the L-1011, its direct lift control system, also has been successfully tested, Woodman reported. This system gives the L-1011 superior landing accuracy and improves control response.



"The sales department's reaction to the President's inspirational message varied."

End Near For Military Academy

Eighty-year-old San Rafael Military Academy will cease operations in late July, barring an unforeseen financial windfall, school officials said yesterday.

According to headmaster Derrick Whiting, the school "has had it unless a fairy godmother turns up damn quick!"

The school has been in a financial bind for about a year, Whiting said, and fund raising projects have not raised the nearly $1 million needed to reopen next fall.

Colonel Whiting said that the school's 140 students have for the most part transferred to other schools. A nine-member staff, including maintenance personnel, is now manning the academy office and officially closing the school at Fifth and College avenues.

The retired Army colonel said he does not know who will use the grounds in the fall, but officials of the Episcopal Diocese of California, which backed the school until last year and owns the grounds, said they hope to open a parochial school.

Chancellor John Gallaher the diocese's lawyer, said "the church would like to have a school on the grounds and is moving in that direction." Officials of the diocese are now meeting with "a group of interested people" who want an Episcopal school.

Such a development would be in keeping with the widely circulating rumor, last school year, that the academy could survive, retaining its ties with the diocese, if it would deemphasize the military aspect and adopt a regimen thought by some more in keeping with a church school.

There also were reports that a girls' school would have considered a merger if trappings were dropped. The academy board, however, preferred to stand or fall with the military tradition.

Gallaher said the San Rafael Academy was notified earlier in the year, that unless it was able to solve its financial problems, it would not be granted use of the grounds for next fall. However, according to Gallaher, the Diocese had to financially assist the Academy in completing its 1970-71 term.

Frank W. Hearne, president of the academy's board of trustees, has not yet conceded defeat, however. "No ball game is over until the final whistle is sounded," he said. "We are going to continue to pursue every available financial avenue open to us as long as possible," he said. But Hearne was pessimistic.

"My practical business sense tells me that only a miracle could save the academy right now." Hearne said he and the board have asked the diocese to make every effort to preserve the grounds as an educational institution "because people have come to depend on it as such."

Hearne explained that no private school can survive only on tuition. He linked the school's lack of donations with a general decrease in the popularity of the military.

"There is a segment of the population who feels that because of this country's involvement in Vietnam, anything that has 'military' in front of it is bad and they are not going to support it."

"The donating public is pretty much swinging with the times. There are any number of more popular causes and just so much money to be donated," Hearne said.

The military academy does not train boys to be soldiers, he said, but makes them "mentally tough" and instills discipline and spirit, Hearne said. "I can attest that it works because I have never known a finer group of young men than the students here," he added.

Jackson To Eye Florida Primary

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said today he would take a six-day "look-see" in Florida starting Thursday to test his prospects in event he decides to seek the 1972 Democratic Presidential nomination.

"If I become a candidate I will enter the Florida primary without question or doubt," Jackson said in a statement. "It will be a pretty good indicator, a 'cross section' of the country."

Cautious Rubber Bridge Expert Often Misses Possible Overtrick

The national bridge tournament scheduled to begin at the Palmer House in Chicago this Friday reminds us that there are important differences between rubber bridge and tournament bridge. In a pair contest scored at match points, the expert goes after every possible trick, often neglecting plays that would assure the contract. The rubber bridge expert goes out of his way to safeguard the contract, often neglecting plays that would bring in an overtrick.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one no-trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold:

♠ - J 9 8 7
♥ - 7 2
♦ - 8
♣ - J 10 9 5 3 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs, the Stayman Convention, asking partner to show a major suit of four or more cards.

If he bids two spades, you will pass! If he bids anything else, you will bid three clubs, showing a "club bust." You expect your partner to pass three clubs since you have shown only length in clubs but no strength.

LEADS KING

West leads the king of hearts, and dummy wins with the ace. The next play depends on whether our expert declarer is playing rubber or tournament bridge.

In a tournament, declarer should lead the queen of spades and then the low spade to the king. He plans to ruff a club in dummy, get back to his hand by ruffing a heart and then draw one more round of trumps with the ace.

ALL 13 TRICKS

If the trumps have broken normally, he can then run the diamonds, winning all 13 tricks.

When the trumps break badly, South is in terrible trouble. He wins the second spade with the king, discovering the bad news, ruffs a club in dummy, gets back to his hand with the king of diamonds and draws a third round of trumps with the ace. Then he begins to run the diamonds.

CUTS COMMUNICATIONS

East ruffs the third diamond to cut communications and leads a heart, forcing South to ruff. South gives up a club and is forced to use up his last trump on another heart. West still has the ace of clubs and a good heart, and South is down three.

At rubber bridge declarer would make his contract by leading a low trump from dummy at the second trick. East plays the seven, and South plays low — giving up the trick without a struggle.

RETURNS HEART

East returns a heart (as good a return as any), and South ruffs. He ruffs a club in dummy, cashes the queen of spades, gets back with the king of diamonds, and draws trumps with the ace and king. Then he can safely run the diamonds. The cautious rubber bridge expert gladly gives up his play for 13 tricks to make sure of his contract.

ALMANAC

Today is Wednesday, July 14, the 195th day of 1971.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury and Jupiter. Those born on this day are under the sign of Cancer.

Swedish film director Ingmar Bergman was born July 14, 1918.

On this day in history:

In 1789 the French stormed the Bastille prison in Paris, a day now commemorated as a national holiday in France.

In 1798 Congress passed the Sedition Act, making it a crime to publish any "false, scandalous and malicious" writings against the government, Congress or the president.

In 1965 U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Adlai Stevenson died of a heart attack in London.

In 1966 eight nurses were found murdered on the South Side of Chicago. Drifter Richard Speck later was convicted of the crimes and sentenced to death. On June 28, 1971, the Supreme Court overruled the death sentence.

A thought for today: Samuel Butlersaid, "If people would dare speak to one another unreservedly, there would be a good deal less sorrow in the world a hundred years hence."

The German automobile industry was able to export 785,000 cars during the first four months of 1971, according to Federal statistics. This represents an 11 per cent increase compared to the same time last year.

Dock Permit Sought But Protests Erupt

A Greenbrae woman who applied to the Army Corps of Engineers for a permit for an existing dock on Corte Madera Creek, has drawn official protests from the county, state, and a private club.

According to Eugene Huggins, spokesman for the corps, Dorothy F. Sexton of 2170 Redwood Highway, Greenbrae, applied for the permit for the dock in June.

Charles E. Murphy, flood control engineer for Marin County, protested for the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control District and James F. Trout, manager of the State Lands Division, protested for the state, Huggins said.

Both contend that portions of the floating dock are on their property.

Before the corps of engineers will issue a permit, it must be approved by both the county and state, he said.

Murphy said that the flood control district cleaned out all docks when it worked on the creek in 1967 and that the floating dock appeared the next year.

He said that he is working with Miss Sexton and owner George A. Bertram to pull the pilings and dock back into conformity with county ordinances. He said that he thinks that it will be done so that the county can approve the application and send it on to the state.

Robert Cumming, president of Marin Rowing Association, protested that this dock might start a series of such docks and encroach on boating. The club sponsors the Redwood High School rowing team, Huggins said.

Regional Panel Asks Bids For Citizens Task Force

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The regional planning committee of the Association of Bay Area Governments is soliciting nominations from community organizations for citizens to serve on a Regional Citizens Task Force.

Marin County Supervisor John F. McInnis, chairman of the planning committee, explained the task force will have a short-term job of designating a permanent Regional Citizens Forum and to recommend other ways to encourage citizen participation in ABAG.

The task force must be broadly representative of all Bay Area citizens, he said, and should include representatives from community organizations with regional concerns in planning, open space, housing, recreation, environmental quality and transportation.

Nominations for the task force may be recommended to ABAG's executive committee, which will make the appointments to the task force. Nominations are due at ABAG headquarters in the Hotel Claremont by July 28.

Colombo Treated For Infections

NEW YORK (UPI)—Joseph Colombo has contracted systemic infections which have his doctors more concerned than the three bullet wounds that have kept him in a coma since June 28.

Colombo, the reputed Brooklyn Mafia boss, was receiving antibiotics to combat the infections, doctors said Tuesday. He remained in critical condition at Roosevelt Hospital.

Colombo, 48, was shot at an Italian-American unity day rally by Jerome Johnson, 24, a black man who was killed at the scene by a still unknown gunman.

Vic Damone Files For Bankruptcy

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Vic Damone, claiming he was more than $700,000 in debt mostly because of back taxes, filed for bankruptcy Tuesday in federal court.

Damone, 43, whose real name is Vito Farinola, listed debts at $784,137 and assets at $35,371. The singer said he owed $277,797 in back federal taxes, $18,833 in state taxes and $2,211 in city and county taxes.

Pottery Warning; No Recall

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Food and Drug Administration (FD) has advised consumers against storing acidic food and beverages in ceramic dinnerware but has decided against a massive recall of pottery products.

The FDA announced Tuesday it had discovered that foods and beverages sometimes absorb poisonous lead and cadmium from decorative decals on dinnerware.

"Since there is no ready means to identify whether decaled dinnerware already in use contains excessive levels of these metals, the consumer should not store acidic foods or beverages in such containers for prolonged periods of time, such as overnight," the FDA said in a statement.

"Daily use of the dinnerware for food service will not pose any hazard," it added.

The FDA cited as examples of acidic items fruit juice, soft drinks, wines, cider, vinegar, sauerkraut, and tomatoes.

Thomas W. Brown, compliance director for the FDA Bureau of Foods, said the decal hazard was discovered during FDA checks for lead and cadmium in pottery glaze.

Brown said the decal hazard, although previously unknown, probably has existed for a decade. The FDA said millions of pieces of dinnerware were involved, from cheap pottery to expensive china.

Brown said the FDA considered a massive recall of all ceramic dinnerware, but decided the hazard was too slight and the recall problems too large for such a move.

With the exception of hand painted items, most dinnerware decorations are by decal, the FDA said. Common decals include stripes around the rim and pictures of fruit or flowers, sometimes embossed.

Driver Slain In Belfast Ambush

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Two gunmen ambushed an army landrover patrol in a Roman Catholic area today, killing the driver, an army spokesman said. The assailants escaped.

The victim was the second soldier to die in Belfast in little over 24 hours and the 10th in the province this year.

Only a few hours earlier, the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) issued a statement in Dublin claiming credit for Monday's killing of soldier David Walker, 30, and warning that others would follow.

Oil Production

BRUSSELS (UPI)—Crude oil production in the European Common Market fell from 13.8 million tons in 1969 to 13.1 tons in 1970. Imports of crude oil by the six Market nations increased from 359,000,000 tons to 403,600,000 tons in the same period.

RIDDLE OF ANGELA DAVIS

The Collegian Meets Marcuse

By JACK V. FOX
United Press International

(Third of Five Articles)

When the Rev. William Melish drove Angela Davis from New York to Brandeis University on the outskirts of Boston in early September, 1961, the 17-year-old girl showed little enthusiasm about entering the freshman year of college.

She had been away from her parents and home in Birmingham, Ala., for two years, living with the Melishes in Brooklyn and attending the "progressive" Elisabeth Irwin High School in Greenwich Village. She had established considerable independence but she was still a shy and aloof young person.

French had been her most difficult subject at Elisabeth Irwin so, with the drive to overcome any obstacle that was to become typical, she chose French literature as her major and moved into the "French House" at Brandeis where only that language was spoken.

Angela was at Brandeis for four years on a $1,500 annual scholarship, except for a junior year abroad at the Sorbonne in Paris, until she was graduated in the spring of 1965.

Brandeis has about 3,000 students and 380 faculty members and was about the same size when Angela attended. Opened in 1948, it is the only Jewish-founded non-sectarian school in the country. It admits students of all religions and races but the majority of students are Jewish.

Brandeis has received considerable publicity in recent years as a "breeding ground" for revolutionaries and other leftist elements. It was the headquarters of a national student strike center in the spring of 1970.

Hebert Marcuse, so-called prophet of the New Left, was teaching at Brandeis the entire

FOOTHILL SEARCH FOR SLAYER OFF

Survivor Of Camp Ordeal Reports Attacker Entered His Tent 'Grumbling And Growling'

GRASS VALLEY, Calif. (UPI)—Sheriff's officers gave up their search in the wild Sierra foothills today for a "maniacal" killer who hacked two persons to death with a sickle at a remote campground.

A third victim, nearly decapitated by the "laughing, grumbling and growling" slayer, was near death in a Sacramento hospital and a young couple was treated for slash wounds.

"We don't feel he's hiding out there behind a pine tree," said Nevada County Sheriff Wayne Brown as he called off the ground search in the heavily-wooded area along the picturesque Bear River in Mother Lode country.

"We haven't got one iota of physical evidence," the sheriff added. He said his investigators would concentrate on the murder scene on the river bank 50 miles northeast of Sacramento.

The bespectacled, middleaged attacker crashed Monday night through the small campground occupied by 17 people— including five women and 10 children—striking out with his deadly sickle.

He killed John Simmons, 29, of the small Sierra village of Weimar, and Mrs. Donna Fitzhugh of Ontario, Calif., at the camp and wounded three others. Simmons also went by the name Jimen Satan, Sheriff Brown said.

Mrs. Martha Marie Parker, 24, of Walnut, Calif., the sister-in-law of Mrs. Fitzhugh, was most seriously hurt. The slayer cut and gouged her, then laid her neck over a tree and tried to cut her head off.

Kenneth Garbe, 20, of Applegate, Calif., who struggled with the killer after the husky man barged into his tent, was in fair condition with multiple wounds. His wife, Jean, 23, suffered minor cuts. She was treated and released.

Garbe said he and his wife were playing cards in their tent when the stranger — who weighed about 200 pounds, had thinning gray hair and wore thick glasses—ripped open the flap.

"He said, 'Hello there,'" said Garbe. "Then he came in swinging a sickle. He started taking a swing at my wife. I grabbed hold of him. She took off for a nearby tent ... The guy knocked me down in a corner of the tent. I stuck my hand up and then he got me. I ran out of the tent. I guess that was when he got me in the back."

As he fled, Garbe said, he saw the man approaching a second campsite. Simmons, who was camping alone, fired at the man three times with a .22 caliber pistol. But the assailant overpowered him, killed him with the sickle and took the gun.

Mrs. Fitzhugh, who was camping with Mrs. Parker and their six children while their husbands mined for gold 20 miles away, then ran out of her tent with a .22-caliber rifle and tried to shoot the slayer. But she couldn't get the gun's safety off and was slainm

Autopsies showed Simmons bled to death from puncture wounds and Mrs. Fitzhugh apparently died of head injuries.

"He was laughing, grumbling and growling like an animal," Garbe said of the killer.

Sheriff Brown said his best witness was 11-year-old Mark Fitzhugh, who saw the killer from about 30 feet away. "He's our only point of information at this time," Brown said. "He saw him at a distance."

An all-points bulletin said the killer, who had a "maniacal laugh," was a middle-aged white man, 5 feet 8 to 10 inches tall, "heavy or chunky" in build and wearing light-colored shirt, tan pants and tan jacket. The sheriff, who described the killings as a senseless, "maniacal attack," said the killer took the .22 pistol and a .41 magnum belonging to Simmons.

In San Francisco, police said the description of the slayer approximated that of the elusive Zodiac killer, who has claimed 17 murders and is believed by authorities to be responsible for at leat six in the past two years. However, the Placer County sheriff's office insisted emphatically that the sickle slayer had no connection with the Zodiac killings in the Bay area.

Phone Service Hit By National Strike

Latest In Rash Of Disputes

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A half million telephone workers launched a nationwide strike today but the use of automated equipment and supervisory personnel limited the immediate impact on the public to minor delays in service.

A spokesman for American Telephone and Telegraph Co. (AT&T) said after the walkout began at 6 a.m. EDT that "until agreement is reached, we will do everything possible to continue to serve out customers. We expect no serious disruptions of service."

A leader of the striking Communications Workers of America predicted the strike would last at least two weeks. Equipment breakdowns and lack of workers to install phones might snarl service to a greater extent in that case.

For the time being, the major hitch in service involved phone calls where operator assistance was needed, mainly for person-to-person and certain other long distance calls. About 95 per cent of normal phone calls involve self-dialing only.

The strike does not affect all of Marin County. Northern Novato, which is served by Western California Telephone Co., a part of the General Telephone System, is not affected by the strike, according to Gordon R. Lee, Novato branch manager.

A check by UPI bureaus throughout the country showed some difficulties in reaching an operator but no insurmountable problems.

Police were summoned to the Hollywood branch office of the telephone company in Los Angeles on complaints pickets threw lighted flares at the cars of company executives reporting for emergency work. No arrests were made.

Telephone operations in Bradford and Charleroi, Pa., were hampered when supervisory personnel said they were unable to get through picket lines to the local exchanges. A spokesman for the company there said a court injunction would be sought to limit picketing if the situation continued.

At Cape Kennedy, Fla., striking workers picketed two entrances to the space center.

Government officials said the dispute would have no effect on the countdown rehearsal now in progress for the July 26 Apollo 15 launching of the fifth U.S. moonshot, but for three hours, members of the Transport Workers Union who perform support operations at the base refused to cross the picket line.

An AT&T statement, issued in New York, deplored the strike as "clearly unnecessary."

"We are very disappointed in the response of the (union) leadership to our proposals aimed at averting a strike," the statement said. "We felt we were very close to reaching an agreement."

It was the first nationwide telephone strike since a 17-day walkout in 1968.

Thousands of workers left their jobs before the official strike deadline in areas where local contracts had already expired.

A union spokesman said no new negotiations were planned, but he said the situation could change "later today."

"We certainly would be receptive to proposals," he said.

The union has charged among other things that there is too much of a differential in the pay of men and women.

The negotiations broke down Tuesday. The Telephone company said it laid a new offer on the table at the last minute, but the union said it was not in writing.

The two sides have been reported close in terms of an overall financial offer, but the dispute centered on how the money was to be spent.

Telephone company employes, many wearing T-shirts which declared "Ma Bell is a Cheap Mother," staged a wildcat walkout in the San Francisco Bay Area last night.

In the Bay Area at least 6,500 operators and repairmen left

A New Angela Bid On Dropping Case

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Angela Davis's attorneys yesterday asked a state appellate court to dismiss charges against her on grounds that "any first year law student knows the state has no case."

The six lawyers requested a writ of prohibition from the State District Court of Appeal to halt proceedings in Marin Superior Court against Miss Davis and her codefendant, Ruchell Magee.

The petition was an appeal from a decision by Judge Richard E. Arnason, who is presiding over the case in Marin and ruled there was enough evidence in a grand jury transcript to hold Miss Davis for trial.

Miss Davis's lawyers reviewed the circumstantial evidence against the former university instructor and said it showed only that she purchased four guns legally and had associated with a participant in the shoot-out last August.

There was no evidence that the weapons used in the escape and kidnapping attempt in which three persons died were furnished by Miss Davis with knowledge they would be used illegally, according to the lawyers.

Meanwhile, State Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger, who ruled last month that the state is not liable for the cost of the Davis-Magee trial, said in a letter that he is doing everything he can to shift the cost to the state.

In a letter to the Marin Board of Supervisors Younger said that his office is recommending to the governor that the cost be born by the state.

He also said he is supporting a bill to amend a penal code section introduced by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, which would make the state liable.

Nixon Veto Of $2 Billion Job Bill Upheld In Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate upheld today President Nixon's veto of a $2 billion emergency public works bill, backed by the Democrats as a program to help ease unemployment.

The administration's cause was helped by the fact Nixon signed Monday a measure to create an estimated 150,000 public service jobs at the state and local level.

He vetoed the other Democratic-sponsored bill on grounds it would be inflationary and would fail to put people to work soon enough because of long-range plans needed for the projects involved.

The Senate action marked the fifth time that the Democratic-controlled Congress had failed to override a Nixon veto. He has lost two veto fights since entering the White House.

With a two-thirds vote needed to override, administration forces were required to muster only 34 votes in support of the President. In sending the bill to Nixon originally, the Senate vote was 45 to 33.

The works bill authorized up to $2 billion in appropriations to areas of high unemployment. The grants would cover 80 per cent of the cost of building such public facilities as hospitals, bridges, sewers and waste treatment plants. Backers estimated 200,000 jobless could have been put to work under the bill.

The plan was a revival of an accelerated public works program first enacted in the Kennedy administration, but with antecedents dating back to the depression era Works Progress Administration (WPA).

Backers of the proposal had hoped to stave off a veto by linking it with a four-year extension of the Appalachia Regional development program and continued funding of the Economic Development Administration. The president favored both the Appalachian and the EDA features of the bill.

The total package carried a price tag of $5.4 billiion —$2 billion for the public works, $1.5 billion for Appalachia and $1.9 billion for EDA.

Apparent Murder In Fairfax: Few Clues

The body of a gray-haired middle-aged Fairfax woman who had apparently been shot to death was found outside her hillside home today.

The murder victim was identified as Barbara P. Shipe, about 50, of 435 Scenic Avenue.

Fairfax police said that Mrs. Shipe was found about 9:50 a.m. on a stairway landing outside her home. At least one bullet had entered her body, they said, but would not specify where.

She was apparently shot while climbing the stairs with a bag of groceries, police said. According to Officer Michael Moriarity, "she died right there." Her body which was clad in an orange dress was believed to have been there several hours and possibly since yesterday.

Police said they thought that Mrs. Shipe had been living alone in the well-kept two-story house.

Police would not discuss suspects.

They broadcast an all-points bulletin for Edwin Evan Shipe, 49. It was not disclosed what relation he was to Mrs. Shipe.

Apollo 'Glitch' Bug

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)— Apollo 15's astronauts simulated their July 26 launch to the moon today but the rehearsal was marred slightly by a momentary drop in spacecraft electrical power and the pilots opened their moonship hatch early as a precautionary measure.

Hub Voters Reject Tax Increase

San Anselmo School District voters —turning out in light numbers — yesterday — decisively turned down an 80-cent tax rate increase.

According to a school district spokesman, the issue was defeated by a vote of 1,876 against to 790 in favor. The spokesman termed the election "a disaster."

About 35 per cent of the district's 7,558 registered voters, turned out.

The district said the measure was rejected in all of its 10 precincts with the Wade Thomas School precinct the least disapproving. That precinct registered 102 votes in favor and 146 against.

The district had requested an 80-cent tax rate increase to its present general tax rate of $2.25 per $100 assessed valuation.

Member Of Getty Family Dies

ROME (UPI) — Talitha Pol Getty, the wife of American oil billionaire's son J. Paul Getty Jr., died in a Rome clinic Saturday, shortly after she collapsed in her home, police said today. She was 31.

Mrs. Getty

Police said the public prosecutor ordered Mrs. Getty's body taken to the morgue, and a magistrate questioned her 37-year-old husband.

Getty and his wife, a former actress, were leading members of Rome's jet set. At the time of her death, they had one son and were separated.

Getty Jr. and Miss Pol met at a London party in 1965. The next year, he divorced his first wife, Gail, daughter of a California judge. The couple had four children.

Talitha Pol Getty was born in Holland to Dutch artist Villen Pol, who lives in the south of France. One of her grandfathers was Augustus John, a renowned portraitist.

She was widely known in Rome's nightspots, where she often was photographed in revealing lace gowns when the "nude look" was fashionable.

'Joint' Deterrent

SEOUL (UPI)—Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said today only a realistic deterrent can assure peace, and that such a deterrent is possible only as a "joint venture" between the United States and its allies.

Laird ended his Asian tour and left for home with a promise that the United States would remain a Pacific power and keep its commitments to its Asian allies.

He also said the American military force in South Korea would remain at its present level of 43,000 for at least another year. The force was cut by one-third last year.

Manhunt For Rebels

RABAT, Morocco (UPI)—Army troops hunted today for more than 500 rebels who fled into the rugged Moroccan countryside after their attempt to overthrow King Hassan II failed. Reliable government sources said more rebel officers already captured soon would be executed.

On Tuesday, 10 top officers who helped lead the abortive coup Saturday went before a firing squad. As they were cut down, they shouted "Long Live King Hassan."

Moroccan television Tuesday night showed the officers — including Hassan's brother-in-law, Gen. Kiati Bougrine — being taken before the firing squad. The actual shooting was not shown, although Morocco Radio gave a live, detailed description as it happened earlier in the day.

Space Shuttle Pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A $500 million contract for delivery of 36 reusable rocket engines for a space shuttle service has been awarded by the space agency to a California company.

The contract, awarded to North American Rockwell Corp., Canog Park, Calif., was described Tuesday by Dr. James C. Fletcher, chief of the National Aeronauticsand Space Administration (NASA), as an "important first step" in the shuttle program.

The shuttle will be operated like an airliner in the atmosphere and like a rocket in space and will be used initially to launch heavy unmanned satellites into orbit.

Later it may be used to carry men to and from orbiting space stations or to moon bases and back.

Ellsberg Reveals Why He Acted

NEW YORK (UPI)—Daniel Ellsberg, one-time Pentagon hawk turned antiwar activist, decided to release the Defense Department study on the Vietnam War to the press shortly after the Army dropped charges against eight Green Berets in 1969.

"I was lying in bed reading the paper when I saw the headline: 'Green Beret case charges dropped,'" Ellsberg said Tuesday. "... And very soon after that I made my decision."

Ellsberg, 40, a former Pentagon and State Department adviser, said "a great deal had contributed" to his decision to make public the 47-volume study commissioned by former Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. But the final straw was the announcement that then-Secretary of the Army, Stanley Resor, was dropping the charges against the Green Berets, allegedly because a trial would reveal too much information concerning the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

"I knew this was untrue," Ellsberg said in a television interview. "The White House had made the decision."

Ellsburg made his remarks on ABC's "Dick Cavett Show."

He said Resor had dropped the charges on behalf of the Johnson administration, over the protests of the commander of troops in Vietnam, Gen. Creighton Abrams.

The eight Green Berets never were court-martialed for allegedly executing a suspected Vietnamese double-agent.

Civilians Caught In Jordanian Fire Line

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Hundreds of civilians fled villages and refugee camps in the line of fire today as the Jordanian army bombarded Palestinian guerrilla bases for the second day in a row.

An army doctor said 25 civilians had been wounded. He declined to give the number of military casualties, if any.

About 3,000 guerrillas who form the remnants of the armed Palestinian reistance movement in Jordan are grouped in hill bases around Jerash, site of Roman ruins 25 miles north of Amman.

In Cairo, the Egyptian government expressed disappointment over Jordan's fresh offensive against the guerrillas and asked King Hussein to delay a visit to Cairo scheduled to start July 23, the 19th anniversary of the Egyptian revolution.

In Beirut, a guerrilla spokesman accused King Hussein's government of trying to carry out "plans aimed at liqudating the Palestinian revolution."

The spokesman in Beirut said Jordanian army units have blocked roads leading to the guerrilla bases in the vicinity of Jerash 25 miles north of Amman. Government forces also shelled the area Tuesday.

In Tel Aviv, Prime Minister Golda Meir said a top American official will visit Israel within the next two weeks but she is not aware whether he will bring new proposals from Washington on how to find peace in the Middle East.

Mrs. Meir, in a statement to her ruling Labor party Tuesday, said Assistant Secretary of State Joseph J. Sisco was making the visit but denied Israel had attempted to avert Sisco's trip for fear of renewed American pressure for further Israeli concessions on Middle East issues. The meeting was private but the details were leaked to the press.

In Jordan, Palestinian sources claimed that King Hussein has resumed his war of attrition against the 3,000 Arab guerrillas who form the remnants of the Palestinian resistance movement in his nation.

Strong Quake Hits Solomon Islands

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A strong earthquake, rated at 8.1 on the richter scale, occurred at 9:11 a.m. EDT today in the vicinity of the World War II battleground of Bougainville in the Solomon Islands, the national earthquake information center said.

A spokesman for the center said the quake was strong enough to cause large waves, but he said there had been no reports of unusual wave activity.

Reagan Says He Supports President

JACKSON HOLE, Wyo. (UPI)—California Gov. Ronald Reagan insisted today his "very great concern" for President Nixon's welfare reform plan should not be construed as lack of political support for the President.

"The President isn't a bit concerned about it. He seems to think we're getting along just fine," said Reagan, who described himself and Nixon as "good friends."

The issue was raised at the Western Governors Conference when Oregon Gov. Tom McCall charged that Reagan was endangering Nixon's 1972 reelection bid by offering only "lukewarm" political support and sniping at the President's welfare plan.

Reagan today was leading a welfare discussion to describe his alternative to Nixon's proposal. Reagan's plan—which would tighten welfare eligibility requirements and clamp a specific lid on relief spending—has been rejected by the California State Senate.

McCall, like Reagan, a Republican, was the leading spokesman among Western governors for Nixon's family assistance plan, which would provide a welfare family of four minimum relief payments of $2,400 annually.

McCall said there was "fairly good support" among Western governors for Nixon's proposal, which has passed the House and is pending in the Senate.

Reagan told an airport news conference after arriving at this Rocky Mountain resort Tuesday night night that "I have very great concern about adding millions of people to the rolls in the family assistance plan."

Under Nixon's program, welfare caseloads would be roughly doubled, primarily because the working poor would receive partial payment as an incentive for recipients to find employment and ultimately get off the dole.

Reagan described welfare as "the problem that has to be solved in this country or you're going to find virtual insolvency and bankruptcy in many state and local governments."

KY OFFICIALLY ENDS THIEU TIE

S. Vietnam Vice President To Seek Leadership; U.S. Opens A New Firebase

SAIGON (UPI)—Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky broke his political alliance with President Nguyen Van Thieu today, accusing Thieu of "dictatorial practices" and trying to conduct a fraudulent election next fall.

Ky hopes to oppose Thieu in the Oct. 3 presidential election along with Gen. Duong Van (Big) Minh, although Ky reportedly is having trouble getting needed support.

The South Vietnamese Supreme Court Tuesday night ruled constitutional an election law to limit the number of candidates who can run for the presidency. The law was criticized as being weighted in Thieu's favor.

"My conscience demands that I put an end to this association which existsonly in name and that I no longer blindly follow you on the path of errors which have placed our fatherland in peril," said Ky in a letter to Thieu.

On the war front the U. S. Army, which turned over its last outpost along the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) to the South Vietnamese last week, opened a new artillery base there Tuesday. GIs, anticipating a renewal of the North Vietnamese summer offensive, today dubbed it "The Hellhole."

The U.S. 24th Corps Command, whose headquarters are in the northern coastal city of Da Nang, moved four eight-inch howitzers and two 175-millimeter self-propelled field guns into the new base.

It lies on a flat and grassy plain just west of Cam Lo and six miles south of the buffer strip between North and South Vietnam.

It is three miles due south of Charlie Two, the last base the Americans had held. About 60 Americans manned the guns today.

Military sources said the big American guns would help defend Vietnamese positions at Charlie Two and Firebase Fuller, about six miles west.

Fuller, briefly overrun in a savage Communist assault June 23, is being rebuilt with prefabricated concrete bunkers airlifted in from the coast.

The sources said the new base, which had no official name as of tonight, would form an integral link in the DMZ defense line, expected to come under heavy attack during a renewed Communist offensive aimed at disrupting the South Vietnamese presidential election Oct. 3.

The DMZ line is a chain of interlocking fire bases starting near the coast of the Gulf of Tonkin and running about 25 miles inland before turning south.

It is aimed at stopping Communist infiltration into the lowlands and along the coast.

In Saigon, military spokesmen today reported new fighting between South Vietnamese forces and Communist units in the northern provinces of South Vietnam, the Mekong Delta and Cambodia. American B52 bombers carried out raids along the Laotian border.

A single Communist shelling attack Monday was the only action involving American troops in the past 10 days.

There was still no explanation for the long lull in combat involving the 236,000 Americans still in Vietnam. U.S. officers in the north again speculated there might be some connection between the lack of fighting and the new Communist peace proposals in Paris.

Only 12 per cent of the students in Peru who start school graduate from high school, according to a government study.

House Kills Contempt Bid On CBS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rep. Harley O. Staggers blamed the "awesome power" of the television networks for the House decision Tuesday not to press contempt of Congress charges against CBS President Frank Stanton and his network.

The West Virginia Democrat said Tuesday's 226 to 181 vote to send the contempt citation back to his Commerce Committee had killed the attempt to cite CBS for defying a subpoena. Staggers had wanted to see film edited out of the CBS documentary "The Selling of the Pentagon."

"I feel this is a sad day for the American people," a somber Staggers said after the vote. "The vote today showed the awesome power of the television networks and the news media ... brought to bear on the House of Representatives."

After the vote Stanton said "we are very pleased by the decisive house vote against the Commerce Committee's resolution citing CBS for contempt. As responsible journalists, we shall continue to do our best to report on public events in a fair and responsible manner."

Halloween Sadists May Face Prison

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Halloween sadists who hand out candy and apples filled with crushed glass or pins would face heavy prison sentences under a bill approved by the Michigan House.

The measure would make it a felony punishable by a fine of up to $10,000 or up to 10 years in prison, or both, to purposely dispense food containing dangerous material.

Telephone Walkout Idles Half A Million

their jobs Tuesday. The walkout hampered operator-assisted long distance and directory information services, although PT&T officials said they expected service would be as usual today.

Some 30,000 communications workers in Southern California walked off their jobs early today and Pacific Telephone management personnel attempted to fill in for the strikers.

Tom McNaughton of Pacific Telephone, told UPI that calls going through the operators would take longer than usual but if "people use the direct dial system there would be little slowdown."

However, the strike and others in progress or threatened prompted Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson to issue a statement urging Congress to pass President Nixon's bill for settling emergency labor disputes.

"If Congress does not do something in the way of basic legislation to deal with national emergency labor disputes," he said, "then it must do something in the way of preparing to act with ever increasing frequency to resolve individual crises one at a time."

Besides the communications headache, there are current strikes by 39,000 copper workers, 20,000 telegraph workers, 15,000 longshoremen and 5,000 United Auto Workers.

To make matters worse, the United Transportation Union was continuing its efforts to strike against three railroads Friday.

Other labor problems include an unsettled contract which expires at the end of the month for 350,000 steel workers and the fact that unions representing 650,000 mailmen are seeking a 30 per cent wage increase and job security in the new postal service.

The only good news to hit the labor scene was an agreement Tuesday between the 23,000 member Screen Actors Guild with movie and television producers in Hollywood.

The actors guild approved a new three-year contract calling for 15 per cent wage hikes in the minimum pay of actors and actresses. The previous minimum was $120 a day or $420 a week.

The U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington refused to block a strike Friday against the Chicago & North Western Railway, one of the three lines threatened. However, only hours after the three-judge panel denied a C&NW petition to force the union to bargain for a separate contract with the line, a federal judge in Chicago issued an injunction forbidding the strike until after a July 23 hearing.

The UTU dispute with the rails centers on work rule changes, which the rails have threatened to put into effect immediately if the strike occurs. The UTU is objecting to new work rules which would institute longer crew runs, use of radios by crews without additional pay and permit yard crews to do work under certain circumstances.

A Supreme Court ruling last month said the union could strike individual railroads as long as such action was part of an effort to obtain a nationwide agreement.

Negotiations in the two-week old copper strike were recessed in Washington Tuesday "subject to call" between Phelps Dodge Copper Co. and the United Steel Workers.

Kennecott Copper, which had not met with the USW for four days, resumed talks Tuesday in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Negotiations were continuing in Washington today between Western Union and representatives of the 17,000-member United Telegraph Workers union with federal mediators standing by.

The 15,000 member International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's union strike moved into its 4th day with no talks scheduled. The union is striking 24 West Coast ports in its demands for a 40-hour work week and a $1.65 wage increase over two years.

The UAW strike against J.I. Case Co. at Racine, Wis., and plants at Terre Haute, Ind., Burlington and Bettendorf, Iowa, and Rock Island, Ill., moved into its 5th day.

Negotiations in the wage dispute broke down Friday and none have been scheduled.

Case President J.L. Ketelsen said the firm has offered a 41 per cent wage increase during a three year contract but the UAW wants a higher cost of living increase effective immediately.

In a letter addressed to all employes Tuesday, Ketelsen indicated the company's willingness to go back to the bargaining table when the union makes a "significant" move.

Negotiations are continuing in Washington between the steel workers and the steel industry, but union representatives have said the outlook is bleak.

$93,000 Bill Draws Sonoma Fire

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors has called for an explanation of the $93,000 billing received from the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District as cost of its membership in the district in the fiscal year that began July 1.

Board chairman Ignazio A. Vella said the board felt there may have been a "slight mistake" in the billing, since only half the county has joined the district but the cost is equal to that proposed for the entire county when membership was discussed last year.

Vella said the board was also concerned that the tax rate limit of 2 cents per $100 assessed valuation would not raise the required $93,000 since tax producing industries in the northern portion of the county would not be contributing. He said that even though populous Santa Rosa and Petaluma are district members, the assessed valuation would not be enough to pay the district cost.

Vella said the board would ask that the district exclude Southern Sonoma from the backyard burning ban applied in other parts of the Bay Area.

Young Mother, Son Routed By House Fire

A young mother and her 30-month-old son were routed from their Bolinas home last night when a fire gutted one of the bedrooms.

Joann Leonard and her son, Jason, spent the night with friends following the fire at 11:29 p.m. at 505 Birch Road. The house is owned by Frank Meyer of Bolinas.

Firemen believe the fire, which caused about $5,500 damage, was started by a cigarette.

Seventeen volunteer firemen from Bolinas fought the blaze which was confined to the bedroom and hallway. Smoke damage occurred throughout the house, firemen said.

Damage was estimated at $4,000 to the building and $1,500 to the contents.

5 Days Given In Driving Case

Herbert Parker Sioussat, 56, of San Rafael, was sentenced to five days in Marin County Jail yesterday after he pleaded no contest to a reduced misdemeanor charge of drunken driving.

Judge David R. Baty, sitting in Marin Municipal Court, also placed Sioussat on probation for one year.

Sioussat was originally charged with felony drunken driving after his auto collided May 30 with another car in Greenbrae and injured the other driver.

Youth, 16, Hurt In One-Car Crash

A 16-year-old San Rafael youth suffered scalp cuts yesterday at 11:35 p.m. in a one-car crash on Lucas Valley Road west of Mount McKinley Road, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Scott H. Munzig, of 119 Nova Albion Way, was a passenger in a car driven by Daniel Guisti, 18, of 715 Knocknaboul Way, Terra Linda, which ran off the road on a curve and struck an embankment, officers said.

Munzig was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael.

Benefit To Bring 2 Beatles Together

NEW YORK (UPI) —Two of the Beatles, separated by the breakup of the famed rock group, will get together at Madison Square Garden to help a special United Nations fund drive for the victims of the Pakistani civil war.

George Harrison is expected here next week from the West Coast and Ringo Starr will come later from Spain to rehearse for their first appearance together since 1966.

Rumors Of Mill Valley Settlement

The Strikebound City of Mill Valley posted security guards at its corporation today as both sides prepared to negotiate amid rumors that a settlement is imminent and that raw sewage was being dumped into the bay.

Sources said today's scheduled negotiating session between city representatives and the employees may mark a breakthrough in the negotiations and that the 14-day-old strike may end soon.

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham confirmed today that two security guards from the Burns Protection Agency were hired Thursday to guard the city corporation yard on Sycamore Avenue after reports of vandalism there.

Cunningham said the guards, who cost the city $140 per day, were hired "to protect city-owned property worth millions of dollars." They are on duty nightly from 5 p.m. to 6 a.m.

Today's meeting was set Monday morning after negotiators broke up following an all-night bargaining session lasting until 5:30 a.m.

Thirty-nine employees, excluding police and firemen, have been on strike since July 1 for what they say is a failure by the city to negotiate in good faith.

The employees belong to the Mill Valley Employees Association, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, an AFL-CIO affiliate.

Both Cunningham and Ross Benson, director of public works, denied rumors that raw or incompletely treated sewage is being dumped into Richardson Bay from the city treatment plant.

An official of the Regional Water Quality Control Board, area engineer Dennis Mishak, also said he is unaware of any dumping of untreated sewage into the bay.

Employees yesterday disputed Cunningham's contention that they submitted a list of 304 demands to the city's paid negotiator, the San Francisco firm of Industrial Employers and Distributors Association.

That figure, they said, came from the number of paragraphs in a model contract they gave the negotiator for city consideration.

The requests, not demands, each took several paragraphs to explain but each paragraph was not a separate item, they said.

Many of the requests were merely an attempt by employees to put into writing unwritten policies that had existed for years regarding sick leave, vacation pay and other items of employment, they said.

19-Year-Old Is Booked On Drug Charge

A 19-year-old San Anselmo youth was booked into Marin County Jail yesterday by federal narcotics agents on suspicion of selling dangerous drugs.

Kenneth George Bullock of 300 Laurel Avenue was held at the jail today pending an appearance before the U.S. magistrate in San Francisco.

He was arrested at his residence about noon yesterday by a federal agent who said he had made a deal with Bullock to purchase one ounce of Psilocibin, a hallucinatory drug.

A 16-year-old San Anselmo youth who allegedly brought the drug to Bullock's residence was turned over to Marin Juvenile authorities.

Man Bound Over In Theft Case

John Michael Van Liew, 20, of Mill Valley, was bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on a charge of burglary.

He is to be arraigned in superior court Aug. 16.

Van Liew was arrested June 30 when a Mill Valley policeman allegedly saw him inside Quinn's Tavern, 2 Corte Madera Avenue, after the bar had closed.

Ferryboat Plans To Be Reviewed

Specifications for the Golden Gate Bridge District's fleet of four $2.1 million ferryboats will be reviewed by the building and operating committee at 2 p.m. tomorrow in toll plaza offices.

Plans for the 165-foot vessels were drawn by the district's consulting naval architect, Philip F. Spaulding of Seattle. Three are to serve a Larkspur terminal and the fourth will be added to the existing Sausalito service.

Britain Is Beating Back Pollution

By DENNIS EISENBERG
Toronto Telegram News Service

LONDON — On two successive balmy spring days recently it was found that the air above the industrial city of Sheffield was crystal-clear.

Well, if not quite crystal-clear, then at least the pollution researchers of this steel-factory city calculated that the air being breathed by its citizens was cleaner than at any known time since the Industrial Revolution of the last century.

Anybody who has lived in the industrial north of Britain, and Sheffield is one of its smoky bastions, will remember only too clearly the filthy blanket of smoke, grime and fumes which spread across the land for mile after mile.

The killing, obnoxious pall was always so persistent that children brought up in the industrial heartland of the United Kingdom thought it part of nature like rain or snow or night and day.

Now, thanks to smoke-abatement regulations which have slowly been pressed forward district by district, suburb by suburb, the sun is beginning to shine again in the industrial cities of Britain.

Combined with other anti-pollution measures, this has helped make the U.K. a healthier place to live in.

The effect is being felt in London, too, although the capital has never really been considered a major heavy manufacturing center. The once-dreaded smog seems to have gone forever. Forgotten species of fish are beginning to make their appearance in the Thames again. And in the city's parks and gardens, birds that long ago abandoned London to seek purer air are once more putting in a welcome appearance.

When Richard Crossman recently attacked the Queen on her request for more money, he must have known that the reaction from the country's Royalists would be fierce and loud. Letters from "Her Majesty's most devoted servant," heaping criticism on the head of Crossman, a senior minister in the last Labor government, appeared in The Times, and other newspapers.

Yet criticism of Britain's Royalty is nothing new. Fourteen years ago, John Grigg, then Lord Altringham, attacked the "needless errors" of the Monarchy, as well as the Queen's "tweedy" image and her upper-class schoolgirl voice.

For his outspoken views, Lord Altringham had his face slapped in public and for months afterwards there was a steady stream of abuse by telephone and mail.

A hort time afterwards, English author Malcolm Muggeridge wrote an article in the Saturday Evening Post headed Does England Really Need a Queen?

Even greater hysterics greeted this criticism. A Tory MP called the writer "a hysterical little Communist" and the BBC hurriedly dropped Muggeridge from TV and radio programs as indignant subjects of the Queen complained they "did not want to see his face ever again."

Muggeridge's house was smeared with filth and slogans saying "Glod bless the Queen" were painted across his walls.

Yet criticism of Royalty is not merely a symptom of today's permissive society. In the last century, George IV was savagely lampooned in newspapers and in privately-printed pamphlets. Even Queen Victoria was stridently attacked in print towards the end of her reign.

English-make goods may not hold the "specialness" they once enjoyed round the world as German and Japanese manufacturers grab a growing share of international markets.

With firms like Rolls-Royce going to the wall, industry in this country is having a tough time.

There is one product, however, which is enjoying a boom. It has been lying around for centuries, but nobody has ever thought of exploiting it until Londoner Anthony Abrahams had a bright idea. He is exporting like mad and his overseas customers cannot get enough of his product as he expands his business.

Simply enough, Abrahams is exporting the English language. He is "selling" British teachers to countries eager to learn this now universally sought-after tongue.

Already this year he had "sold" over 200 teachers to Germany. And several other countries are also employing the instructors on the salesman's payroll.

Americans Leave; Base Stripped

CAMP RADCLIFF, Vietnam (UPI)—The heart-shaped perimeter of Camp Radcliff, once one of the biggest U.S. bases in Vietnam, winds for 18 miles around blue-green Hon Cong Mountain.

The camp, a one-time $29 million installation alive with troops, helicopters buzzing through the air and tanks rumbling along the dirt and asphalt roads, now lies almost deserted and picked clean of virtually everything of value.

As part of the winding down of America's role in the war, the Americans pulled out of Camp Radcliff in two steps, Jan. 22 and March 12 this year.

Military sources say U.S. commanders had hoped the South Vietnamese would keep the base operating after the American pullout. The South Vietnamese, however, ordered the base dismantled.

Convoys from South Vietnamese government posts in the area rolled into Camp Radcliff throughout January, February, March and April to load up with equipment. The convoys then set out on Route 19 purportedly to bring the material back to their home bases for military construction.

In fact, according to allied officers, hardly any of the supplies reached the bases. Instead the majority of the goods was sold along the way to black marketers.

The stripping of Camp Radcliff, according to these officers, actually was a looting.

The man responsible, according to a letter written to President Nguyen Van Thieu and signed by 27 South Vietnamese officers, was Maj. Gen. Ngo Dzu, commander of the Second Military Region, which includes Camp Radcliff. Dzu is the same general accused by Rep. Robert H. Steel, R-Conn., of being "one of the chief traffickers in heroin in Southeast Asia."

Whatever the truth of the charge that Camp Radcliff was looted, rather than simply militarily evacuated, there is no question but what it has been stripped. It is also impossible to drive along Route 19 between Qui Nhon and Pleiku nowadays without seeing stacks of tin roofs, wood panels, wire screening and pipes from Camp Radcliff on sale at roadside shops. Storeowners are not able, or willing, to say where they got the goods.

Camp Radcliff is not the first base to have been stripped and, say U.S. officers, it won't be the last.

Dong Tam, the first big U.S. base to be handed over to the South Vietnamese, met the same fate in early 1970. Government troops and civilians also took apart Camp Enari near Pleiku in the Central Highlands in the summer of last year.

Most of the supplies from Dong Tam and Enari wound up on the black market. In addition, dozens of smaller artillery bases have been stripped after being turned over to the South Vietnamese.

"No one questions that there was large-scale graft, corruption and stealing at Radcliff and the other bases," a high-ranking U.S. official told UPI. "But this type of thing is going to occur whenever you give a large U.S. base to the South Vietnamese."

He said the South Vietnamese don't have enough men to man the big installations abandoned by the Americans and prefer to tear them down. In the process, much of the base equipment winds up on the black market.

"There's going to be stealing," he said. "There's nothing we can do about it. My only hope is that at least some of the stuff gets stolen by poor civilians and enlisted men, the ones who need the money the most."

The thievery in Vietnam is massive. In addition to dismantling abandoned U.S. bases, the South Vietnamese black marketers also manage to steal just about every kind of military item imaginable from American bases still operating.

On any given day you can find enough U.S. military hardware on the black market of any major city to outfit an American battalion. There's everything from Khaki drawers to field radios, combat boots, jeeps, tents, wire and fatigues.

It's been said you can even buy an Army UH-1 Huey helicopter on the black market if you look hard enough.

Radcliff, former headquarters of the U.S. Fourth Dicision, was the home base for about 20,000 troops before it was handed over to the South Vietnamese.

Some 500 Americans — a squadron of air cavalry, an artillery battery and support forces—still occupy a small strip, named Camp Buffalo, on the southeastern edge of the base. Security for the bulk of the Radcliff area, however, now rests with only about 75 South Vietnamese militiamen, compared to the two battalions of Americans that used to man the base's perimeter.

U.S. intelligence officers said the shortage of guards has permitted the Communists to set up an observation post on top of Hon Cong Mountain right in the middle of the base. The officers, however, said Communist attacks against Route 19 have, surprisingly, dropped since the withdrawal of American troops.

"It's a simple fact around here that when you turn over a place, there is going to be a lot of stealing," one U.S. adviser said. "It's just a game for them. They don't consider it stealing when you take something belonging to Uncle Sam. It's just taking from a rich uncle."

Almost all that's left of Camp Radcliff today are the heavy concrete slabs that served as the foundations of the buildings torn down. "If they ever think of a way to carry those off they'll be gone too," a U.S. Army officer said.

U.S. military advisers said there is little the United States can do to stop the looting of abandoned American bases.

"We are in a rush to get out," one officer told UPI. "We just don't have enough time to take everything with us. Even if we did it would be a waste of time and money. It'd cost us more to take these buildings apart and ship them back to the states than they're worth to us."

General Dzu has denied any connection with the alleged looting of Camp Radcliff and claims the charges are the results from a clash between him and South Vietnamese Army inspector General Lt. Gen. Lu Lan, Dzu's predecessor as Second Corps commander.

Marin Gives Workers 7.5% Raise

A three-year contract for the Marin County Employees Association, calling for a 7.5 per cent raise this year plus 5 per cent for each of the subsequent two years, paved the way for similar agreement yesterday with all county employees.

Marin County Board of Supervisors unanimously approved the three-year contract with the Marin County Employees Association, representing about 800 of the county's 1,200 employees. The association approved the 7.5-5-5 formula last Friday night.

Supervisors yesterday also approved three-year contracts with all other bargaining units except the deputy sheriffs, who settled for a 6¼ per cent raise this year, with further negotiations next year.

The other agreements are:

Social Workers Union Local 535—4.5 per cent raise this year, 5.5 per cent in July 1972, and 5 per cent in July 1973.

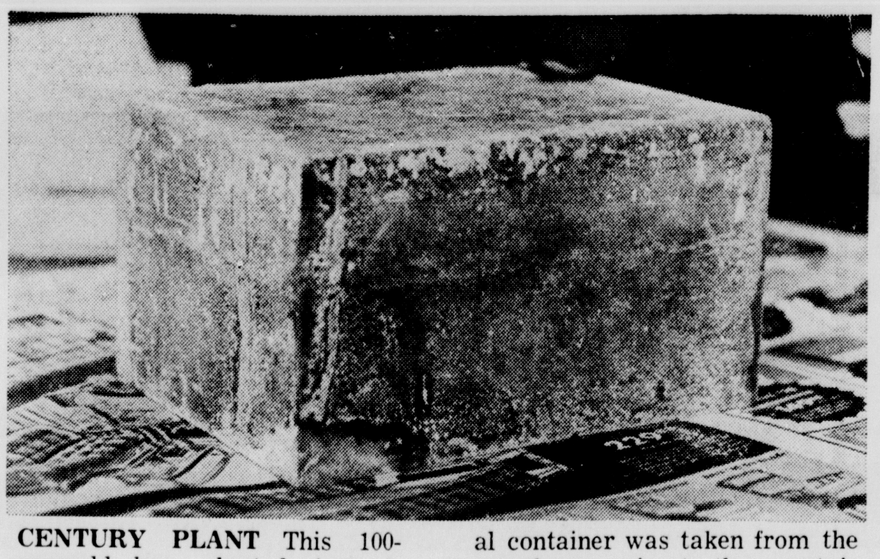
Probation Workers Union Local 535—7.5 per cent, 6 per cent, and 6.5 per cent.

California Nurses Association—7.5 per cent, 5 per cent, and 5 per cent.

The new agreements also gave additional half-day holidays for Dec. 24 and Dec. 31, higher insurance benefits, in some cases, better overtime pay and other fringe benefits.

The $45 million spending budget, hammered out by the supervisors in June, includes the pay raises because the level of increase was just about what was anticipated, County Personnel Director Maren Rinne explained.

She said she does not have a breakdown of exactly what the total increase will be in pay and benefits over last year.



CENTURY PLANT This 100-year-old box, planted Aug. 3, 1982, in the cornerstone of the old Marin County courthouse in downtown San Rafael, is believed to contain newspapers, documents, gold and silver coins and a piece of adobe dating to 1835. So said Supervisor John F. McInnis yesterday when the unprepossessing shoebox-sized metal container was taken from the courthouse ruins to the county's Civic Center. He cited an Independent-Journal article of Nov. 17, 1966 which reproduced a newspaper account of the cornerstone laying. The container will be opened at next Tuesday's meeting of the supervisors, they decided yesterday.

Supervisors Endorse New Bay Agency, Differ on Membership

Marin County supervisors yesterday endorsed the idea of a new regional governmental agency for the Bay Area, with half its members to be appointed by city and county governments, half elected by the voters.

On a motion by Supervisor John F. McInnis, supervisors unanimously endorsed Assembly Bill 1057 (by John Knox, D-Contra Costa), which would create the Bay Conservation and Development Agency of the Bay Area.

The bill calls for a 40-man board of directors, all to be elected directly by Bay Area voters. McInnis wanted that changed so that a majority would be elected officials of cities and counties, to be appointed to the agency board.

At the urging of Supervisors Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., McInnis agreed to go for one half elected city and county officials to be appointed to the board, and the other half to be elected directly.

The Bay Conservation and Development Agency would have power to approve local applications for state grants, and would have jurisdiction over regional services such as transportation, parks and open spaces.

Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

BRIDGE DISTRICT — Voted opposition to Assembly Bill 3094, which would prohibit the Golden Gate Bridge District from engaging in charter, sightseeing or excursion activities with its buses or ferries.

GEOLOGIC SURVEY — Postponed for six weeks any action on a recommendation by Public Works Director Donald R. Frost that the county conduct an $80,000 survey to determine areas in Marin which have geologic hazards.

GIACOMINI — Continued until January 1972 an application by Waldo Giacomini for diking of 132 acres of tidelands at the southern end of Tomales Bay. The state Wildlife Conservation Board is interested in buying the property as a wildlife preserve.

COASTLINE PLANNING — Approved a $6,200 outlay as Marin County's share in a program sponsored by the Association of Bay Area Governments to protect the ocean coastline, with the understanding that county funding will stop if the state decides to fund the program.

FOOD INSPECTION — Voted a $610 outlay to participate in a five-county pilot food inspection project, sponsored by the state Health Department, to simplify the process of food inspection.

ABATEMENT — Ordered abatement of a fire damaged building owned by James F. Workman at 7325 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Lagunitas.

TIDAL WATERWAYS — Extended the Marin Tidal Waterways ordinance to cover Richardson Bay tidelands near Dolan's Corner. At present, the ordinance does not apply to tidelands inland of the railroad tracks.

SWIG LAND DIVISION — Referred back to the Marin County Planning Commission a request by Melvin Swig to create four building sites on his 21-acre property on the south side of Lucas Valley Road west of Mt. Shasta Drive.

AQUADUCT — Withdrew previously expressed opposition to legislation enabling the Marin Municipal water District board to fund construction of the Sonoma-Marin Aquaduct without going to the voters for approval. The withdrawal of opposition came on assurances from Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, there would be provision for a public vote on the measure.

DEMOLITION — Authorized a letter to be forwarded to the county's insurance carrier for the demolition of the fire-damaged San Rafael courthouse. Demolition will take about two weeks after receipt of the letter.

LITIGATION — Authorized the county counsel to pursue litigation with other counties to determine if Governor Ronald Reagan's veto of state budget language is legal. Of concern, is the veto of language dealing with welfare — a veto the county administrator claims could cost local taxpayers $1 million. The veto removes open ended welfare payments to counties.

Test On School Aid Seen

MARLBORO, Mass. (UPI)—The state attorney general's office will issue an opinion soon on the constitutionality of this city's "shared time" program between public and parochial schools.

Designed to meet the constitutional prohibition against state aid to parochial schools, the program has been in effect for grades 1 through 4 at the Immaculate Conception School during the past school year. The plan is unique in Massachusetts though its basic concepts have been adopted by cities in several other states.

Under the plan, the city of Marlboro leases the entire first floor of the school from the Roman Catholic parish for $1 a year and pays one-third of the total building expenditures for heat, electricity and general upkeep. The second floor remains under the control of the parish.

The name of the school has been removed from the exterior of the building and all religious items have been taken away from the "public" sector.

The 270 children attend the "shared time school" in platoon fashion. Approximately half the students are enrolled in the public sector and the other half in the private sector during the morning hours.

In the afternoon, the private school students go downstairs to the public school while the public school students have the choice of moving upstairs to the private school or switching to a nearby public school for the remainder of the day. School curricula are synchronized so a child receives equal educational opportunity regardless of the option he chooses.

Marlboro School Supt. Raymond C. Richer said the program costs the city about $32,000 a year, mostly for the salaries of the four teachers in the public sector.

"We already have a serious enrollment problem," said Richer, echoing the plight of school administrators across the country. "The city would be in a crisis situation if the Immaculate Conception School closed. It would cost a lot more than $32,000 to absorb the entire school population."

St. Mary's School in Marlboro was forced to close last year because of financial considerations and a similar fate would probably befall the Immaculate Conception School if the shared time concept is ruled unconstitutional.

Msgr. William Sullivan, pastor of the church, said "we would have to take more money from the parish treasury" to keep the school open. He did not say how long this could be done.

The State Department of Education has asked the attorney general's office for an opinion on the constitutionality of the shared time program. Officials in that office said a ruling would be issued within a few weeks.

The plan is being examined for possible conflict with both the Massachusetts and U.S. Constitutions, especially in light of the U.S. Supreme Court's recent ruling against state support for salaries of parochial school teachers.

Convicted Of Antiwar Action

LAKENHEATH, England (UPI)—A U.S. Air Force court-martial convicted Capt. Thomas Culver Tuesday of taking part in an anti-Vietnam War demonstration in London May 31 and inciting other airmen to demonstrate.

Culver faced a maximum penalty of fur years at hard labor—two on each count—and dishonorable discharge. Court officials said they expected the sentencing Wednesday.

The 32-year-old Vietnam vekteran, who comes from Westfield, N.J. and practiced law in Santa Barbara, Calif., heard the verdict impassively.

Then he saluted the eightoffi-cer panel that convicted him did a smart about face and returned to his seat to listen while defense witnesses testified to his character before sentence was passed.

Iraq: Rule By Guns Recalled

BEIRUT (UPI)—The prime minister was careless. He neglected the iron rule that a military force not be permitted in the Iraqi capital of Baghdad unless there was a counterforce to pit against it.

Brig. Abdel Karim Kassem was shrewd enough to realize then when he camped in Baghdad July 13, 1958, that there were no other substantial government forces in the capital that night. The result was a coup that sent the Iraqi monarchy to a bloody end.

The coup was being celebrated in Baghdad this week with parades and political rhetoric.

On that hot summer night 13 years ago, Kassem was in Baghdad on his way to Jordan to reinforce King Hussian against a civil war of the type which had recently broken out in Lebanon.

Seeing his once-in-a-lifetime chance, Kassem reconnoitered key points in the city and held discussions with politicians opposed to the rule of 23-year-old King Faisal and his wily old premier, Nuri es-Said.

Kassem seized the radio station, and announced the revolution was over and the king and Nuri were dead. Then he ordered his troops to the palace to turn his words into deeds.

The royal family was blown to pieces by Kassem's gunners. Nuri was shot trying to escape. His body was dragged through the streets, then propped up before cameras in a Baghdad studio for Iraq's television viewers.

Kassem's reward was the premiership. He enjoyed it for less than five years. On Feb. 8, 1963, he was the victim of a counter-coup. He was shot and killed.

This week's celebrations underline the Iraqi propensity for changing governments by gun rather than ballot.

Three days after the ceremonies marking the fall of the monarchy, Iraqis will turn out for the third anniversary of the coup which installed the present Baathist regime.

On July 17, 1968, the Baath party came back to power in a coup carried out by young army officers. The officers were sacked and exiled by the old-guard Baathist leaders as soon as they were firmly in the saddle.

The coup itself was bloodless but almost immediately after the Baathists took office, reports filtered out of Baghdad of purges among their political opponents, unexplained disappearances, bodies found mutilated in ditches.

In January 1969 a special revolutionary court sentenced 14 men to death, nine of them Jews, for spying for Israel. Their corpses were hung from makeshift gallows in public squares in Baghdad and Basra, evoking world-wide revulsion.

But the spy hysteria continued and more than 50 persons were hanged or shot by the end of the year. Iraqi exiles insisted the spy trials were a cover for action against the regime's opponents.

The year 1970 started with trials of soldiers and policemen accused of a coup attempt. Forty-four were executed.

After that the executions apparently stopped. But early this year Air Marshal Hardan Takriti, an exiled leader of the present regime, was assassinated in Kuwait.

Naming Street For Singer Hit

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A city councilman recommended Monday the city reject a proposal to rename a Hollywood street after entertainer Rudy Vallee.

The street, now called Pyramid Place, would be named "Rue De Valle" under the proposal. Vallee lives on the street.

Councilman Robert J. Stevenson told the council's public works committee that the suggestion has already cost the city money and would cost more if it was approved because maps would have to be changed.

Way To Get Rid Of Sludge

LORAIN, Ohio (UPI)—Chemists at a Ford Motor Co. plant have discovered it is possible to turn sludge into dirt.

And they say they are happy about the discovery.

Sludge is a water industrial waste, that is toxic, worthless and difficult to dispose of.

But it can be transformed into a solid, non-toxic, chemically stable dirt, when treated with special chemicals, environmental chemists have discovered at this Lake Erie City.

THE INCHWORM FENCE — A new section of fence, blocking half of forested Baltimore Canyon Trail, is the latest move in a quiet battle between hikers and overseers of the Tiscornia estate. The chain-link barrier has been erected in sections during the last six months at the canyon's entrance near Larkspur. Nature lovers have called the fence and the piecemeal way it has been erected a "painful and annoying" infringement on the public's right of access."

County Supports Hikers' Protest

Marin County supervisors pledged their support yesterday to maintaining public access to the forested Baltimore Canyon near Larkspur — even if it means going to court.

However, they said, as long as a negotiated settlement with the Tiscornia Estate remains possible the county will put off suing.

"We have a right there and I don't think they can take it away," said Chairman Louis H. Baar. "We should continue to negotiate but if that doesn't work out we will go in legally."

Hiking enthusiasts are worried that a six-foot chain link fence at the entrance to the canyon will eventually mean their exclusion.

Since last summer, when survey stakes first dotted steep canyon slopes, hikers have been prodding the supervisors to take a hard line.

Earlier this year, when fencing took the place of survery stakes and hikers were barred entrance except for a small gap in the chain-link barrier, the protest became louder and stronger.

Pierre W. Joske, director of the department of parks and recreation, told the board he felt the Tiscornia interests were willing to talk. In discussions with the estate's attorney, Joske said he was assured the Tiscornia estate does not intend to withhold permission to hike up the canyon.

However, A. Charles Brouse, chairman of the Larkspur Town Meeting, urged immediate action.

"This whole matter is being dragged out by the Tiscornia people," Brouse charged adding that during the weekend the hikers' 10-foot wide access through the fence had been reduced by half.

"They're nibbling away at public rights of access . . . its painful and annoying," he continued.

Supervisors Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni assured Brouse that "our policy is that public trails will remain open."

According to the county counsel's office, court decisions have upheld the public's right to private land provided it has been used without protest for more than five years.

Marinite Weathers Chile Quake; Reports Damage In Relief Plea

A Mill Valley exchange student in Vina Del Mar, Chile, weathered that country's devastating earthquake safely and has appealed to Marinites to help victims of the temblor.

The parents of Becky Brockway received a call during the weekend that she was unhurt but that bitter cold and storms are adding greatly to the suffering of many homeless Chileans.

Lyn Brockway, of 440 Throckmorton Avenue, said her daughter called Saturday morning to report the house in which she was staying in Vina Del Mar, Sausalito's sister city, was almost completely demolished in Thursday's quake. She has moved to temporary quarters in a nearby home with 30 others.

Mrs. Brockway, who said she and her husband, B. F. Brockway, were "pacing the floor" with anxiety Thursday and Friday, had been told by Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. that they would not be able to get through to Chile until today.

Becky, a 17-year-old junior at Tamalpais High School, has been studying in Chile since February.

"I don't know how she managed to call us," Mrs. Brockway said. She theorized Becky made the call from the American Embassy in Valparaiso.

"It's the coldest winter in 20 years, with snow in Santiago (Chile's capital) for the first time in years," Mrs. Brockway said.

Although the death toll from the quake itself is modest, many residents lost their homes and were forced into the cold and have frozen to death, Mrs. Brockway said.

She said her daughter reported that modern buildings in Vina Del Mar and nearby Valparaiso sustained little damage but that stucco structures, common in Chile, were hard hit.

Mrs. Brockway said Marinites who wish to contribute to the victims should send checks made out to the Chile Fund to her home to be forewarded to a tax-deductible relief fund. Contributions also may be sent to any Frank Howard Allen office in Marin.

Session Postponed

The regular meeting of the Novato Fire Protection District Board, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. today, has been postponed until 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the main fire station because of a lack of a quorum, according to Fire Chief Jack Kidder.

Townhouse Units In San Marin Stalled

Novato City Council, concerned about the large number of townhouses planned in the city, last night delayed action on plans for 80 units in San Marin.

Councilmen voted 3-2 to postpone action on plans by Standard Growth Properties for townhouses on the north side of San Marin Drive between San Carlos Way and Simmons Lane until the developer presents a progress report on his application to the Federal Housing Authority.

The vote to delay was 3-2 with Councilmen George C. Quesada and David Price Jones dissenting.

Councilman J. Wayne Womack said there are "1,200 townhouse units on the drawing board now" and said he would be reluctant to "approve any more townhouses in Novato until we see something, taking place."

Standard Growth Properties' plans for development of 74 units nearby previously were approved by the city, but units have not been constructed.

Mayor Joseph D. Gargiulo said Novato was "getting to the saturation point in townhouses."

The Novato City Council also:

NONCONFORMING SIGNS — Continued until July 27 action on a request by the Novato Chamber of Commerce to grant a six-month extension on enforcement of provisions to bring nonconforming signs, about 100, into conformance with the sign ordinance.

PLANNING FEES — Introduced an ordinance hiking processing fees for the planning department to include a subdivision fee of $100 plus $5 a lot for the first 100 lots and $2 for each additional lot. The vote was 4-1 with J. Wayne Womack dissenting.

CITY SEAL — Received a proposed new city seal from the Novato Federated Women's Club, depicting the city hall, drawn by Barbara I. Murphy of the Novato Art Center; advised that it be put on display and continued action until July 27.

CIVIC CENTER — Continued until July 27 review of a proposed program for expansion of the civic center at its present location until July 27.

PAY RAISES — Passed a resolution setting the salaries approved by the council during budget sessions by a 4-1 vote with J. Wayne Womack dissenting because the measure included changing the part-time custodian at the Community House to a full-time employee.

RODONI PROPERTY — Approved purchase of the Rodoni property north of the community house for civic center use at a price of $34,000 on the condition that the house on the lot is habitable, since the city hopes to obtain revenue by renting it for about a year.

BEA CARPENTER — Paid tribute to Bea Carpenter, head of the group sponsoring redecoration of city hall, who will move from Novato and agreed there should be a "Bea Carpenter Day" before she leaves.

PIZZA RESTAURANT — Approved precise plans for a Straw Hat pizza restaurant adjacent to the Copper Penny restaurant, 7089 Redwood Highway, with conditions that it be set back 18 feet from the frontage road and there be planting along the south side of the building.

REZONING — Introduced ordinances to rezone two parcels, 725 and 727 Orange Avenue from single family to multiple family as requested by John Sorum, and four lots at the southeast corner of Seventh Street and Vallejo Avenue from single family to multiple family as recommended by Margie S. Yates.

APPOINTMENT — Appointed Evelyn Werner of 35 Carmel Drive, representing senior citizens, to the Citizens Advisory Committee on Human Needs.

VACATION — Granted City Mgr. Charles A. Brown a vacation for one week from July 21 to July 28.

PERSONNEL SERVICES — Renewed the city's contract with the state Cooperative Personnel Services for three years, with the cost determined by the services given. Brown reported that $1,000 a year is budgeted, but the city seldom spends the entire amount.

HOUSING HEARINGS — Approved a proposal by the city housing committee that the committee conduct public meetings on its proposed housing policy statement, near completion, before it is adopted by the council.

BEDROOM TAX — Set July 27 at 8 p.m. at the Community House for a public hearing on the proposed bedroom tax on new residential developments, $75 for the first bedroom and $15 for each additional bedroom in a dwelling unit.

HORSES — Set July 27 for public hearing on abatement of a public nuisance, keeping of a horse at 1679 Novato Boulevard and continued until July 27, a hearing on abatement of the keeping of a horse at 603 Davidson Street.

Bogus Cast Used To Get Welfare

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI)—A 26-year-old man faced charges today of using a removable cast to obtain $1,200 a month in fraudulent welfare checks.

Santa Clara County officials accused Thomas G. Lynch of Mountain View, Calif., of wearing the cast on his arm as proof he could not work while registering at each of the county's six welfare offices. He registered under slightly different names and Social Security numbers at each office.

He was arrested on grand theft charges when he arrived at one of the offices to pick up a check. He calmly took off the cast and handed it to deputies.

Nurse's Aide Arrested For A Fatal Blaze

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—When fire swept through the Westminster Terrace Presbyterian Home for Senior Citizens Jan. 14, a young nurse's aide at the home led several residents to safety. Mary Ann Wyatt, 21, halted her rescue efforts only when she was overcome by smoke. When she recovered, she went back to help evacuate more of the residents from the fire which killed 10 elderly persons.

Tuesday, the Jefferson County grand jury indicted Miss Wyatt on 10 counts of murder and one count of arson.

The grand jury said she "willfully and maliciously" set fire to the modern, four-story concrete-and-crick structure, thus she "willfully" murdered 10 residents.

Linen was the first cloth woven from vegetable fabric.

Bonds For East Mill Valley Fire Station Due Try Again

A $240,000 bond issue to build a new fire station in East Mill Valley, rejected by voters last month, will be submitted to them again next year.

Mill Valley city councilmen last night voted 4-1 last night to place the bonds before the electorate at the April 9 city council election.

Councilman Jean S. Barnard, who voted against the motion, said she did so only because she wanted the measure to go on the November ballot.

The fire station measure was one of four bond items totaling $1.35 million defeated by voters in the June 29 special election. Only a $450,000 sewer treatment plant improvement measure was successful.

Last night's meeting was to consider the city's $411,592 capital improvements budget for 1971-72, but councilmen spent little of the three-hour session on that subject.

More than an hour was spent behind closed doors while councilmen discussed the status of negotiations with striking city employees.

The council did, however, budget $1,725 for automatic sampling equipment to conduct a monitoring program of effluent from the city's sewage treatment plant. The program is required by the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The council also considered a request by the Enchanted Knolls Homeowners Association for traffic signals at East Blithedale Avenue and Lomita Drive.

Councilmen told City Mgr. William H. Cunningham to check the gasoline tax fund for the current year to see if enough uncommitted funds remain to finance the lights, estimated to cost $30,000.

Another budget meeting on capital outlay was set for 7:30 p.m. July 22. The council adjourned to 7:30 p.m. Thursday at city hall for another closed session on employee negotiations with its professional bargainer, Industrial Employers and Distributors Association of San Francisco.

Motorcycle Injury

Richard Baldwin, 26, of 1266 McGregor Drive, Petaluma, was treated at Hillcrest Hospital for a sprained right ankle suffered at 7:20 p.m. yesterday when his motorcycle collided with a pick-up truck at Fifth and I Streets, Petaluma. Police lacked details of the accident.

Encore On Zoning Issue Fizzles; Plan Withdrawn

What could have been the biggest story of the evening at the Novato City Council meeting last night, never happened.

About 200 residents of the Marin Country Club Estates area were ready to invade the council chambers in protest of a zoning change in their area.

In a hectic hearing last month the residents and city planning commission were involved in a stormy session on the matter and an encore was expected last night.

The fight was over before it started when the developer Charles Kuhn notified the city yesterday morning to withdraw his application to rezone six lots on the north side of Fairway Drive, between Birdie Drive and Alameda De La Loma from single family to planned community.

Ralph R. Patterson, president of the Marin Country Club Estates Homeowners Association, appeared at the meeting anyway to present a petition signed by 462 residents of the area opposing the zone change.

Bus With Church Choir Overturns

NEEDLES, Calif. (UPI)—A homemade, three-deck bus packed with members of a church choir from Santa Clara, Calif. overturned on Interstate 40 Tuesday injruing 15 of the 22 persons aboard.

Thirteen persons were treated at Needles Hospital and released and two were admitted for observation.

The vehicle, described by highway patrolmen as a "home rigged, triple-deck job" with restroom and eating facilities, hit a bridge abutment, swerved out of control and turned over.

The Days Under Marcuse's Wing

time Angela was there but she did not "discover" the teacher who was to have the most profound influence of anyone on her intellectual and philosophical thinking until her last year. Then she dropped virtually all her other courses and took all those Marcuse offered.

Only a couple of weeks after her arrival, Angela went home briefly to Birmingham for the funeral of four young girls killed in a Sunday school bombing.

"Angela was a sensitive girl, loved all people," says a former teacher. "Then those children were killed."

Angela's first two years at Brandeis are notable mainly for her lack of noticeability as contrasted to the campus firebrand she later was to become, although her academic performance was outstanding.

"I was mostly struck by her capacity to work hard, her determination," says Prof Murray Sachs, Angela's adviser in French literature. "She was bright and well prepared and had all the gifts of a good student. She was easily the best person in the department."

Angela later was to graduate magna cum laude, one of 22 persons in a class of about 300 with that honor. She was one of a dozen blacks in the class.

"As I look back, I think it is interesting she never spoke of tensions because of her blackness," Sachs said. "She must have felt like an outsider. We never discussed issues like that. She was very reserved on personal matters. She didn't do much talking. Nobody (on the faculty) felt they knew her well."

"Her reserve left open the question of her stability. On the surface she gave the impression she was mature. She was poised and able to handle herself and had a certain dignity.

"At what internal cost, one couldn't tell. She was a bit of a loner, but she didn't appear to be a troubled loner. Apparently she had no close friends here but she was not a lost soul. She threw herself into her work and her determination seemed to answer many of her needs."

Sachs is wrong about her having no friends. In her sophomore year, she made the acquaintance of a young German exchange student, Manfred Lorenz, who was majoring in philosophy and who introduced her to the writings of Neitzche and Marcuse. They argued politics endlessly.

In 1964 she went to Paris under the Hamilton Junior Year Abroad program to study at the Sorbonne. She had the added incentive that Manfred also was returning to Europe—and that they had fallen in love.

The Reverend Melish, who had been corresponding with Angela and her family regularly, said that after the young couple went to Europe Manfred wrote Angela's parents asking their permission to marry.

"Manfred wrote to Sally (Mrs. Davis) a very formal letter asking for Angela's hand in marriage," says Melish. "Mama hit the roof. She wrote me enclosing a copy of the letter from Manfred. Her letter was very emotional. It said Angela was very unhappy at Brandeis and didn't want to go back there.

"I told Sally that if you refuse this and try to break this up, they'll elope. But if you leave things along it will take care of itself. Just sit tight."

Manfred and Angela went skiing together in the Alps. They tasted the excitement of Paris and Angela was particularly caught up in the fervor about the Algerian independence movement and wrote that she felt she was being watched by the French secret police because she was black. She also began learning the German language.

The young man's parents were as much opposed to the interracial marriage as was Mrs. Davis and the relationship cooled. Angela came back to take her last year at Brandeis.

That was the beginning of her tutelage under Marcuse.

Now 72 years old, Marcuse had been at Brandeis for 11 years after teaching previously at western European universities. It is doubtful whether one person in 10,000 in the United States has read any of his works. His best known book is called "The One Dimensional Man." One of its theses is that the average man in the technological society has become so switched into the material aspects of life, the "sewer system" of television and other mass media, the illusion that he has free speech and the right to protest that he is acquiescino in deprivation of his individual freedom.

In an essay, "Repressive Tolerance," Marcuse wrote that the "Establishment" had created a society in which change seems to be welcomed but in which protestors actually are "flailing at pillows." He suggested that an elite class ultimately must rule.

"If it is crazy to suggest that people qualified to rule should rule and not movie stars, tap dancers and cheap politicians, then, yes, perhaps I am in favor of an elitist rule," he once said.

Marcuse today describes Angela Davis as the best, or "one of the two or three best" students he has had in 30 years.

Why?

"I've been asked that many times," he says. "It's very simple. Her intelligence was superior and so was her interest."

Marcuse says Angela was immediately attracted to his belief that philosophy must not be something abstract, that it must bring personal involvement and change. He says it is based on a critical analysis of existing social conditions in the light of possible change and improvement.

Marcuse does not discount the role he played in shaping Angela's evolution but he says it is probably exaggerated.

"If it hadn't been me, it would have been someone much like me," he says.

Although Angela's senior year was spent mainly attending Marcuse's lectures and seminars, she wrote her senior honors thesis on "The Novels of (French writer) Robbe-Grillet: A Study of Method and Meaning."

Prof. Sachs says her 125-page thesis, hailed as one of the most brilliant ever written at Brandeis, was concerned with ideas rather than the aesthetic and literary style of Alain Robbe-Grillet as the "chief theoretician" of the new novel school of French literature.

In the introduction, Angela wrote:

"The breakdown of the traditional moral order makes itself more evident every day. The world has been beset by a general and all-penetrating fragmentation which abolished the old comprehensive and harmonious structures. The continued existence of reality itself becomes problematic in face of the present nuclear devices."

At Marcuse's urging, Angela went on from Brandeis to study for two years at Johann Wolfgang von Goethe University at Frankfurt, Germany. One of her professors was Marcuse's old Marxist compatriate, Theodor W. Adorno, who has since died, and sociology professor Oskar Negt.

A fellow student at Goethe University says Adorno and Marcuse both leaned heavily to German philosophers Kant and Hegel.

"They held a deep seriousness about social injustice," he says. "They were against materialism in modern life and taught more about the logic of life."

When Miss Davis first arrived in Frankfurt, she lived in a residence for 1,000 foreign students studying at Goethe which had an enrollment of about 17,000. A short time later she moved in with radical sociology students who had taken over an old abandoned building dubbed "The Factory".

Angela had begun to show the style and striking appearance that was to mark her thereafter. Five feet seven, she had changed from a short waved harido to the Afro style which made her look about six feet tall.

She was one of the first in Frankfurt to support a miniskirt and later a leather miniskirt.

"She was the leader of student fashion all the time she was here," says one contemporary. "All eyes were on her at a gathering."

Extreme leftwing radicals and Students for a Democratic Society shared the "Factory" and included a German student, David Wittenberg, who became Angela's closest friend shortly after her arrival and apparently steered her to the group.

Others were Gunther Armendt, a prominent SDS leader, and Jurgen Krahl, the forerunner of "Red" Rudi Dutschke as an SDS firebrand. Although Angela was close to the SDS types, she was not then considered a prime mover or activist.

Her social life did become much more active. She was a regular at the Saturday night student dances at the Students Home. She went frequently to "Club Voltaire" where students harangued over politics. She frequented the Jazz Club. The German students were fascinated by her slow Alabama drawl but soon realized how articulate she was on intellectual topics.

One of her friends was American Negro Robert Jackson, 37, from Indianapolis, who had been studying Slavic languages. He hopes to get a job eventually with the U.S. State Department or United Nations.

"Angela was very much dedicated to her studies," he says. "But she was not a one way street. She had a balance of feelings and intellect. She could express her thoughts articulately on all kinds of topics and in French, German or English.

"But she could also rap and soul. She knew the latest soul dances as well as the latest articles Adorno or Marcuse had written. She was never trying to push herself into the front row, but she had a considerable following."

Angela had been then living for eight years mainly among white people. Her student friend David Wittenberg recalls she had become increasingly concerned about racial developments in America and, as one of her teachers said, "felt she could no longer tolerate the deterioration of the situation in the U.S. without becoming actively involved."

She became involved —and with a fervor that surprised those who had known her before. She went back to study again under Marcuse at the University of California at San Diego but for the first time she put "black" before everything else.

IMPACT ON ANGELA — A police officer points to a damaged auto outside the 16th Avenue Street Baptist Church in Birmingham, Ala., in which four Negro girls were killed on Sept. 15, 1963. While the young girls were friends of Angela's sister, Fania, the tragedy is said to have had a great impact on Angela's direction in her early college days. (UPI Telephoto)

Buffalo Kills Washingtonian

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (UPI)—A charging buffalo killed a Washington tourist Monday as he tried to take a picture of the animal, park officials said today.

Marvin Leslie Schrader, 30, of Spokane, Wash., died at the scene where the buffalo knocked him to the ground.

Park officials said Schrader, who was vacationing with his family, was on a sightseeing tour of the western side of the park about six miles north of Old Faithful.

High Court Hands PUC Tart Reversal

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—With sharp language, the California Supreme Court Tuesday annulled a decision of the State Public Utilities Commission regarding geothermal power plant construction and told the commission it must consider antitrust factors.

Pacific Gas and Electric Co. was granted approval to build two new geothermal steamelectric generating units in Sonoma County over the objection of the Northern California Power Agency, representing 11 cities.

In an unanimous decision written by Justice Raymond L. Sullivan, the court found the PUC had failed to give adequate consideration to antitrust issues in the case.

"The commission should consider the antitrust implications... The task of the commission extends far beyond the passive role of a sounding board," the court held.

The high court said it was not considering the merits of the antitrust contention and that the PUC could grant the applications if in the public interest.

The 11-city group, which intervened as an interested party, contended that steam supply contracts between PG&E and Union Oil Co., Thermal Power Co. and Magma Power Co., who develop geothermal steam, violate state and federal antitrust laws.

The PUC approved the projects, saying it did not need to settle this question. PG&E also argued that the 11-city group lacked standing to raise antitrust questions, and the PUC agreed.

"It should not be necessary to rouse the commission to perform its duty, and where a private party has so clearly demonstrated the adverse impact of the proposed facilities, the commission certainly can not ignore the problem simply because it was not raised by one having impeccable credentials of legal standing," the court said.

Glenwood Scrapped As A Middle School

The San Rafael Board of Education was told last night it could begin its planned middle school program in the elementary district in the fall of 1972 without use of Glenwood School.

Although Glenwood long had been designated for conversion from an elementary into a sixth through eighth grade facility, Supt. John F. Plank said Davidson, now a junior high, and Santa Venetia, now a limited middle school, would be capable of absorbing the projected middle school population.

Plank told the board Glenwood no longer would be needed because of dwindling enrollment foreseen at the elementary level.

In the past, voters rejected bond issues to enlarge Glenwood for a middle school.

Under the plan as it now stands, sixth graders would be drawn from various elementary schools, including Glenwood, to attend middle school programs at Davidson and Santa Venetia. Davidson now houses seventh and eighth graders and Santa Venetia, although designated a middle school, serves only sixth through eighth graders in the Santa Venetia area.

Although the board repeatedly has endorsed the middle school program — which is expected, through more individualized instruction, to speed elementary students' adjustment to high school — the question has been which schools should feed sixth graders into Davidson and Santa Venetia.

That issue again went unresolved last night. The board, after reviewing a possible plan by Plank for building enrollment at Davidson and Santa Venetia over the next two years, asked the superintendent to present details of implementing the middle school program at a future meeting.

Last year, parents of students at Coleman and Bahia Vista schools objected to bussing their children over Puerto Suello Hill to enlarge the middle school program at Santa Venetia.

The need, said Dr. Lauro R. Quiros from the audience, is to convince balking parents and their children that they're "not becoming second class citizens by going on the 'other side of the tracks.' " He called, however, for improvement of the bicycle path over Puerto Suello Hill that would be used by students.

"You'll have to convince a lot of people in this community that Santa Venetia is no longer a stinking mudflat," said Donald R. Wellington, a member of the city schools' citizens advisory committee.

Plank's suggestion for middle school conversion, without specifying feeder schools, foresaw boosting enrollment at Santa Venetia to 560 and at Davidson to 920 next school year, with capacity of 630 and 930, respectively, reached in the 1973-74 year.

He said the shift could not be made fully next year unless portables were used.

In a related matter, Wellington delivered a report that was mildly critical of efforts by school officials to smooth transition of students from one school level to another, such as elementary to junior high.

Wellington, chairman of the citizens advisory subcommittee on articulation, said there was a need for teachers and principals to discuss more frequently shortcomings of students moving up in the school system.

Board members agreed, and asked Wellington's committee to look into the situation again in the near future.

The San Rafael Board Of Education Also:

BUDGET — Approved publication budgets of $5.5 million for the high school district and $5.4 million for the elementary district, indicating changes might be made before adoption of the final spending program next month.

BILLS — Questioned payment of a $2,000 bill to Computer Dynamics for data processing services, essentially report card work, and of $650 to two film companies for rental of feature movies for the work-study program. Among the films rented for the students were, "Rebel Without A Cause," "I Love You, Alice B. Toklas" and "Requiem for A Heavyweight." Plank was asked to investigate.

ATTENDANCE — Because of burgeoning enrollment in east side elementary schools, approved transfer of 46 students attending Coleman School to Laurel Dell Primary. The students live east of Highway 101 and south of Paloma Avenue, off Lincoln Avenue.

UNIFICATION — Endorsed a suggestion to meet with the Dixie School District board to discuss implications of a unification proposal, scheduled for a mandatory election next year. Under unification, Dixie's tax rate would go down and San Rafael's, up. Dixie's current rate is higher.

COLLEGE — Renewed a work-study agreement with the College of Marin, asking for periodic project reports.

CONDROTTE — Accepted the resignation of Charles L. Condrotte as business manager, effective last Friday. He has taken a similar post in Santa Clara County. Also approved the resignations of custodian Stephen Asselin, moving; teacher Roberta Duda, personal reasons; custodian Jonathan Holland, taking another position; teacher Elizabeth Jacobsen, retiring after 19 years' service, and teacher John McSween, taking another position.

GLENWOOD — Following opening of bids at its last session, sold a lot near Glenwood School to Mr. and Mrs. Claude Carroll for $10,000, less broker's fee.

PERSONNEL — Approved employment of Sharon Green, attendance clerk at Davidson, $5,300 per year; Sylvia Levine, typist clerk, $5,893 annually; Vernon Stroh, accountant, $11,388 per year, and Stanley Tefft, building inspector, $634 monthly. Also approved transfer of Fabia-Ann Phillips from assistant principal at John MacPhail School to coordinator of the More Able Learner program and Sharon Brandenburger from MacPhail kindergarten teacher to resource teacher for principals.

GIFT — Accepted a donation of classical records from Marion H. Marks to the music department.

MEETINGS — Said it would next meet July 27 and changed its August meetings to the 3rd and 31st.

Triangle Rezoning Shot Down

The Novato City Council's long running debate about zoning of two parcels in the Diablo Triangle took a new twist last night.

Councilmen voted 3-2 against rezoning the parcels owned by Joseph DeBorba and J. C. Youngberg from retail commercial to planned residential, as recommended in the downtown plan.

Wayne Sartain and David Price Jones voted for rezoning while Mayor Joseph D. Gargiulo, J. Wayne Womack and George C. Quesada opposed it.

After the vote the council passed a resolution of intention to rezone the parcels from retail commercial to planned commercial.

This vote was 3-2 with Womack and Gargiulo opposed, but Gargiulo later changed his vote to make it 4-1.

The retail commercial zone survived after attorney Leland H. Jordan said the property owners would suffer a $150,000 loss if it were changed, and indicated they would take their case to court.

The two parcels at the corner of Diablo Avenue and South Novato Boulevard have been zoned for retail commercial for several years.

More than two million blocks of limestone, averaging two and a half tons each, were used in the Great Pyramid.

Flood Control

Tonight's meeting of a citizens committee studying flooding in Mill Valley has been postponed to 7:30 p.m. next Wednesday at the Mill Valley Library, according to Jerome C. Hauke, chairman.

High Costs For Car Anti-Smog Devices Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) believes the only certainty about development of auto antipollution devices is their high cost to the consumer.

In its first annual report to Congress on the subject, the EPA said Tuesday industry had not yet developed exhaust cleanup systems to meet the standards set by law for 1975 and 1976 model cars.

But it said auto makers were spending more than $330 million a year for research on emission control, "focused on the present internal combustion engine to meet mass production requirements of the industry within the tight time limits set by the Clean Air Act."

U.S. Organization In Athens Bombed

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Jammed Hearing Witnesses Legal Prostitution Bill Veto

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Bible-quoting housewives, women's liberationists, policemen and a homosexual clergyman convinced a legislative committee Tuesday to kill a bill that would have legalized prostitution in California.

The measure died on a voice vote of the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee after a hearing jammed with 300 laughing and applauding spectators.

Assemblyman Leroy F. Greene's bill, introduced after voters in his Sacramento district indicated they favored legalization, would have licensed prostitutes and their business establishments. The Democratic lawmaker did not seek a vote on a second bill to allow operation of such houses on a county option basis.

Greene, who said the state should not be in the business of setting the "moral standards of its citizenry," reasoned it is a contradictory for a prostitute to be arrested for selling her talents when she would not be so treated if she gave them away free.

The legislation encountered heavy opposition. Greene produced no witnesses to testify on behalf of the measure even though he surveyed 1,500 judges, sheriffs and law enforcement officials in search of supporters.

"On the basis of women's rights, women should not be used as objects to gratify men's lust," shouted Ethelmae Yeakel-Watson of Sacramento. "When we have as many donkey clubs as we have bunny clubs, I may support prostituution."

Another woman read the committee quotations from the Old Testament condemning prostitution. A clergyman who identified himself as a homosexual charged Greene's efforts were misguided.

Joseph Gilbert, who said he was pastor of the Metropolitan Community Church of Sacramento, said the legislature should concentrate on passing a pending bill that would legalize certain sex acts between consenting adults in private. He called Greene's proposal a "misappropriation of priorities."

Another witness, Jean Riley of Sacramento, who also brought a Bible, said men believe that "God will forgive you if you use the woman. But he won't. I had 10 opportunities to become a prostitute but I shall not and will not."

Greene said under his bill "I do not see the crib, bordello, whorehouse, cathouse of the past. This would be a licensed place. I envision something like the European system in an apartment building."

A. E. Lebase of the Los Angeles County sheriff's office and Robert Devine of the Los Angeles Police Department's vice group warned legalization would mean greater law enforcement problems and increased venereal disease.

Devine said state sanction of prostitution would encourage families to hire out their children as prostitutes.

"Anyone is capable of providing a member of his family for prostitution under this," he said. The remark drew laughs from the audience.

Greene contended, however, "There's no slavery here. There's no forcing a girl into prostitution. I suggest it's just the opposite: they see the man as the sex object for money."

But his prospects dimmed when Reagan's office released a statement indicating the governor did not view the deferment as sufficient to support Beilenson's alternative plan.

REAGAN VETO

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan has vetoed legislation which would have permitted election officials to speak a language other than English at polling places.

In vetoing the bill Tuesday, Reagan said the measure "only adds uncertainty to the already confused State of California's election law."

Reagan said the bill would "create more uncertainty as to the duties and obligations of election officials "because it would remove the requirement that English be spoken at polling places and not replace the section of the law with "anything positive."

The legislation was authored by Sen. Mervyn Dymally, D-Los Angeles.

BILL PASSED

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Assembly has approved legislation which its sponsor hopes will encourage citizens to contribute to political campaigns through the incentive of state income tax deductions.

The bill by Assemblyman Henry Waxman, D-Los Angeles, was sent to the Senate Tuesday on a 41-28 vote.

Waxman said the measure would give a single person an $8 credit and a married couple a $16 credit on their state income tax returns. It would repeal current law which allows up to a $100 state income tax deduction for political cotribution.

ECOLOGY BILL

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Senate Local Government Committee has endorsed a bill designed to impose stricter requirements on rural recreational subdividers who despoil the environment.

The proposal by Assemblyman Leo T. McCarthy, D-San Francisco, enables a city or county to deny approval of a subdivision map if it determines that the plans "are likely to cause substantial environmental damage and avoidably injure fish or wildlife."

The proposal was sent to the full Senate.

WELFARE BID

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Democratic sponsor of an alternative welfare reform program to Gov. Ronald Reagan's plan pinned hopes of passage today on a rewritten and scaled down proposal.

Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, amended his measure Tuesday to defer for one year a 17 per cent increase to "full need" the grants of recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

Beilenson said the postponement of the boost would save county, state and federal state taxpayers a total of $68 million. He said the state alone would realize a $23 million savings.

"This is a second major attempt to be conciliatory and make concessions and compromises to get welfare reform passed," the lawmaker said.

Godfrey Sees Population Key

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Unless the world's population is cut in half—then held at that level—the ecology movement will not succeed, according to television and radio personality Arthur Godfrey.

Godfrey, a long time advocate of antipollution measures, told 250 representatives of local conservation councils Tuesday that population control is the key to saving our environment.

"None of the work we do — important as it is—will do any good unless we reduce our population by half and the population growth rate at zero," Godfrey said. "Man is the only species on earth whose growth rate is greater than zero."

MGM Returns To Association

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, which withdrew from the Motion Picture Association of America last February, has returned to the group, it was announced today.

"I am greatly cheered," said MPAA President Jack Valenti, who announced the return jointly with MGM President James T. Aubrey Jr.

Valenti said he and Aubrey "have concluded a series of meetings that ranged over all the problems confronting MPAA and production and distribution both here and around the world. We are in agreement on all issues."

State Begins Direct Deposit Experiment

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Reagan administration hopes it can stimulate the state's economy through an experimental program of depositing unemployment checks directly into a recipient's bank account.

Sigurd I. Hansen, deputy director of the Department of Human Resources Development, said Tuesday the pilot payment project was started this week in the town of Avalon on Catalina Island.

Under the plan, unemployment insurance benefits would be made through direct deposits in an individual's bank account instead of the present system of having the recipient collect payment at an UI office.

Hansen said the direct deposit system "eliminates handling of cash in UI offices and puts an end to the outdated practice of having claimants line up for pay when they could be looking for work."

Its greatest merit, Hansen added, "lies in its potential as a stimulus to the economy."

Hansen said that making payments directly to bank accounts would produce an increase in the banking system's reserve of money for loans and such loan money would contribute to faster economic recovery within each community."

Avalon was selected to begin the project because it has only one bank.

$10,000 Is Offered For Bombing Clues

STANFORD (UPI) —Stanford University today offered a $10,000 reward for information on the bombing of the home of the school's personnel director.

The bomb, a 2-by-14 inch steel pipe planted ahead of time, blew an 18-inch hole Monday night in the bedroom wall of Robert Nelson's home near the campus. No one was injured.

Girls Steal Show In Army Parade

PARIS (UPI)—France displayed its military might in a two-hour Bastille Day parade down the Champs-Elysees today, but it was a contingent of soldiers in skirts that drew the applause.

The girls, appearing in the annual military parade for the first time, even stole some of the show from the swaggering Foreign Legion troops who normally win all the limelight.

The girls appeared in the middle of a parade that featured all the sophisticated weaponry that has helped boost France into second place in the world arms sales. They got a special welcome from the hundreds of thousands lining the parade.

To accompany the main dish, boiled rice with vegetable topping.

FRENCH TREAT

Crepes Are Well Worth The Effort

Crepes, fragile pancakes which serve as a wrapping for various fillings either sweet or savory, are as French in their preparation as their name. Actually, crepes are not hard to make, but to be worthy of their place on the French menu, they must be made with care for detail and with the finest ingredients.

You can please your most critical guest with either Vanilla Crepes with Strawberry Lemon Filling or Cheese Filled Crepes made according to the following recipes. Ripe strawberries, fresh peaches or other fruit go in a crepe filling. Equally excellent is a mingling of cream cheese, apricot jam and, again, the fragrance of vanilla.

CREPES WITH STRAWBERRY LEMON FILLING

- 1 pint strawberries, or other soft fresh fruit
- 1¾ cups sugar, divided
- 5 teaspoons pure vanilla extract, divided
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 3 eggs
- 3 egg yolks
- ½ cup lemon juice
- 1½ teaspoons grated lemon peel
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 12 crepes (recipe below)

Wash, hull and slice strawberries. Sprinkle with one-quarter cup of the sugar and two teaspoons of the vanilla; let stand one hour. In the top portion of a double boiler melt butter. Stir in remaining one and a half cups sugar. Beat eggs with egg yolks and add to butter mixture. Blend in lemon juice, peel and salt. Cook over boiling water, beating constantly with wire whisk, until mixture is thick and smooth. Stir in remaining three teaspoons vanilla extract. Cool. Stir in strawberries. Spoon about two tablespoons filling in center of each crepe. Fold into cylinder shape and arrange on platter. Serve, topped with remaining sauce or with a rich vanilla ice cream. Makes six servings.

CREPES WITH CHEESE FILLING

- 1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
- 5½ tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
- ¼ cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 12 crepes (recipe below)
- Apricot Sauce (recipe below)
- ¼ cup toasted slivered almonds

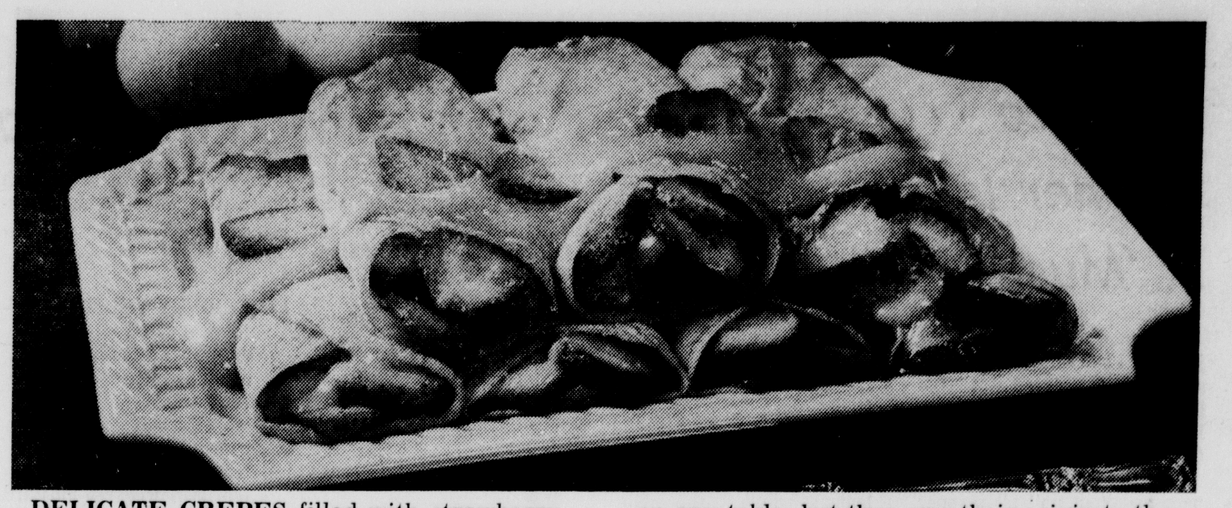
In a small mixing bowl combine cream cheese, four tablespoons of the butter, sugar, vanilla extract and lemon peel. Beat until light and fluffy. Spread each crepe to within half-inch of the edge with cheese mixture. Fold in opposite ends, almost to the center; then roll them up. Arrange the crepes side by side in a buttered shallowbaking dish. Dot with remaining 1½ tablespoons butter. Bake, uncovered in a preheated moderate oven (350° F.) 10 minutes. Serve with Apricot Sauce and sprinkle with almonds, if desired.

Makes 6 portions.

APRICOT SAUCE

- ⅔ cup apricot jam
- ⅓ cup orange juice
- 1 tablespoon pure vanilla extract
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine

In a small saucepan combine apricot jam, orange juice, butter and vanilla extract. Heat until smooth and well blended, stirring constantly.



DELICATE CREPES filled with strawberry or other fresh fruit filling is a special dessert on any table, but they owe their origin to the renowned chefs of France.

CREPES BATTER

- ½ cup sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs
- ⅔ cup milk
- 1 tablespoon salad oil
- ½ teaspoon pure vanilla extract

Sift flour with sugar and salt; set aside. In a small mixing bowl beat eggs thoroughly. Add milk, oil and vanilla extract; mix well. Add flour mixture, beat until smooth. Lightly grease and heat a 5-inch skillet. Pour approximately 2 tablespoons crepe batter into skillet, quickly tilting pan to spread over bottom. When delicately brown, turn to brown on other side. Repeat, lightly greasing skillet when necessary.

Makes approximately 12 crepes.

Fun clothes for fall will be more elegant, romantic, tasteful.

ACCENT ON TASTE

Flavorful Chinese Menu: Easy And Convenient

The essence of Chinese cooking lies in the traditional insistence that food must have taste or flavor, even though the ingredients used are not always the most costly.

The next time you plan a small party around a Chinese theme try the following menu: Marinated Mushrooms and Smashed Radishes, Port and Cucumber Soup, Stir-Fried Curried Shrimp, Boiled Rice with Vegetable Topping, and Almond Float.

MARINATED MUSHROOMS

- ½ pound fresh white mushrooms
- 3 to 4 cups water
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon sherry
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- Few drops tabasco sauce
- Few drops sesame oil

Wipe fresh mushrooms with damp cloth. Cut off and discard stem ends. Place in a colander. Meanwhile, bring water to a boil; pour over mushrooms to blanch. Drain well and dry gently with paper towel. Transfer mushrooms to a bowl. Combine soy sauce, sherry, salt, tabasco sauce and sesame oil, blending well. Add to mushrooms and toss. Refrigerate covered, only to chill (about 20 minutes).

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

SMASHED RADISHES

- 20 radishes
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 1 teaspoon peanut oil
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt

Wash and trim radishes. Lay each on its side, then crush, by pounding decisively once or twice with the side of a cleaver or the bottom of a glass. (The radishes should split open, but not break in two.) Sprinkle with salt and let stand 5 to 10 minutes; then drain. Transfer to a bowl. Combine soy sauce, vinegar, sugar, and remaining salt. Add to radishes and toss gently. Refrigerate covered, only to chill (about 20 minutes). Sprinkle with peanut oil just before serving.

Note: Instead of crushing the radishes, you may make a criss-cross cut in the top of each, to let the seasonings penetrate.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

STIR-FRIED CURRIED SHRIMP

- 2 pounds shrimp
- 2 onions (small)
- 4 teaspoons cornstarch
- 4 tablespoons water
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 cup stock
- dash of pepper
- 3 to 4 tablespoons oil
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 4 teaspoons sherry
- 2 to 3 tablespoons curry powder

Shell and devein shrimp. Cut onion in half; then slice thin. Blend cornstarch, water, sugar and pepper to a paste. Heat oil. Add salt, then shrimp, and stir-fry at 375°F about 1 minute. Sprinkle shrimp with sherry; stir-fry until pinkish (about 1 minute more), then remove. Clean and dry pan. Add curry powder; stir ½ minute over low heat. Add onion and stir-fry until curry smells pungent (about 1 minute more). Return shrimp. Stir in stock and heat quickly. Then cook, stirring, until onion softens. Stir in cornstarch paste to thicken and serve at once.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

VEGETABLE TOPPING FOR RICE

- 1 cup carrots
- 1 cup tomatoes
- 1 cup string beans
- 1 cup peas
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Dash of pepper
- Stock

Peel and dice carrots and tomatoes. Cut string beans in 1 inch lengths. Shell peas. (Frozen green beans & peas may be used.) Leave the cooked rice still in its pot and stir in the vegetables, salt and pepper. Then cook, covered, 5 minutes more over medium heat. Reduce heat to low and cook, covered, another 30 minutes. (If necessary, add a small amount of stock to keep the mixture moist.) Then serve.

Children Prepare Plum Jam

Children attending summer school at Alpha Schools in San Rafael made a batch of plum jam, poured it into jars and took it home.

"The parents couldn't get over how good it was and that we really made it," says Faydelle Starkey, Alpha headmistress. "Several of the parents wanted the recipe so they could try it too.

"We saved enough to use on the pancakes we made for a snack at school — buckwheat cakes, butter and plum jam . . ."

ALPHA PLUM JAM

Plums
Sugar
White flour called pectin

Wash the plums and cut them and take the seeds out. Use five or four but really six cups of plums. Smash them in a big pan with a smasher. Then put the white flour called pectin in. It makes it good and keeps it from burning and running. Use a whole box full of pectin.

"Measure the sugar, seven cups full — until it's up to the '8.' Then shake it on the table to make sure it's up to the '8' (eight ounces). Pour the sugar into the big pot, and mix it up with a spoon. Put it on a little stove and wait 'til it bubbles. It has to bubble until it is ready — four whole minutes. Then take it out and pour it into jars; put the top on, lick the jam off where it spilled, and uh huh, it's good."

Pineapple Crush Salad Light, Tart

Perfect with fried chicken or baked ham, this Pineapple Crush Salad is light and slightly tart. Sliced celery and toasted slivered almonds provide pleasing crunch and, of course, toasting the almonds accentuates their good, nutty flavor.

This is a simple salad to make.

PINEAPPLE CRUSH SALAD

- ⅓ cup slivered almonds
- 1 cup (one lb. 14 oz.) pineapple chunks
- 2 envelopes plain gelatin
- ½ cup water
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 3 tablespoons white vinegar

Spread almonds in a shallow pan and place in 350-degree oven for eight minutes or until lightly toasted. Pour pineapple chunks with their own juice into electric blender container.

Whir a few seconds until almost pureed. (It should be slightly lumpy.) Soften gelatin in water in saucepan and stir over low heat until dissolved. Combine gelatin mixture, pineapple, celery, almonds and vinegar and pour into five-cup mold. Chill until firm.

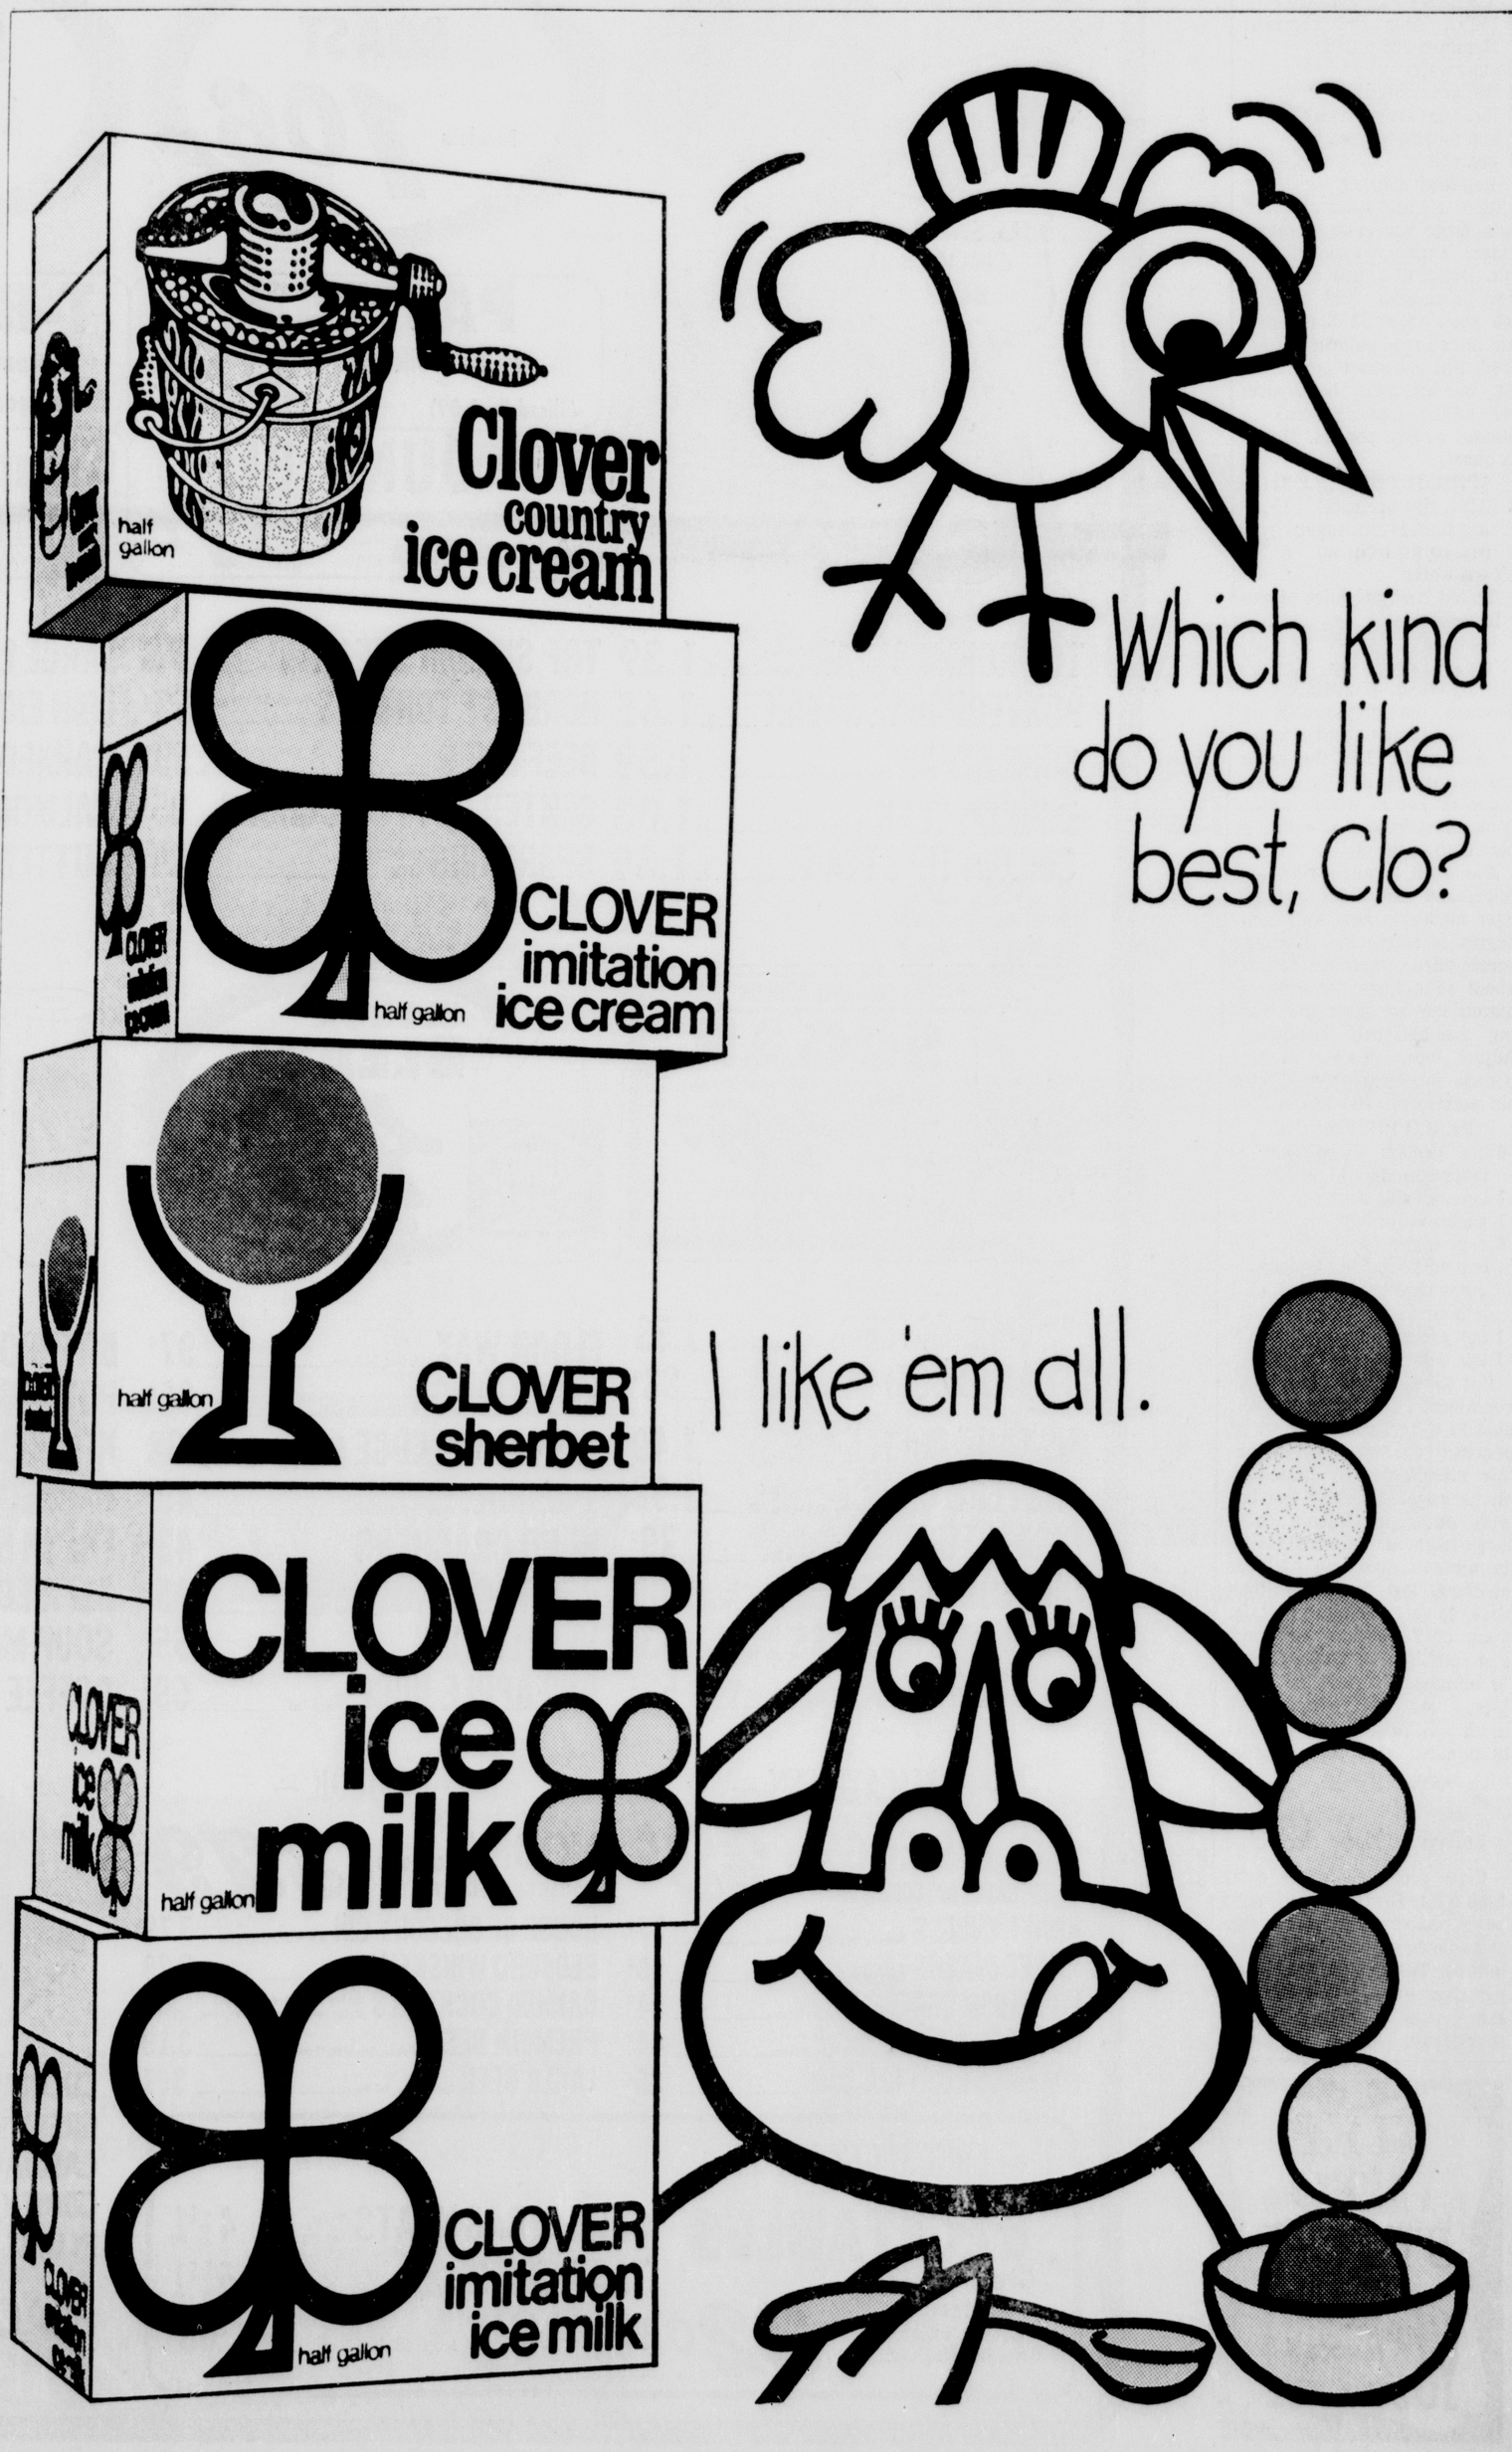
Back Ribs: Roast, Braise Or Broil

Back ribs of pork can be prepared by roasting (in oven or on outdoor rotisserie), braising or broiling on the grill top.

To broil, place back ribs on grill, rib ends down, about 5 inches from heat. Broil over moderate heat for 2 to 2½ hours or until well done, turning to brown evenly.

To roast place ribs on rack in a roasting pan or on rotisserie rod in oven or on outdoor unit. Roast at a moderate temperature (350°F.) 2 to 2½ hours.

When broiling or roasting, baste with a barbecue sauce the last hour, if desired.



Pressure Canner Is A 'Must'

Row upon row of jewel-bright jars filled with the fruits of summer, preserved at the height of freshness by loving hands. Bring back memories of Grandma's pantry?

Join the ranks of home canners and "put up" all manner of produce in the modern pressure cooker-canner.

A pressure canner is a "must" for cooking low-acid foods — vegetables, meats, poultry and fish — according to authorities, including the USDA. It cuts processing time anywhere from a third to a half in fruit processing, too.

Even if you're an old hand at pressure canning, it's a good idea to check your equipment before you begin. Leaf through the recipe and instruction book for reminders.

Here are some fruit ideas that will go Grandma one better. Why not preserve not just fruits, but pie fillings, so that all you'll have to prepare is the crust when the fancy strikes? Tart-sweet Red Cherry, sparked with lemon and just a touch of nutmeg, apricot and peach to enjoy some dreary winter day. And, when the new crop's in — a combination apple-orange filling will help bridge the gap until next summer rolls around. Each quart will make one nine-inch pie.

CHERRY PIE FILLING

15 16-lbs. sour red cherries, stemmed and pitted
2 cups water
4 lbs. granulated sugar
4 lbs. light brown sugar
1 cup minute tapioca
1 tsp. salt
Red food coloring

Stem, pit and rinse cherries. In a large saucepan, combine water, sugars, tapioca, and salt. Bring to a boil and simmer 10 minutes. Add cherries and cook about 12-15 minutes. Stir in red food coloring, if desired. Fill hot quart jars, leaving one-half-inch headspace, and adjust tops. Process 10 minutes at five pounds. Makes six quarts.

APRICOT PIE FILLING

11 12 lbs. ripe apricots
6 cups light brown sugar
6 tbsp. cornstarch
4 cups water
Grated rind and juice of one large orange
Dash salt

Prepare fruit by rinsing, splitting, and removing pits. Measure the prepared fruit, (you should have about 24 cups) or six quarts. Mix the sugar and cornstarch in a large saucepan or kettle, stir in water. Cook and stir over medium heat until sugar melts.

Add fruit, orange rind and juice, and salt. Cook and stir over moderate heat until fruit begins to soften and gives up some juice; continue cooking about 10 minutes. Pack immediately into hot quart jars, leaving one-half-inch headspace. Adjust tops. Process at five pounds for 15 minutes. Makes six quarts.

PEACH PIE FILLING

6 qts. peeled, sliced peaches (approximately 13 lbs.)
1 tsp. ascorbic acid
1 gallon water
6 cups sugar
¾ cup quick-cooking tapioca
Juice and grated rind of 1 lemon
1 tsp. ground allspice
1 tsp. salt

Put sliced peaches in a large container. Dissolve ascorbic acid in water, pour over sliced peaches; stir and drain (or follow manufacturer's directions on package). Combine peaches with other ingredients in a large kettle and let stand for 10-15 minutes. Cook and stir over medium low heat, mashing slices to get juice more quickly. Cook until peaches are juicy and soft, but not mushy, about 10 minutes. Fill into hot quart jars, leaving one-half-inch headroom. Adjust tops. Process 10 minutes at 5 pounds pressure. Makes 6 quarts.

Crown Your Salad

Give your salads an extra touch: Drain canned cling peach halves and place cupsides down on beds of shredded lettuce. Tilt ring of green pepper over each peach half and serve with a dollop of dairy sour cream.

Melon Harvest Is Moving North

The western cantaloupe harvest began a little late this year due to cool weather, but started the last week of May in the Imperial Valley. Around Independence Day, the melon harvest moved to the Bakersfield area and continues on up the San Joaquin Valley until mid-September.

Special dressings for summer fruit salads:

FRESH FRUIT DRESSING

1 cup salad oil
½ cup fresh lemon juice
¼ cup honey
2 teaspoons salt

Blend ingredients. Serve on fresh fruit or melon salads. Yield: 1 pint.

CITRUS-PEANUT DRESSING FOR FRUIT

2 tablespoons orange juice
¼ teaspoon prepared mustard
¼ cup peanut butter
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup commercial sour cream
¼ teaspoon grated orange peel

Gradually blend orange juice with peanut butter, mustard and salt. Add sour cream and orange peel. Serve over fresh fruit salad. Makes ¾ cup dressing.

LIME-HONEY FRUIT DRESSING

¼ teaspoon grated lime peel
⅓ cup lime juice
⅓ cup honey
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup salad oil
½ teaspoon paprika
¾ teaspoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon seasoned salt

Combine ingredients in blender. Chill well. Beat just before serving. Makes approximately 1 cup dressing.

'Watermelon Bowl' Perfect for Fruit

For summer dessert, try fruit served in a watermelon bowl.

Halve a ripe watermelon lengthwise. Scoop out fruit, cube or ball, and mix with a variety of fruits in season — peaches, seedless grapes — or perhaps strawberries, pineapple and honeydew.

JUNIOR MISS of 1971 Arlene Stens of Woodlynne, N.J., was among the pageant winners who criticized Congress in a frank press conference in Washington, D.C., this week. "I've seen lawmakers sleeping or reading their papers, and then they 'come to' to vote," she commented. Here she visits the United Nations in New York.

Beauty Contestants Tell All

By MARGUERITE DAVIS

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Five young beauty contestants discussed subjects ranging from women's liberation to coeducational college dormitories, at a Capitol news conference this week. They spoke frankly, no holds barred.

The high school seniors, top-ranked contestants in the 1971 Junior Miss competition, established "that beauty and brains go together," contest sponsors said.

That was the purpose of their news conference and luncheon in the Senate reception room — to prove that pretty teen-agers are not necessarily emptyheaded.

"I'M HAPPY with my life and with the way I'm treated," Janice Souza, South Windsor, Conn., said. "But I agree it's unfair to pay less to a woman who doesn't want to marry and have a family, than to a man in the same job."

"I like to have doors opened for me, and I like to have dates pay for my dinner," Kathy Morris, Forest, Miss., said.

However, she added that her mother is paid less in her job than was the man she replaced, "and that's not fair."

Kathy also disputed the theory of a "new South."

"For the first time people are beginning to see us as we really are," she said. "We're becoming more liberal. We're coming up in education. We're establishing industries. I think the rest of the world is facing up to what we are, that we're not all bigots and racists.

"And I think we handle integration very well."

Janice believed the church should not become involved in disputes over integration. There is too much turmoil surrounding the question, she said.

The girls seemed disenchanted by Congress.

"When I was in the sixth grade I considered running for public office," Kathy said, but then she decided Congress was "unreal and nightmarish.

"AND I'M tired of congressmen who want my support and ask me to solicit votes for them, and then won't listen to me."

"I've seen lawmakers sleeping or raading their papers, and then they 'come to' to vote," said Arlene Stens, Woodlynne, N.J., top winner of the contest.

Are advertisements aimed at taking advantage of the public?

"Yes," said Janice. "Advertisers believe middle class Americans are a bunch of dummies, that we can't recognize a good product. I think it's an insult."

"Hopefully, you can discriminate between television ads, but then in some cases business won't police itself," in the view of Carol Tate, Monticello, Ky.

THERE WAS support for proposals to legalize drugs.

"They're not a means of expression," Kathy Epstein, Bowie, Md., said. "I've seen friends deteriorate before my eyes."

Janice saw nothing wrong with coeducational college dormitories.

"You can enjoy yourself in more ways than one," she said. "This could test your willpower, prove that you have self-reliance."

New Look In Foods Dawning

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government not only is encouraging the proliferation of convenience foods on market shelves today, but has developed a blitz of products ranging from compressed orange juice pills to low-fat peanuts that taste like black walnuts.

The government-produced foods and snacks even have adopted the private sector's penchant for mod names — including MOD (for Milk-Orange Drink).

But most of these strange new foods are not yet available for public consumption. They have only been tested in such marketing areas as the Agriculture Department cafeteria.

THE NEW food are developed by the Agricultural Research Service, sometimes working with private firms. When scientists are satisfied with the finished product, it is made available to commercial firms which then must pay all manufacturing costs.

The Milk-Orange Drink called MOD looks like pale orange milk and tastes like creamy orange sherbet. It combines the protein and minerals of milk with the vitamins of orange juice.

O. J. Tabs, sugarless candies made by compressing dehydrated orange juice into tablets, require no refrigeration, have all the nutrition of liquid orange juice and a low calory count. Researchers said they would be ideal for campers and others who need light-weight, low-volume, nutritious food.

ANOTHER NEW product, Orange-Ho, is a beverage made of whole fruit — skins and pulp and juice.

Almost 90 per cent of the fruit is used to make Orange-Ho compared to less than half in regular orange juice.

The food industry has showed interest in Orange-Ho, but there are no firm plans yet to produce it commercially.

Another product aimed at reducing waste is a cream and whey spread. More than 14 billion pounds of whey —a byproduct of cheese — is thrown away every year. Researchers hope a snack spread made of one part cream and six parts whey will reduce the throwaway trend.

Fruit tidbits produced by the drying processes of osmosis and vacuuming —called "OsmoVacs" —retain the color and flavor of fresh fruit without refrigeration or chemical preservatives. Apples, peaches, strawberries, raspberries, and bananas have been dried successfully by the OsmoVac process.

The fruits can be reconstituted to use in baking, salads, or deserts, and they absorb water to make a sauce. An imaginative cook coated OsmoVac banana slices with chocolate, and reported the candy was delicious.

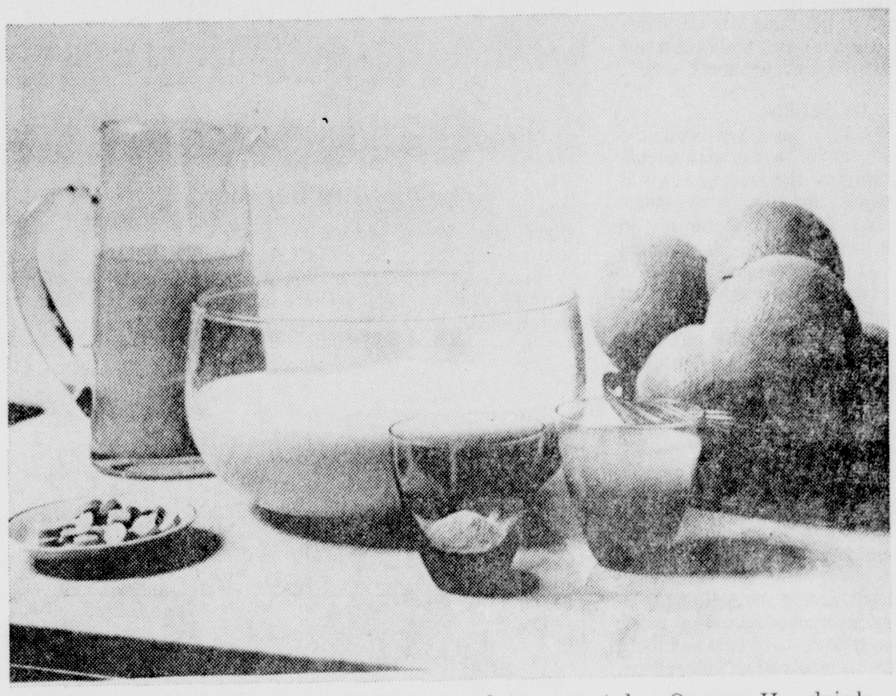
THE DEPARTMENT said a large commercial food processor was interested in producing Osmo-Vacs.

One product already on the market is low-fat peanuts, preserved so as to contain only half as many calories as the oil-roasted or dry-roasted kind. They can be used as a snack or added to soups and other processed foods, and some are flavored to taste like black walnuts and pecans.

San Francisco's famed sourdough French bread soon may be available everywhere in the country. Until now, it could be prepared only in San Francisco. Department biochemists and microbiologists identified the particular yeast and bacteria that give the bread its unique flavor.

With Chicken

Fill canned cling peach halves with whole cranberry sauce mixed with a little grated orange rind. Mold in orange or lemon gelatin as a perfect accompaniment for fried chicken.



NEW FOODS rich in protein and vitamins, good tasting and easy to prepare are being developed through the U. S. Department of Agriculture research. Shown here are some ranging from orange drinks, orange juice tablets, crystals, Orange-Ho drink and MOD, a milk-orange drink, which tastes like creamy orange sherbet. The foods are not yet available to the consumer, as they are still under testing.

Railroad Decides Not To Hire Brakewoman

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Gaylene Snow, 37, wanted to become Southern Pacific's first brakeman of the opposite sex but the railroad has decided not to hire her.

Miss Snow was admitted to the brakeman's training program three weeks ago, but among other things,she fell off a moving boxcar, Southern Pacific said Tuesday.

"We were fully prepared to hire her if she could pass the training, but she could not,' the railroad said in an announcement.

Southern Pacific said she would have been the first woman hired as a brakeman by that line. Vomen worked on lines in the East during World War II as brakemen.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Will True Tranquility Ever Come To 'Liberated' Women?

DEAR HELEN:
One thing the women's liberation movement has caused — that isn't mentioned very much — is "awakening without hope for fulfillment," which can be worse then sleep.

For the first time in their lives, many women are realizing they are downgraded, "used," almost enslaved by their roles, but what can they do about it? If they rebel, family wars start. If they divorce their male chauvinists, they aren't equipped for "single" struggle and they get into worse troubles, besides being lonely.

Today, they're aware and resentful, therefore witchy. Yesterday they were submissive and accepting so perhaps, on the whole, treated better than are modern wives who challenge their husbands and often get the worst of it.

Will true equality ever come? — DOUBTFUL

DEAR DOUBTFUL:
I think it will — in maybe two generations. Almost every major social change takes at least that long, for the first generation starts areas of controversy and the second, children of the "old guard," are only half convinced. Not until the third batch matures will total equality be considered the norm.

... And then, whaddya bet: someone will start a "liberate women from the drudgery of business" movement, and there we'll go again .... — H.

DEAR HELEN:
I've seen a lot of ads lately about learning while you sleep. Do you think people can really assimilate knowledge just because a tape recorder hands you the message as you snore? — KARL

DEAR KARL:
I'll believe this "learn while you sleep" thing when it cures snoring by subconscious suggestion. Any takers? — H.

DEAR HELEN:
"A.D." described well the tortures of a nervous breakdown and the inability of friends and family to understand. I was the victim of two such breakdowns. My husband of 23 years thought I could help myself. He became disgusted and took up with another woman. Then he started drinking, and eventually drank himself to death. My guilt threw me into deeper depressions, for had I been well, my husband might still be with me. I loved him.

Always, there was the terrible aloneness, the knowledge that I was acting "crazy," but the inability to change. Mental illness is hating life but fearing death, hating yourself and fearing everyone else. I'm under psychiatric care now and there are moments when I have hope. Pray for me! — MRS. A.R.C.

DEAR HELEN:
I'm a college student, in the State Hospital because of attempted suicide. Why? Who knows. Depressions are hard to explain rationally.

There are many truths a psychiatric patient must face, and the toughest for me aren't those the doctor digs out. The cruelest "fact" of all is that those "friends to the end" write you off when you go "mental."

I'm not violent, Helen. I'm just the same, except all the nerve ends are exposed. Why do they treat me as a pariah? Are they afraid of me? — J.J.

DEAR J.:
No, they're afraid of themselves. They are fearful that they'll say the wrong thing and perhaps head you toward another depression. Few people know how to face mental illness and so friends desert you when you need them most, excusing themselves with "I might only make her worse." I'm sorry. H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Short, Casual Hair Styles For Course

Short, casual hair styles which serve admirably on the golf course and off are preferred by the women of the Professional Golf Association. They warn that sun and wind can dry and split hair and recommend using a cream rinse hair conditioner at least once a week for women who are outdoors great amounts of time.

Sometimes the women pro golfers resort to stretch wigs that can be rinsed in warm soap suds and quick-dried.

Botulism Death Pinpoints Failures

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — The tragic death of a New York man allegedly from botulism caused by eating contaminated potato soup shocked government officials, industry executives and private citizens into a feverish search for other potentially dangerous products from the manufacturer, Bon Vivant Soups Inc.

Extensive publicity and fast footwork resulted in recall of almost all suspicious items and altered the public in time to prevent other deaths from the same cause.

But an even more shocking bit of information lies behind the story about the fatal vichyssoise. It is the scarcity of effective government supervision of sanitation in food processing plants.

THE FOOD and Drug Administration, the federal agency charged with policing most of the food industry — the Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction over meat and poultry plant sanitation — lacks authority to go into a food plant without approval of company executives.

It has to resort to voluntary action by industry, which has its own stake in maintaining the purity of food products. Limited to the use of persuasion, the FDA has issued what it calls "Good Manufacturing Practices" guidelines designed to improve plant sanitation standards and make them uniform.

It claims that between 65 and 80 per cent of plants comply with these suggested guidelines, which are of the most elementary type. For example, they suggest "adequate hand-washing facilities," "effective sanitizing procedures" and "proper storage temperatures."

Plants that produce meat and poultry items are required not only to maintain strict sanitation standards but must pay for the services of government inspectors who watch operations on a continuous basis.

BON VIVANT comes under these requirements when it produces its chicken ala king, lamb stew and other items containing meat or poultry. But there is no government inspection required for its potato soup processing line.

Yet FDA tests later on 214 of the company products, including meat items, showed that up to 2.8 per cent of them had defects such as swollen cans. The acceptable average is .5 per cent.

These results mean that even continuous government supervision was not enough to prevent defective processing methods and potentially dangerous products getting by. The National Canners Association recently inspected the Bon Vivant plant and pronounced it acceptable.

But the FDA had not inspected the plant recently, according to spokesmen for the agency. In fact, the agency does not have enough inspectors to visit even half of the nation's food plants each year and some plants more than once every six years.

INSPECTION IS also hampered by the necessity of getting prior approval of plant executives. Few companies refuse such permission, but those companies may be the ones most in need of plant improvements. Bon Vivant has cooperated with FDA in the past. But the last FDA inspection there was in 1966.

FDA has more power to punish a company than to prevent defective products. It can test items on public sale and can ask the company to recall them at the company's expense. The FDA can also seize and confiscate the items if the company refuses to recall them. But that may be too late to prevent serious illnesses from defects that might have shown up in inspection.

Occasional human error is impossible to avoid. But consumers can be on the alert for swollen cans, a sign that botulinum is present. And they can refuse to buy otherwise defective cans regardless of how cheap they may be.

Some Positive Pollution Checks

There are immediate steps you and your family can take to help control environmental pollution.

A leading in-home sales company marketing home cleaning products, suggests some positive things you can do:

Be willing to pay for adequate sewage treatment and to wait a reasonable time for industry to implement air, water and noise pollution controls. What's worth having is worth working for. Support efforts to improve sewage efficiency and capacity.

CONSERVE WATER: A family of four consumes an average of 200 gallons of water a day, without the consumption of industry.

Run dishwashers and clothes washers only when necessary and only at full capacity.

Keep at a minimum the operation of the garbage disposal.

Water the lawn only in the morning or in the evening when it is not immediately lost through evaporation.

WATER POLLUTION: Use limited or no-phosphate detergents in your washing machine. Measure your detergent according to the manufacturer's label instructions. With many cities enforcing phosphate percentages in detergents, check that your detergent conforms to local ordinances on phosphorus content. Many ordinances require that detergents contain no more than 8.7 per cent phosphorus by weight.

SOLID WASTE POLLUTION: Litter is truly a family affair. About 5.3 pounds of waste are discarded by each person in the U.S. every day. Streets, highways, campsites are littered by nice people who believe good housekeeping is for the other fellow. Here are a few corrective steps to take:

— Maintain refuse cans in good condition with tight-fitting lids.

— Take a litter walk — picking up candy wrappers, etc., as you go along.

— Equip your car or truck with a litter bag and use it.

— Leave picnic grounds and campsites better than you found them.

— Bring your own trash bags just in case the campsite containers are full or none provided. Bring trash home if necessary.

— Never use highways or open areas for disposal of washing machines, furniture and large items. This is becoming common practice, creating eyesores in our finest recreational areas.

AIR POLLUTION: Walk or bicycle instead of driving whenever possible. It's good for the body as well as the environment.

When you take your car, take a friend. Car pools, public transportation and more efficient management of short trips out of the house cut down on the number of cars in the streets.

Investigate anti-pollution devices on new car purchases.

Don't burn leaves. Use them for compost. Start a compost pile for disposal of grass cuttings and vegetable wastes. If you must burn trash, use only a properly designed incinerator.

NOISE POLLUTION: Noise is being labeled as the "new pollutant" by many authorities including the concerned medical profession. Doctors are beginning to label noise in the home, factory and outdoors as a major influence increasing tension and related diseases.

Turn down the volume on your entertainment appliances.

Noise-test appliances, toys, etc. before you buy.

Dieting Tips From Expert

Ada Shinabarger, Michigan State University consumer information specialist, says "The best place to start reducing fat in the dietis with foods that contribute fat and little else."

According to Miss Shinabarger, cutting back on meat, dairy, poultry and other foods in which fat is combined with other essential nutrients can be dangerous. We need the nutrients in these foods to stay healthy. She suggests cutting down on table fats, foods fried in fats, pastries and other rich desserts.

Meat and poultry contain protein and iron, milk contains protein, vitamin A, calcium and riboflavin, all essential to good health.

Dinner Suggestion: Almond Chicken Idea

Sprinkle broiler-fryer halves or pieces with garlic salt and seasoned pepper; dot with butter and bake at 400 degrees, basting occasionally, until tender (about 45 minutes).

Stir slivered or chopped almonds into drippings and return to oven for five minutes or until roasted. Spoon almonds over chicken and serve with buttered rice and peas.

Couple Is Making Home In Novato

Living in Loomis are Mr. and Mrs. James Hart (Karen Florine Prior) who were married July 3 at the First Baptist Church of Novato.

Mary Sedgwick of Novato was maid of honor; the bride's sister, Amy Jane Prior, and the bridegroom's sister Nancy Hart were the bridesmaids.

Randy Baird of Novato was best man, and guests were ushered to their seats by the bride's brothers, Keith and Michael Prior.

Karen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael D. Prior of San Rafael. She is a graduate of Terra Linda High School and prior to her marriage was employed by Atherton stables in Novato.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hart of Loomis are the bridegroom's parents. He was graduated from Davidson High School in Mobile, Ala., and La Salle Extension University in Chicago. Mary Jane Hart is also his sister. He is employed at McClellan Air Force Base in Sacramento.

A reception at Atherton Stables followed the ceremony.

Marin Girl Scouts Picked For Two Events

Two Marin County Girls have been chosen by the San Francisco Bay Area Girl Scout Council for national opportunities.

Lois Kazakoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Kazakoff of Corte Madera, left on July 8 for Minneapolis, Minn., and will take part in a 12-day, 500 mile hike from Hoveland, Minn., to Terrace Bay, Ontario, Canada. Lois is a member of Senior Troop 2130. Those participating in the hike will carry everything they will need on their backs.

Margaret Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marsh Perry of Novato, has been selected for the Plantation Jubilee of Arts in Charleston, S.C.

Use Pat Of Butter For Skin Treatment

A pat of butter a day keeps the complexion looking like peaches and cream, according to Estee Lauder, internationally known beauty expert and cosmetics manufacturer.

The skin must be nourished as well as cleansed, says Mrs. Lauder.

VISITOR TO ECOLOGY CLASS

A strange appearing craft, which resembled a cross between a boat, airplane and raft, skimmed over the waters of Bahia Marina in Novato yesterday morning and rode ashore on a cushion of air to demonstrate its effect on the environment for more than 100 students in the Novato Unified School District's summer school class in conservation. It was the Coast Guard's experimental hovercraft which can move up to 80 miles an hour, operate in shallow water and on land and make rescues in areas unreachable by ordinary craft. Instead Of Rocks, Vegetable Garden

The San Anselmo City Council approved last night in theory the establishment of a flower, plant and vegetable garden at Robson-Harrington Park by countywide contributors.

While the council approved the concept, it sent the proposal to the parks and recreation commission to work out specific items.

Fifteen members from various county organizations attended the meeting to put forth their proposal to plant gardens where weeds, brambles, beer cans and broken glass now stand.

The produce from the vegetable garden will be given to the emergency food program of the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council, Inc., the Food Conspiracy and to people contributing in developing the project.

Mayor Kenneth L. Anderson said, "This is a very attractive offer to the city," while councilmen Warren R. Perry cautioned that the parks and recreation commission should delineate who will be responsible for the care and equipment used for the garden.

The council appointed John L. Dodge, former YMCA counselor, to the vacant post in the parks and recreation commission. He replaces Robert England whose term has expired.

After many questions were raised by Councilman James F. Reed, the council referred to participating attorneys agreements for the city library to have an inter-library loan system with the county and to join the North Bay Cooperative Library System. Reed said the 22-page report seemed to stick the city with expenses it shouldn't have to bear.

The council laid the framework for selecting a consultant and establishing a steering committee to study city and valleywide government structure to find out what programs the city can best handle and what programs a valleywide agency should handle. The study is funded by $10,000 budgeted by the city and matching funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The council voted to interview three or four final candidates for consultant with Philip S. Heinecke, planning commission chairman. Members of other governmental agencies in Ross Valley would be invited to listen and ask candidates questions.

The council said the steering committee should include representatives from valley wide governmental agencies and the county.

The San Anselmo City Council also:

NOISE — Put over for rescheduling two ordinances proposed to council for noise abatement. One ordinance outlaws unnecessary noise while the other outlaws noise levels measured on a decibel meter.

APPOINTMENTS — Set July 27 to appoint two members to the Planning Commission and set Aug. 10 to appoint one member to the Marin Economic Opportunity Council and two members to the mini-board.

WORKSHOP — Set Aug. 3 as the first session of a trial workshop for council and citizens to discuss matters of citizen concern.

SIDEWALK — Approved the bid of Ghilotti Brothers Inc. of San Rafael for sidewalks, driveway, curb and gutter work at a price per square foot.

PAYMENT — Approved payment of $3,109 slurry seal contract for work on public works.

FENCE — Approved an encroachment permit for A. Tatum to construct a fence four feet from the back face of the curb at 56 Suffield Avenue.

PLUM TREE — Moved to check out a plum tree asked to be removed from Robson-Harrington Park by Charles Leitzell, public works director, because children have splattered plums on restroom walls. Councilman Lewis W. Stewart said he didn't want the tree cut down while Anderson said, "It is a crime to waste fruit."

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to July 27.

Berkeley Cuts Police Budget

BERKELEY (UPI)—Berkeley's city council, slowed by arguments between radicals and conservatives on how much money the police department should get, is still without a city budget.

In another lengthy meeting Tuesday night, the council trimmed another $20,700 from the proposed $4.2 million police budget, but it took six hours to do so.

Mayor Warren Widener postponed further budget considerations until next week.

Frank Quinn, Hub Recreation Director, Submits Resignation

San Anselmo Recreation Director Frank L. Quinn last night resigned his position after nearly 18 years with the city. He said he was quitting for personal reasons.

Quinn's resignation, in which he termed his employment an "enjoyable and rewarding experience," was submitted to the city council and will take effect Sept. 1.

It follows by two weeks a council budget session at which Quinn, 68, in an emotional appeal for more recreation funds, threatened to quit on the spot.

He was talked out of the decision that time by councilmen who allocated $900 additional to the city's summer recreation program.

At a later budget meeting, disgruntled councilmen harshly criticized the recreation director for promising summer jobs to students without informing the council or having the necessary funds in his budget.

Quinn was appointed recreation director last year when that department was split from the parks department. Previously he held both jobs.

He was originally hired in 1953 as a part-time recreation director. The park maintenance duties were turned over to the public works department because Quinn said the job was too much for one man.

Quinn, whose nickname is Ninny (Italian for "little" since he stands five feet, seven inches), had been active in sports in Marin since his high school days at Tamalpais High School.

He held sway at Tam from 1922-25 and was winner of the school's first "all-star" award in 1923. In those days, to win such an honor, an athlete had to be on three championship teams. As a sophomore, Quinn helped Tam to the Northwestern League championships in baseball, basketball, football and track.

When Quinn was named the recreation department's full time director in 1964, a bitter controversy erupted that threatened to split the Hub city.

One faction wanted a professional recreation director hired full-time and the other wanted to retain Quinn only elevating him from his part-time status.

The council said last night it will consider at its next meeting whether to hire only a recreation director or a joint director for both parks and recreation.

Philadelphia department stores have revised business hours so that they don't open in the mornings until after the traffic rush, and they are closing earlier to beat the homeward bound traffic.

Ways To Check Growth In Petaluma Outlined

Stricter zoning controls and a new eastside parkway were recommended as means of controlling growth last night at the Petaluma City Council meeting.

In joint session with the planning commission, the council heard a status report from planning consultant Sidney Williams on plans to revitalize sections of the city and to gain better control over new growth.

Williams said his plan shows less urban expansion into agricultural areas and calls for more compactness of development and a greater variety of housing types.

He said that if the city monitors growth closely for five years and keeps control over it, school and park facilities can catch up with the rapid residential development of past years.

He recommended a circumferential parkway be located midway between Ely and Old Adobe roads as a new collector street for the eastside. "It would give coherence to the form of Petaluma," Williams said, showing on a map that it would connect with the westside road system for a complete loop of the city.

Councilmen and planners did not disagree with the plan, but questioned the cost of the new four-mile road. Williams said a full parkway plan could cost $500,000, but that the city could use state and federal grants as well as gasoline tax money.

The planning report recommended no further zoning for industrial uses since it estimated that currently zoned land would be sufficient for at least 15 years.

The plan also called for a halt in commercial expansion in the area near Petaluma Plaza as a means of strengthening the downtown core area.

City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer objected to the plan because more sales tax money is needed to keep property taxes within bounds. He said he did not believe that restricting commercial growth in other areas would improve the business climate for downtown stores.

The men generally agreed that if a regional shopping center were to locate in Petaluma it would not be based on the Eastside Plaza because of traffic problems.

The planners also called for a new route to the coast so that travelers need not go through downtown Petaluma. Williams suggested Skillman Lane, north of the city, be improved for that purpose.

The city officials were also urged to rezone some land to provide more specific office district and to think in terms of using flood plain zones as permanent open space and for bicycle trails.

The planners recommended no further expansion of current mobile home parks and said others should be scattered around the city, rather than grouped in one particular area.

The council and commission set another conference with the planning consultant for July 27 at 7:30 p.m.

Installation Of Officers Slated

Donald K. Maloney will be installed Wednesday as Grand Knight of San Rafael Council, Knights of Columbus.

Installation ceremonies will be at 8:15 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall at 166 Tunstead Avenue, San Anselmo.

Others to be installed and their offices are Rev. John F. McGregor, chaplain; Conrad H. Goerl, deputy; Thomas Jeastran, chronicler; Thomas Kelley, recorder; Victor Severietti, financial secretary; Anthony Petcovich, treasurer; Allan A. Trosclair, warden; William Raber, inside guard and James Barrett, outside guard.

Townhouses On Freitas Parkway Are Advanced

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night approved preliminary plans for 107 townhouses on the Manuel T. Freitas Parkway, and also instructed the developers to make plan changes to meet some objections.

On 27 hillside acres near the northwest border of the city, the houses would be clustered on 12 acres and 15 acres would be kept as open space.

The commission asked the developer, Gonzalez and Oberkamper, to move the proposed four-lane street as far away from the back property line of the houses on Butternut Drive as possible and to provide for extension of the street past the 27 acres to the city limits. The commission also asked for a bicycle path beside the street and landscape planting in the area between the street and the back yard line of the houses on Butternut Drive.

Attorney Eugene W. Doyle, representing residents of Butternut Drive, said that the street on a hilltop in back of their homes would present a traffic hazard as the street would be higher than the houses. He also said the cutting of the hill and grading for the street would make the embankments unsafe at the rear of these houses.

The commission asked for a full soils report when precise plans for the development are submitted at some unspecified date.

Kenneth Charshaf of 2 San Mateo Court, representing the residents of that street, said that they did not support the project. "If the development must go through, then we want to protect the 15 acres of open space," he said.

Commissioner Thomas R. O'Toole, acting chairman in the absence of Chairman Joseph J. Gargarino, told Charshaf that it would be up to the city attorney to decide the method of preserving the open spaces. He said it could be done by covenant or outright deed.

Approximately 50 residents from the area attended the meeting, and the few who spoke mainly objected to the width and extension of Freitas Parkway as a four lane street.

O'Toole said that it had been planned as a connector street since 1954 by both Marin County and San Rafael.

Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner told the group that these were only preliminary plans. The commission and San Rafael City Council will each hold public hearings on the precise plans and the Parkway extension, Hotchner said.

The San Rafael Planning Commission also:

RESIGNATION — Received a letter of resignation from Commissioner V. Judson Klein because he has moved out of the city. Hotchner said that only the city council could accept the resignation.

MONTECITO — Instructed Hotchner to notify the owners of the Montecito Shopping Center that they were in violation of the landscaping requirements in their use permit, and to set a date for a hearing on revoking the use permit if landscaping is not brought up to specifications.

APARTMENTS — Approved plans and a use permit for an 18 unit apartment complex at 525 Kerner Boulevard for Barbara Cross, owner. It also approved plans for a six unit apartment at 37 Pacheco Street for J. C. and George Lagomarsino, owners.

MAP — Approved the final map of Picnic Hill condominium at 237 Picnic Avenue to Edward T. Ghirardo, owner.

SUBDIVISIONS — Approved plans for a two lot subdivision at 15 Hazelwood Lane to Ronald Hurt, owner, and a two lot subdivision at Linden Lane and Grand Avenue to Dr. William Eastman, owner.

WAREHOUSE — Approved reconstruction of a 10,890-square-foot warehouse at 121 Jordan Street to Homer Rickards, owner. The original warehouse was destroyed by fire.

STORAGE YARD — Granted a use permit to Joseph Fillippo, owner, to use 23,400-square feet at 2147 Francisco Boulevard for a contractor's storage yard and steel fabrication operation.

POSTPONED — Postponed until July 27 consideration of a four lot subdivision on Makin Grade for Gibraltar Savings and Loan Association and two free standing signs for Edward and Jordan Smith at 4480 Redwood Highway.

When Spanish explorers reached the Peruvian Andes in the 1500s they discovered white potatoes and they called them patata. They probably carried the spuds to Spain and from there they went to Europe.

Island Ferries Service Disputed

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Competing ferryboat operators yesterday disputed whether existing service linking Tiburon and Angel Island is adequate.

The dispute came in the opening hearing by the Public Utilities Commission into an application by Harbor Carriers to extend its services during the April through September tourist season from Tiburon to Berkeley via Angel Island. Harbor Carriers now serves Tiburon commuters and recreational traffic between Tiburon and San Francisco.

Disputing the application was Milton McDonogh, operator of the ferry between Tiburon and Angel Island.

The attorney for Harbor Carriers, John G. Lyons, argued that McDonogh's service was inadequate to meet the demand. He presented evidence that McDonogh had to leave people behind at the Tiburon dock during the past two weekends because his two ferries were filled to capacity.

McDonogh's attorney, William P. Clecak, countered that no one had to wait more than 15 minutes, and said the delays were only at peak hours. Most of the runs, he said, were made with the two vessels only half full, according to Clecak.

McDonogh's position was supported by the City of Tiburon, which wrote the commission that there was no need for additional service to Angel Island. Neither McDonogh nor the city objected to Harbor Carriers serving Berkeley directly.

Closed Meeting

The San Rafael City Council will hold a closed meeting at 8 p.m. today in the city hall to discuss salary negotiations for city employees with the council's negotiator, James H. McCown, city manager.

Third Unit For Death Row Inmates Is Opened

The burgeoning population on San Quentin's death row has forced prison officials to open a third unit to house condemned men.

Associate Warden James W. L. Park said today a group of 15 cells on the second floor of the prison's adjustment center will be partially occupied by death row inmates tomorrow or Friday.

Park said the occupants of the new section will be a select group of inmates who will be permitted outside exercise for the first time. Inmates in the other two Death Row units still will be restricted to exercise within their cell blocks.

He said a small exercise yard adjacent to the adjustment center will be used for 90 minutes of daily exercise by men of the new unit.

The current death row population of 97 is housed in single cells on the top floor of the north block — the original death row — and on the top floor of the adjustment center, an annex opened in 1966.

Park said all of the new cells would not be needed at once, although the addition will give death row a capacity of 105 inmates. Further expansion could be made, if needed, to the remainder of the adjustment center's second floor, Park said.

The death row population has grown steadily in recent years as juries, despite legal challenges of the death penalty, have continued to mete out death sentences.

Thieves Take Tires From Gas Station

Tires and batteries valued at $713 were stolen between July 4 and yesterday from the Union 76 service station at 679 East Blithedale Avenue, Mill Valley police reported today.

They said Station Manager Vincent J. Mulligan said the thieves apparently broke a lock on a tire shed at the rear of the station and took the goods.

PARLIAMENTARY GOOF

Council Hears Protest On 'Bogus' Resolution

An embarrassed Tiburon City Council last night got caught with an officially published notice of a resolution supposedly passed at a meeting that hadn't yet taken place.

The rhubarb came about because of the deadline of a weekly newspaper, according to City Mgr. Bert A. Balmer, who claimed along with the city attorney, Robert I. Conn, that the procedure was "perfectly legal."

At issue was a hearing to be scheduled for residents of Strawberry, Bel Aire, Bay View Heights, Eagle Rock, Pelican Hills and Tiburon Hills to protest annexation to the city.

Apparently, in order to meet the deadline of the Ebbtide, Conn delivered to the weekly newspaper last Friday a legal notice saying that the council had adopted a resolution last night setting the hearing for July 28 by a 4-to-0 vote.

According to the notice "approved" at the imaginary meeting, only Councilman Branwell D. Fanning was absent, whereas at last night's flesh-and-blood meeting, both Fanning and Mayor Dennis T. Rice were absent.

Although the paper has a dateline of today, copies of it came out yesterday and were being waved about in the council chambers by angry residents of the areas proposed for annexation.

A Strawberry resident asked if the resolution had been "voted on in private," and a woman from Eagle Rock said that "moral structure was sadly lacking" on the council.

Two of the three councilmen present last night decided to rerun the notice after voting to set the hearing first for Aug. 9 and later in the evening for Aug. 4.

Councilman Albert H. Sennett voted against the second resolution, saying "no amount of protestations ... are going to convince certain people that there is anything but a conspiracy under way."

In other action last night the council voted to refund to the developer of the subdivision Meadowhill, $2,600 he had paid for a parks and recreation fee because of an error in computing the fee.

At the end of last night's meeting, Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood announced that she had reconsidered her decision of last month to resign and that she intended to complete her term but not run for reelection next year.

The Tiburon City Council also:

WALKWAYS — Put over to the Aug. 23 meeting a discussion of the paving of paths in the Meadowhill subdivision.

APPOINTMENT — Reappointed F. G. Knight to the parks and recreation commission.

RECYCLING — Heard a report on the Belvedere-Tiburon recycling depot by Albert Aramburu, who said that the depot had only a $275 loss after six months of operation and that a fence could solve many of the depot's problems.

SALARIES — Formally adopted a salary schedule granting city employees 4 per cent across-the-board raises.

LEASE — Signed a new lease for the city hall with Main Street Properties for $700 a month.

Budget For Transit District Is Adopted

Marin County Transit District directors yesterday adopted a $1,065,890 budget for the new fiscal year and continued the district's maximum property tax rate of 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Of the total budget, $723,270 was earmarked for a reserve to be used possibly for purchase of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way and for expansion of the Golden Gate Bridge District's intracounty bus service.

Carryover funds from last fiscal year totaled $744,203, and revenue from the property tax will total $321,687 this fiscal year. The same tax rate raised $297,080 last year before increased assessment ratios and valuations.

The new budget's largest category of expenses was $324,920 for contractual services. This included $150,000 to subsidize the bridge district's intracounty bus service to start in December, $75,000 for demonstration projects by Marin Transit Systems Inc., $54,000 for the county's balanced transportation study, $25,000 for a full-time general manager, $12,480 for the acting general manager and $8,440 for a secretary-stenographer.

The directors postponed discussion of whether to have a full-time general manager, but included the $25,000 appropriation for one to cover the anticipated cost. Several directors, however, indicated their opposition to returning to a full-time manager now that the bridge district will be running transit operations.

James B. Robertson, a traffic engineer from the Department of Public Works with a background in transportation, has been acting general manager. Forty per cent of his salary is paid by the transit district and 60 per cent by the department to reflect their sharing of his time.

Robertson proposed no increase in the staff of two, himself and one secretary-stenographer.

The League of Women Voters of Central Marin has urged his replacement with a full-time manager.

District directors also supported amendment of pending state legislation to empower the bridge district to purchase surplus railroad rights-of-way for transit purposes. The railroad reportedly is about to try again to abandon its Sausalito line, long marked for transit use.

They postponed action on a plea from William Melbern, operator of the Airport Limousine Service, for assistance in his service to San Francisco Airport. Robertson suggested the district subsidize advertising the service.

Marinite To Appear For Bad Checks

Joseph E. Moser, 52, of 213 Montego Key, Bel Marin Keys, was scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court today on suspicion of passing checks with insufficient funds.

Moser was arrested at his home by Novato police, booked at the Marin County Jail and released when he posted $315 bail. Police said he passed 10 checks in the city, totaling about $200.

Ban On New Building Considered

A ban on new construction in the entire Ross Valley, from San Francisco Bay westward through Fairfax, will be considered Tuesday by a hearing panel of the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The hearing will be at 2 p.m. in Mill Valley City Hall.

The three-member panel will report its recommendation to the full board for its action on July 22.

The ban would apply to Corte Madera, Larkspur, Greenbrae, Kentfield, Kent Woodlands, Ross, San Anselmo, Fairfax and Sleepy Hollow. One-quarter of the county's population lives in the area, served by the Ross Valley Sanitary District.

The district, charged with violating orders by the regional board, thus faces the same ban imposed by the board last month on the City of Mill Valley and Richardson Bay Sanitary District. The ban would be to prevent further pollution pending improvements.

Chairman of the panel will be Mrs. Carl H. Auer of San Francisco. Other panelists will be board members William C. Weber of San Mateo and Dr. William F. Upton of San Rafael.

Tam Fire Session

Directors of the Tamalpais Fire Protection District will hold a special closed meeting at 8 p.m. today at the Tamalpais Community Services District Office, 305 Bell Lane, to consider hiring an employee, according to Byron O. Boulware, chairman.

Don't Blame The Light For What It Exposes

When city, district or county board members take it upon themselves to reach decisions in secret "for the good of the people," they would do well to first consider some of the words of U.S. Supreme Court justices in their 6-3 decision freeing the press to publish "secrets" from a history of U.S. involvement in Vietnam prepared for the Pentagon.

The justices cited legal reasons for denying the executive department the right of injunction against the press. But some of them went farther to recall the reasons for the First Amendment to the Constitution itself. And it applies all down the line — not just in Washington.

FOR INSTANCE, Justice Hugo L. Black:

"In the First Amendment the Founding Fathers gave the free press the protection it must have to fulfill its essential role in our democracy. The press was to serve the governed, not the governors . . . The press was protected so that it could bare the secrets of government and inform the people . . . In revealing the workings of government that led to the Vietnam War, the newspapers nobly did precisely that which the founders hoped and trusted they would do."

And further, said Justice Black:

"Secrecy in government is fundamentally anti-democratic, perpetuating bureaucratic errors. Open debate and discussion of public issues are vital to our national health."

JUSTICE POTTER STEWART, concurring, went farther, hitting at the bureaucratic practice of stamping "secret" on anything that may sometime prove embarrassing.

"I should suppose," he wrote, "that moral, political and practical considerations would dictate that a very first principle . . . would be an insistence upon avoiding secrecy for its own sake. For when everything is classified, then nothing is classified, and the system becomes one to be disregarded by the cynical or careless and to be manipulated by those intent on self-protection of self-promotion."

In this, Justice Stewart touched the probable reason for much of the executive department's anxiety over the publication of a history of events running back through four administrations. For, although the government held publication of the Pentagon documents threatened "grave and irreparable" injury to the public interest, much of its alarm no doubt was because such publication threatened grave — and possibly irreparable — injury to the reputations of a series of men who had made decisions in secret, and then had misled the public as to what those decisions were.

THE NUB of the case was put a long time ago by a President of the United States, much more succinctly and neatly than the ringing pronouncements of the justices. It was President Theodore Roosevelt who said:

"If trouble comes from having the light turned on, remember it is not really due to the light but to the misconduct which is exposed."

That, too, is something for all officials and bureaucrats — big and small — to remember.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Zenger Laid The Foundation For Times, Post, And The Rest

By FRED W. KLINE

SACRAMENTO (CNS — A very important historical figure has been completely ignored in all those discussions of freedom of the press which have been taking place during the past few weeks.

"The right of exposing arbitrary power by speaking and writing the truth" was established for the press in a firm manner before the American Revolution, when a jury in 1735 allowed a New York printer, John Peter Zenger, to print articles in conflict with the colonial government.

Ever since, it has been really quite simple to obtain agreement from public officials or even private persons of the ethical truth of the concept that no law should be made which could be considered "abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press, or of the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grivances."

THIS SIMPLE agreement on press freedom usually can be expected to hold right up until the persons so much in favor of press freedom have a little self-interest item facing the gentlemen of the Fourth Estate. In fact, you will find a direct gauge measured on a scale between fearless and irresponsible journalism in relation to the amount of innocent little evasive substance necessary to lightly cover over some minor insignficant violation of public trust.

President John Adams was the first major political figure to find a really efficient means of handling a troublesome press. He had a law passed called the Alien and Sedition Act of 1798, which gave him the right to throw offending journalists into jail. This system failed when the dirty scroundels were able to publish their offensive journals with the aid of equally base acquaintances.

This perfectly great tool for bureaucrats was tossed out by Thomas Jefferson and his friend James Madison when they drafted the Kentucky and Virginia resolutions. These documents established the "right of freely examining public charters and measures" and further established the concept that any law "which does abridge the freedom of the press, is not law, but is altogether void and of no effect."

THE REAL CLINCHER came when journalists made refusal to being pushed around by politicians, mob rule, or even the PTA president a virtue. William Lloyd Garrison set the example for the whole journalism profession in 1835. A lynch mob which dragged him through the streets of Boston in an attempt to quiet an objectionable view could not errrorize him into stopping a single issue.

Garrison wrote: "I am aware that many object to the severity of my language. On this subject I do not wish to think or speak or write with moderation. Urge me not to use moderation in a cause like the present. I am in earnest. I will not equivocate, I will not excuse, I will not retreat a single inch, and I will be heard."

Thus it has always been that the right of a free press is a cornerstone of our nation. It is not just something to satisfy the whim of a young eager reporter or caprice of a publisher. It is, rather, the right and obligation of the American press to represent every single citizen of the land. The right was put in the Constitution in order that the people would be given a guarantee to know what their government was doing.

THIS RIGHT to report and comment freely serves as an essential check upon government, which tends to assume more and more authority. We must all realize that the free press combats the development of arbitary power by the right to criticize freely the conduct of public men. Corruption in public office thrives in secrecy.

No president, no governor, no mayor, no school board or insignificant town has a right to avoid public observation at such time as he decides on a public life.

The concept of freedom of press has evolved to mean an absence of definite restrictions for the good of all the people.

Fairfax Protesters Not Against Growth

The headline of the news item in The Independent-Journal on July 7, "Fairfax Unit Announces Plans to Fight Growth," is totally misleading. We are fully in accord with the master plan, drawn up by Albert Solnit, chief of advanced planning for Marin County. This plan was approved by the Fairfax Planning Commission on Jan. 10, 1968. We approve a natural growth of population, but we cannot accept a rapid increase that will overburden our facilities and increase our taxes.

A recently posted sign reads "Marin Town and Country Open for Final Year." It is our belief that the people of Fairfax value this unique area deeply enough to take whatever steps are necessary to save it from destruction. Now is the time to let the Fairfax City Council know what you think about it.

School Residence Voting Precedent

One side issue of registering 18-year-olds in California to vote has been the matter of whether a student should vote at his school residence or in the district in which his parents live. The claim is that it is hard to know where to register them for there is no precedent.

I know of one near-precedent. In the spring of 1952, a group of married veterans at the University of Cincinnati including Mrs. Durr and myself attempted to register in Cincinnati. Some of us were local and some out-of-towners. The issue was complicated because the university was collecting non-resident tuition from all veterans even if they lived across the street. We finally won our point by getting two of the local papers interested in such ludicrous situations as people being "residents" in towns their parents had moved to after they had started to college and which they had never seen. Further, they were by that time heads of their own families.

The precedent is not exact. All the people in this situation were married, all over 21, and most were parents. Also, it was in Ohio, not California. But, we did not stage a radical "take-over" of Cincinnati, most of us (but not all) voted for Eisenhower.

Time To Grow Up And Outlaw Fireworks

The Fourth of July has again come and gone. After 195 years of celebrating this country's birthday, we still have yet to learn a responsible and meaningful way of wishing our country well on this occasion. the idiotic practice of getting one's jollys by shooting off fireworks and firecrackers has gone far enough. it is time for the sale and possession of fireworks and firecrackers to the general public be outlawed.

Every year numerous fires are started by careless persons who set off fireworks with little knowledge of what kind of explosive they are really dealing with. More tragically, is the bitter fact that each year hundreds of children and adults are blinded or mutilated by these harmful explosives and by their own stupidity. People would be better off to spend the evening of the Fourth of July at home contemplating this country's Independence. That's where it's really at. It's not outside. in the streets, blowing some little kid's hand off or perhaps bliding yourself or someone else for life.

This country is 195 years old. Don't you think it's time its citizens grew up? I do, but I think they need a little help from our lawmakers. And that help is to outlaw the sale and possession of firecrackers and fireworks now.

Bias In Column On Medi-Cal Suit

Whether intentionally or through ignorance, Rus Walton, in a recent I-J column, gave a distorted "analysis" of the recent court decision that the Department of Health Care Services' cutbacks in the Medi-Cal program were illegal. Since Mr. Walton is a former member of Governor Reagan's administration, bias must be suspected in his comments.

Mr. Walton notes that the "hard-headed" director of California's Department of Health Care Services on Dec. 15, 1970, cut Medi-Cal fees and service "as an emergency measure" and that he consequently was "hauled into court" by California Medical Association and others who "complained that the cuts were unnecessary and illegal" and that he "should have held public hearings on the reductions."

What Mr. Walton failed to reveal is that such hearings are required by law, and that the CMA suit was over cutbacks in health services needed by the poor, and had absolutely nothing to do with the reduced fees paid to doctors, dentists, and other providers. And, he quickly dismissed the fact that the court upheld CMA and its associates in the suit on every point. Chances are the judge was better qualified than Mr. Walton to render a considered judgment on the matter . . .

In short, Mr. Walton's column was slanted in favor of the director of health care services and against the Medi-Cal patients who were forced to forego needed health care services — and against fact, truth and accuracy.

Questions Raised By Bennett Case

The recent (William M.) Bennett case raises more questions than it answered. Was the availability of a group of personal friends of Bennett as witnesses, the reason why the second arrest was tried first? Why the panel discussion of the case on KTIM and a front-page report of it in the I-J, with a repeat of the program scheduled in advance of the trial of the first arrest? Is the outcome of the second arrest now being used to create a basis for a change of venue or dismissal of the first arrest?

By what kind of logic does (Judge Robert A.) Smallman's handling of the case demonstrate confidence in the validity of the jury system? Is that same kind of logic responsible for his determination of the weight of evidence?

If the jury verdict had been allowed to stand, could not Bennett's attorney have appealed it? Is it not possible that in such case we might ultimately have found out just who was lying?

If this was a trumped-up case as implied by reversal of the jury verdict, were not the policemen and the doctor at Marin General guilty of perjury? According to the I-J, Smallman has subsequently convicted two or three defendants who were also arrested in Sausalito, on similar charges. If the police are not to be believed, should not these cases also have been dismised? Even if the individuals involved pleaded guilty, isn't it possible that they did so through fear, stupidity or simply lack of witnesses?

Does not the handling of this case tend to clinch the claim by minority groups, that the rich and influential can get off easy while the poor and unimportant get convicted?

Only two points were really answered. Smallman had the legal authority to reverse the jury's verdict and mere knowledge of the law does not necessarily produce common sense and good judgment.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

McCloskey In Peck Of Trouble In Home California District

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. — Rep. Paul McCloskey, the California Republican who is out to derail President Nixon, may well end up derailing himself right out of Congress.

One thing is evident: McCloskey may look like a big shot in Washington by showering his denunciations on the President and United States for war crimes in Vietnam, but he doesn't look the same here in his home district.

To the extreme doves and others on the New Left who want to rush all U.S. forces out of Vietnam regardless of the consequences, Representative McCloskey may appear to be an overnight hero, but to most of his constituents here in California's 11th Congressional District, he looms quite differently.

He appears like somebody they wish they hadn't elected and aim to defeat in next year's GOP primary.

Thus while McCloskey is busy with his dump-Nixon and elect-McCloskey-President campaign, Republican leaders in this 11th District are now getting busy with their re-elect-Nixon and dump-McCloskey-as-congressman campaign.

THIS ISN'T JUST speculation nor wishful thinking. There is evidence that the anti-McCloskey forces are gaining strength — and mean business.

The California Republican Assembly has openly censured McCloskey and urged that he take himself out of the Republican Party.

Recently, planning a major rally in the heart of his own district, members of the CRA voted not to invite McCloskey as a speaker. Instead they deliberately chose Rep. Charles Gubser of the neighboring 10th District because they knew Gubser was a firm supporter of the President's steady Vietnam withdrawal program and because they were confident he would speak out against McCloskey's actions and accusations.

He did. And then some.

THESE ARE THE EARLY signals showing that McCloskey is in trouble where it hurts — in his home congressional district — and it is probable that his trouble is going to grow.

Congressman Gubser, usually a moderate and mild-spoken man, didn't hold anything back and the Republican voters here showed they liked it.

Gubser told them that in his view McCloskey was practicing "McCarthyism" by making unproved charges against the United States and he saw McCarthyism turning into "McCloskeyism."

"When any one," Gubser declared at the CRA rally in nearby Burlingame, "reaches the point where he accuses his own country of engaging in a policy of genocide and indiscriminate bombing of civilians in Laos, when he says this nation is guilty of war crimes like those for which the Nuremburg trials decreed the penalty of death — this is a disservice to our nation, to the two and one-half million young men who served in Southeast Asia, and to the 50,000 men who have given their lives there."

PROBABLY FEW realize that McCloskey was a dedicated all-out, bomb-nearly-everything hawk on the eve of the 1968 GOP primary when he ran against Shirley Temple Black. He told people I have talked with that the United States ought to pour all the forces into Vietnam needed to win, ought to bomb all the infiltration routes and destroy Haiphong as a useable harbor, whatever it might do to Russian and British ships and crewmen.

He changed this stance when friends told him he couldn't possibly get elected with such a campaign.

In New Hampshire a few days ago he said that he is "gradually moving toward the feeling I would like to be President."

Here in his 11th District of California, his constituents are less gradually "moving toward the feeling" they would like to see him neither President nor congressman.

BY NO MEANS NEUTRAL

Most Tailgate Murderers Don't Need To Carry Guns

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — The people in and around this capital are much less disturbed today about the world-famous Pentagon papers than they are about the senseless shooting of a Vietnam-bound naval officer and his son in what the papers call the "tailgate murders." The two were killed when the lieutenant commander stepped out of his car to admonish a smart-aleck who drove too close behind him and then cut dangerously in front of him — and the smart-aleck happened to be packing a .38 pistol.

The incident has rekindled in some offices and households those old arguments about race which had lain mostly quiet during this hot summer (although the nonracial nature of the shooting shows in the fact that the information leading to arrest of the black defendant came from other black citizens). It also has our more emotional firearms fans shouting again that they should be free to arm themselves against the day of eventual civil war, and gun control advocates swearing just as intensely that this is yet another example of why handguns should be outlawed.

I JOIN THE LATTER view about guns. I also believe the scrape took place to start with not because the victims were white and the murderer was black, but instead because he was one of a class of hundreds of thousands of Americans who toy around the edges of murder every time they slip behind a steering wheel.

Very few of them carry or even possess guns. Many of them are unconscious of what they are going — while others are arrogant about it, and dare anybody to challenge them. The police could clamp down on their crimes overnight, but unaccountably refuse to do so.

These thousands of criminals are tailgaters, operating on every highway in the United States. They are particularly dangerous in these summer months of high-speed freeway driving, of cars loaded with kids and vacation gear, of long traveling days, fatigue and accompanying loss of alertness. But the tailgater is always there, at every season.

MORE OFTEN than not, he drives a big car. There must be a statistical correlation between length of car and aggressiveness of driving. For each surplus foot of automobile, you can assume approximately 5 per cent of added arrogance behind the wheel. For each extra symbol of power, such as jacked-up rear end, gutted muffler and oversized tires, add another 5 per cent.

The psychology seems to be that anybody who has spent a foolish amount of money on an automobile has an automatic right to more of the highway than sensible people who prefer to drive normal cars and put their cash balance into things that matter.

Thus, when you are in a 70 m.p.h. zone passing other cars on your right, the tailgater rushes up behind you and starts flashing his lights in your mirrror for you to get out of his way immediately — no matter that you are already driving on the speed limit and there is nowhere for you to go. So there he sits, holding 70 and furious because he can't resume 85, blinking his lights, distracting you in traffic, riding six feet off your rear bumper. A blowout, a dog in the road, any kind of mechanical malfunction and you and he both will be dead, along with your passengers and the unlucky people in the lane alongside.

THE RULE OF THUMB, and the law in most states, is that safe driving means allowing one car length of space between yourself and the car ahead for each 10 miles of speed — under good weather conditions. By this measure, a man wheeling a 20-foot monster at 70 m.p.h. should be 140 feet back. But try to find a trooper enforcing that rule.

If you yourself try to observe it, some lane-jumper will whip around you and into the space ahead so that you have a choice of tailgating him or dropping back to a safe distance, at which point still another congenital tailgater will repeat the process.

Not all of these fools are adolescent hot-rodders, although the operators of souped-up machines are the ones who tailgate most intentionally and make the most noise about it. Overweight cigar-smokers are also common offenders — cigars go with long cars and express best the tailgater's attitude of "Get out of my way, you underprivileged yokel; don't you recognize a big-shot's car when you see one?"

BUT A HIGH proportion of offenders also are just your average oblivious drivers, in a hurry to get home and with no apparent conception of what happens to the occupants of two two-ton cars that smash together.

They operate not only on the interstates, but also on winding mountain roads. Their crime is one of the most visible and dangerous on the books, but police virtually never make arrests for it. Instead they busy themselves ticketing housewives for parking within 40 feet of intersections and other einous offenses — until a smash-up occurs, when they finally charge one driver with "following too closely."

The trouble is that too often the drivers involved are at the morgue — just as dead as if they were shot with a .38 pistol.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By GEORGE NEVIN

There's Already County-Wide Bicycle Registration Program

As any reporter can attest, some stories refuse to die.

Most articles have a beginning, a middle and a definite end. The reporter hears of the story, does one or more interviews, writes it and that's that.

There are exceptions, though. Sometimes a story will stay alive because people call the reporter to make additions to it. Sometimes it turns out there are a lot of things to add.

This was the case with a piece I did recently on the alarming rate of bicycle thefts in Marin. I made the point—already suspected by many—that bike thefts were getting to be big business.

The story appeared, and my telephone hasn't stopped ringing since.

THE FIRST CALL I got was from John W. Jaeger, chief of the Belvedere Police Department. When he began the conversation with, "I've got a bone to pick with you," I got the feeling—don't ask me how—that I'd done something wrong.

I had. I said in the story that Belvedere has no bicycle registration system. That's wrong. It does.

Jaeger, whom I quoted liberally in the story, said many Belvedere residents read the article and called him to demand why he, such a strong advocate of bike theft prevention, doesn't insist on a registration program in Belvedere.

We, Belvedere already has one, and I hope all its citizens take their bicycles down to city hall and register them. This makes stolen or lost bikes much easier to return to their owners.

I ALSO GOT a call from the Peter Pan Chapter of the Children's Home Society, which has been registering bicycles countywide since 1967.

The chapter maintains a 24-hour switchboard for owners to report thefts and finders to call when they discover an abandoned bike. Avrill Pierce of Greenbrae, last year's licensing chairman, said 50 bicycles were returned to their owners last year.

For a $1 fee, the owner gets a decal to be placed on the bike which gives an identification number and a telephone number to call if the bike is found.

Mrs. Pierce said her group works with Parent-Teacher Associations at almost every school in Marin and has registered in excess of 3,000 bicycles—surely only a fraction of Marin's total—since 1967. The license is good for two years.

Schemes for the future uniform registration of bikes in Marin—including a countywide system and inclusion of bicycles in the computerized stolen car registry run by police—exist in the minds of many, but until one of these materializes the Children's Home Society system is the closest thing to a licensing program for all of Marin.

Union Shop For Teachers, Do They Really Want It?

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

"Any teacher who is not a member of the association in good standing . . . shall as a condition of employment pay as a fee to the association an equal amount to the membership dues payable to the association, the NEA and the CTA . . . In the event that a teacher shall not pay such a fee directly to the association or authorize payment through payroll deductions, the board shall immediately cause the termination of such teacher."

The language is from a collective bargaining contract for Los Angeles city schools proposed by Roger Kuhn, California Teachers Association regional director in Los Angeles. The "association" to which it refers is United Teachers of Los Angeles, which was created by merger of the locals of the CTA and the AFL-CIO California Federation of Teachers. Kuhn had been an American Federation of Teachers organizer before he was hired late in 1969 by CTA, which announced with pride that he was a "veteran of 20 strikes and strike buildups."

REQUIREMENT THAT teachers pay dues whether or not they choose to join an organization was given further backing last month by CTA's State Council of Education, the organization's policy-making body.

The council approved a requirement that all CTA members also must pay dues to their local CTA chapter and to the National Education Assoication, CTA's parent body. This was coupled with a hike in CTA dues from $38 to $77 per year.

AGENCY SHOP contracts have been declared a major negotiating goal by NEA. Its strategy is to get state laws calling for them. It has been successful in several states, and some teachers as a consequence have found themselves out of jobs because they refused to pay union dues.

Although NEA describes itself as a "voluntary, independent" organization, union shop or "agency shop" philosophy is not new to it. A platform adopted at its 1966 national convention called in one article for "recognition of the right of all educators to join organizations of their own choosing," but in another urged: "Unified professional dues in each state — a single fee to be collected by the local education association to cover local, state and national dues." It is a short step from that to the checkoff, the agency shop, and loss of employment for refusal to pay union dues.

IN URGING legislation to require "agency shop" conditions in the public schools, NEA and its state affiliates — including CTA — claim to represent the great majority of teachers. Their claim is given substance by figures showing that the great majority belong to their organizations.

This majority membership, however, may not be entirely voluntary.

A California State Senate fact-finding committee in 1965 reported that the right of California public school teachers to join or refuse to join employee organizations of their own choosing was "being interfered with, abridged, and violated on a widespread basis throughout the state." It pointed to CTA as the culprit, citing instances where membership in CTA and its local chapters were made conditions of employment.

IN 1969, Instructor magazine, which circulates primarily to elementary school teachers, took a poll to try to find out what teachers themselves think about compulsory membership (the "agency shop"). It reported the results as follows:

Of the teachers polled, 57.5 per cent were opposed to being required to join a local teacher organization; 52.5 per cent rejected compulsory membership in a state organization, and 67.5 per cent were against being forced to join a national organization.

The mammoth teacher organizations — both "voluntary" NEA and admittedly labor union AFT — push for the union shop "on behalf of the teachers." But if the Instructor's poll is to be credited, they do not speak for a majority.

Innocent Plea Entered On Several Counts

Robert Malcolm Potter, 28, of San Rafael, has pleaded innocent in Marin Superior Court to three felony charges and two misdemeanors.

Jury trial was set for the week of Sept. 20.

Potter is accused of felony counts of possessing marijuana for sale, possessing tear gas and battery on a police officer, and misdemeanor counts of reckless driving and carrying a loaded firearm in public.

He was arrested Feb. 25 when Sausalito police allegedly saw him speeding on Bridgeway. Police said Potter kicked and punched three officers when they tried to arrest him.

A loaded pistol and 15 pounds of suspected hashish were found in the car, police said.

A law making patents liable for fines and even jail sentences for failing to keep a tight reign on children has been passed by the city of Baton Rouge, La.

Rules Committee Approves Study Of San Quentin

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly Rules Committee yesterday approved a resolution ordering a study to determine whether San Quentin Prison should be renovated or closed down because of old age.

The measure by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, was unanimously sent to the Ways and Means Committee.

Bagley told the panel that the famous prison perhaps no longer meets modern correction demands for the incarceration of inmates.

He said a new prison may have to be built. He said the $5,000 initial study should decide also whether a new prison should be constructed at the present site off San Francisco Bay or in a rural area.

Crackdown On Sicilian Mafia

PALERMO, Sicily (UPI)— Authorities announced a nationwide crackdown today on the Sicilian Mafia and said police raids in several cities had netted dozens of suspects.

Several dozen Mafia suspects were rounded up, police said, and were charged with criminal conspiracy. All suspects were being transferred to Palermo, they said.

The operation came one day after a government anti-Mafia commission released a long awaited report on the Sicilian underworld which named 10 reputed Mafia chiefs and suggested Sicilian authorities were lax in dealing with organized crime.

Agnew, Animals Meet In Jungle

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI)— Vice President Spiro T. Agnew fulfilled a boyhood dream today, watching elephant, buffalo and other wild animals in their natural habitat. He then returned to Nairobi after his night in the jungle.

The vice president, on a 10-nation tour, had no official functions scheduled until his departure Thursday for the Congo, Kinshasa, where his African tour ends.

Agnew spent the night at the Treetops hotel, 130 miles away from Nairobi in the Aberdare Mountains. The unique hotel is built in trees overlooking a waterhole where wild animals flock to drink and lick the salt cakes put there for them.

The vice president told a reception in Nairobi Monday the journey fulfilled a boyhood dream of his generation —a safari in Africa.

His jaunt to the jungle came shortly after he was made an authentic African elder. President Jomo Kenyatta ceremoniously installed him Tuesday by draping a black-and-white striped monkey-skin robe over his shoulders.

Agnew's visit to Kenya has been relaxed, with no problems between the two nations to be discussed. Kenyatta met privately with Agnew for only 15 minutes —the brevity of their encounter underlining the lack of problems. Kenya is the second stop on the African leg of his tour, with Ethiopia behind him and the Congo on the agenda for Thursday.

When Agnew arrived at "Treetops" Tuesday night, his first encounter was with a lone bull elephant which sauntered by about 70 yards from his landrover. A baboon sat on a fire hose on the roof of the hotel, eyeing the vica president as Agnew used vinoculars for a sweep of the jungle in the fading light.

Two professional hunters with rifles stood guard over the Agnew party. They are allowed to fire only if necessary since "Treetops" is in a game preserve.

The vice president dined overlooking the waterhole as floodlights picked up the animals below: buffalo, elephants, antelope rhinos, hippos and many other animals.

Agnew already has visited Asia and the Middle East and after the Congo plans to go to Portugal, Morocco and Spain before returning to the United States July 26.

Space Shuttle Pact Is Hailed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke has hailed the awarding of a $500 million contract to the Rocketdyne Division of North American Rockwell Corp. of Canoga Park to build engines for the space shuttle program.

"This will help California in its efforts to recover from a depressed economy," Reinecke said in a statement Tuesday.

Rockwell said that when production of the engines reaches its peak about 2,000 workers will be added to its Rocketdyne payroll.

Extra Pay For Coleman Voted, 3-2

The Cotati School District board last night granted a month's vacation pay to former schools Supt. Duncan A. Coleman.

The board balked at the pay request two weeks ago, but approved it on a 3-2 vote last night. Bart C. Mitchell and Maurice Fredericks dissented.

Former board member Lucian Libarle told the board that Coleman had taken over the position on short notice three years ago and did not have a chance to take his normal vacation. Libarle said the former board made an informal agreement with him to take the vacation time later.

Although the Sonoma County Counsel's Office said the verbal agreement could be binding, Mitchell and Fredericks said they could not agree to the extra pay. Coleman left the superintendents job on June 30.

The board also elected Bart C. Mitchell as board president and Andrew Camozzi as clerk; approved the request of the citizens advisory committee to increase its membership from nine to 12 members, and granted a one-year study leave to Marianne Burbank, a kindergarten teacher at Cotati School.

For the first time in more than a decade, brown pelicans have been born in Louisiana, reviving hopes the bird will not become extinct.

Study Asked On Waterfront Policy

The Corte Madera Planning Commission last night directed its staff to begin review of town ordinances and draft recommendations for controlling waterfront development.

Of concern to the commission, according to Arthur N. Morrison, town engineer, is developers' practice of including underwater-property footage figures in development requests.

The practice allows developers to build larger developments on dry land portions of their property since development size is based on a ratio of total land size.

The matter will come before the commission again at its next regular meeting, Aug. 9.

On other matters, the commission was told no reply had been received to its letter to Bianco Cadillac ordering the auto agency's illegal parking lot be reviewed by the town's board of design.

The commission also set Aug. 9 for a public hearing on its proposed ordinance governing appointments to boards and commissions.

The commission, Morrison said, would like to reduce the number of planning commissioners now servicing on the board of design and the board of adjustments. The ordinance proposes only one serve on each board. Two currently serve on each board.

Man Sentenced In Flag Incident

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Soni Louis Ali, 28, of La Puente, who disrupted a William F. Buckley symposium by ripping up a small American flag, pleaded guilty to a charge of disturbing the peace Tuesday.

Municipal Court Judge Robert J. Cooney accepted the plea and dismissed a charge of desecrating the flag on a motion by the city attorney's office.

The judge sentenced Ali to 10 days in the county jail with a stay of sentence until Sept. 19 and placed him on three years' probation.

Bus Route To Stinson Is Granted

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Temporary permission to extend its routes to Stinson Beach this year was granted to a subsidiary of Marin Transit Systems yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission.

In an interim opinion, however, the commission also decided a public hearing would be needed if the company wants the temporary authority extended beyond this year. Both the Golden Gate Bridge District and Marin County Transit District have objected to extending the service beyond this year because the bridge district's fleet of 152 buses will start operating by December.

Officials of both districts have objected that the Marin City-based company could acquire competitive vested rights to the route if granted a permanent permit by the commission.

One of the two new midday seasonal routes will provide a shuttle service between Tiburon, Muir Beach and Stinson Beach via Shoreline Highway. The other would serve the route from Sausalito.

Service, which must be started within 30 days under the temporary PUC permit, will be provided daily to Oct. 1, with weekend service to Nov. 1 Fares will be $1.25 one way and $2.50 round trip for adults and $1 one way and $2 round trip for children under 12.

Sewer Tax Rate Cut Seen

The Novato Sanitary District board has received a preliminary operating budget of $318,530 1971-72, up $30,112 from last year.

The proposed budget is expected to boost the operating tax rate one cent, but the overall tax rate including bond redemption is slated to drop, according to Dist. Mgr. Charles A. Joseph.

In the Novato plant zone, which includes most of the district, the overall rate is expected to drop from 71.5 to 40 cents per $100 assessed valuation, Joseph reported.

The estimate of the breakdown is 32.5 cents for operating, 3.5 cents toward repayment of the 1970 bonds and 4 cents toward retirement of 1955 bonds.

Joseph said the overall rate will drop because the district will have eliminated the 35 cent rate levied this year for capital improvements.

The board, which received the budget Monday night, will consider adopting it at 6 p.m. July 22 at the North Marin County Water District office, Joseph said.

In the area outside the Novato plant zone where residents aren't paying for the 1955 bonds, the overall rate is expected to drop from 66.5 to 36 cents.

Directors haven't taken any action on salary increases, but Joseph said the budget could accommodate up to a 5 per cent raise without changing the expected tax rate.

He estimated that the district's assessed valuation has increased 16.7 per cent, including the boost in the assessment ratio from 23 to 25 per cent of market value.

The capital improvement fund, financed through connection charges, totals $142,400 with the major project to be improvement to the Marin Village pump station, Joseph said.

The Novato Sanitary District board also:

REGIONAL AGENCY — Supported passage of AB2687 which would create a Bay Area sewage services agency, whose main funtion would be planning for major collection and disposal of sewage. Joseph described the bill as the "most acceptable" of several that have been proposed for regional planning.

MARIN VILLAGE — Agreed to seek bids on major improvements and expansion of the Marin Village pump station, off South Novato Boulevard, north of Rowland Boulevard, estimated to cost $80,000, at the same time bids are received on the Olive Street pump station, next January.

Angel Park Study Bill Advanced

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to subject plans for Angel Island State Park to review by a new 19-member council has cleared its first legislative hurdle.

The Senate Natural Resources and Wildlife Committee, after weakening the council by deleting its veto power and making it merely advisory, endorsed the bill Monday and sent it to the finance committee.

The author, Sen. Milton Marks, R-San Francisco, also amended his bill (SB 1587) to cut the council's appropriation from $250,000 to $30,000, and to make citizens from all nine Bay Area counties eligible for appointment to the council. His measure previously limited eligibility to residents of Marin and San Francisco.

Marks argued that the council would give citizens "a greater opportunity to be heard" on plans to develop and improve the park.

Teens Favor Pot

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI)— Support for legalization of marijuana has doubled among America's teen-agers in the last two years, according to a nationwide poll of high school pupils by Purdue University Opinion Panel.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Longer Life Means More Illness, But Aging, Disease Not The Same

By definition, anyone 10 years older than you are is old. This applies to the 15-year-old as well as to those who are 55. I do not subscribe to the idea that after 65, age does not matter and beyond this everyone is ancient.

It was Bismarck who set the retirement age at 65. Nowadays more workers reach this milestone than ever before. It will be interesting to follow future rules or customs relative to retirement age. Some authorities believe that our labor force is too large now and the 65-year-olds are a drag on the economy.

CERTAIN unions urge their members to retire at 55 and some organizations are talking about retirement at 45. This may be one way to get a pension and another job, too.

From a medical point of view, we are interested in keeping older people healthy so they can enjoy a richer and more meaningful life. Our educational system is aimed at youth but with the passing years, what many of us learned in school is outdated. Perhaps more adult education is needed to enrich the golden years.

THE IDEA that age does not matter after 65 is meaningful if we separate the process of aging from the diseases and disabilities of the aged. For example, two men of 65 retire from the same company after working 40 years. Both look hale and hearty but a month later one of them dies suddenly from a heart attack. The other enjoys a long, healthy life. Was the man who died at 65 years of age 100 per cent old or was he just unfortunate to have coronary heart arteries that became obstructed at that particular time?

The longer a person lives the more medical ailments he is subjected to. Aging and disease are not synonymous.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

MONOTONOUS EGG DIET

C. W. writes: I have a friend who goes on an egg diet periodically. She eats 40 eggs in 10 days. What do you think of this slimming plan?

REPLY

I'm "agin" it even tho it works for some people and they all seem to survive the monotonous ordeal. There is no harm in a crash diet lasting half this time but 10 days is a bit too long. Many persons become so hungry after starving for 10 days that within 48 hours they regain much of the lost weight.

PENICILLIN IN MILK

A. B. L. wirtes: Does a person get any penicillin in milk?

REPLY

Milk should not contain penicillin unless it came from a cow that was being treated for a diseased udder. Some states have laws making it illegal to sell milk from a cow that received penicillin within 48 hours. This is done to protect individuals who are extremely sensitive to penicillin. These persons might develop a severe reaction even tho the milk contains only an infinitesimal amount of the antibiotic.

MINOR COMPLICATIONS

A reader writes: Can circumcision be done in a surgeon's office or must the man be hospitalized?

REPLY

In the office, if the surgeon has the equipment. The hospital is more expensive but safer, considering the remote possibility of complications.

THE PREGNANT BOWLER

M. L. writes: I am four months pregnant. Since I belong to a ladies' league I'd like to know if it is OK for me to bowl for 6 more weeks.

REPLY

Yes.

Today's Health Hint — Mastication discourages indigestion.

Annexation On 'Sounding Board'

The proposed annexation of Strawberry, Bel Air and Eagle Rock areas to Tiburon will be discussed at 9 a.m. tomorrow on KTIM's "Marin Sounding Board."

Speaking in favor of the annexation will be Dorothy Gorman, longtime resident of Strawberry and Tiburon Councilman Anne L. Ellinwood. Speaking against the annexation will be Patricia Jeremiah, chairman of the anti-annexation committee and Stephen H. Kaufmann, an attorney and longtime resident of Strawberry.

Questions telephoned to the station will be answered on the live broadcast tomorrow. It will be rebroadcast by tape-recording at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

Actor Sues CBS For $25 Million

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Robert Stack named CBS system in a $25 million damage suit Tuesday, contending the network's documentary, "The Selling of the Pentagon" depicted him as a hawk on the Vietnam WAR.

Stack said the documentary put him in the position of backing the war when in fact he always has opposed the involvement of the United States in Vietnam.

The suit said CBS lifted a segment of a 1968 Air Force training film in which Stack appeared and used it without his permission in the documentary on the public relations activities of the military.

WORRIED BUT UNRESISTING

Ruhig, a 3-year-old German shepherd dog owned by Karen Windell of San Rafael, has a worried look, but passively submits to a vaccination against rabies. His rendezvous with the needle took place last night at the Corte Madera Fire House. It was the first in a series of 12 clinics to be held in Marin County during the next six weeks by the Marin County Department of Public Health and Marin County Veterinary Medical Association, which seek to vaccinate all dogs more than 4 months old.

Turkish Army Gives System A Shaking

By FERDINAND HURNI
Special From Toronto Telegram

The Turkish Army recently gave a much needed shaking to a stagnated parliamentary system to get it moving once again.

Following an intervention by the military, a civilian politician (Nihat Erim, a middle-of-the-road moderate of the Republican People's Party) was assigned to form a civilian cabinet which would enjoy, at least outwardly, the support of the largest parliamentary factions.

Modern Turkey is, or at least originally was, largely the product of military men. The founder of the state, Kemal Ataturk, who led — or forced — his people on the path toward progress and a linkup with Europe following the collapse of the Ottoman Empire, was an officer, as was his comrade and successor Ismet Inonu, the "grand old man" of Turkish politics who obviously had much to do with the fact that the most recent crisis ended harmlessly.

The Turkish officers' corps, even before World War I, was more advanced than the country's other professional groups in education and technical from there that the impulses came for a development which finally made it seem feasible to permit the originally-authoritarian government of modern Turkey to institute democratic freedoms.

Accordingly, however, the Turkish army has also taken on itself the role of "guardian of democracy," in the double sense of preventing regressions into conservative traditions or the abuse of free rights as well as a protection of these rights. Both motives were at work when the military took power in May, 1960.

The government of chief-of-state Bayar and Premier Menderes had come to power 10 years earlier, tanks to a victory by the Democratic Party over the political machinery of Ataturk and Inonu, the Republican People's Party, in the country's first completely free elections. When it was toppled by the military in 1960, it was accused by the army not only of corruption and of permitting a revival of reactionary Islamic tendencies, but even more it was said to have used undemocratic methods, drastically limiting the rights of the opposition and freedom of the press.

The first proclamation issued by the Supreme Commander of the Turkish military after the revolt stated that the armed forces had assumed administration of the country in order to carry out free elections as soon as possible.

The military remained in power for nearly one-and-a-half years. In a monster trial, in which more than 500 persons stood accused, Bayar, Menderes, Foreign Minister Zorlu, and Finance Minister Poltakan were condemned to death and the latter three were executed by hanging.

After the establishment of a new constitution, elections were held in the autumn of 1961. And they were free elections. Admittedly, the Democratic Party had been banned, but the Justice Party, which based its strength on the votes of former supporters of Menderes, won substantial numbers of seats in both houses of the legislature, while the Republicans failed to achieve the absolute majority for which the military junta had been hoping.

The military leaders helped to form a coalition government under Inonu, but then they permitted the country's political life to develop freely, raising no opposition in 1965 when the Justice Party, having gained an absolute majority in new elections under the leadership of Suleyman Demirel, took over the reins of government alone.

The military leaders confined themselves to issuing occasional warnings from the background until, in mid-March of this year, they finally issued the ultimatum which forced Demirel and his cabinet to resign, thus demonstrating that, when the chips are down, they are still the decisive power in the country.

Eleven years ago, the Turkish generals actually assumed power; last March they only threatened a coup. But that is not the only difference between the two events. On both occasions the intervention of the military was preceded by "unrest"; but the nature of that unrest, as well as the attitude of leading military figures toward it, varied considerably.

In the spring of 1960, Turkish students demonstrated against actual violations of constitutional rights by the government. Menderes reacted with disproportionately harsh measures, proclaiming a state of siege and calling in the army. The latter, however, felt it had been misued, since the chief of the military junta, the later president Gursel, had been forced to resign as commandant of the land forces just a few weeks before the coup as a result of differences with the authoritarian government.

On March 12, 1971, on the other hand, the military demanded the establishment of a strong cabinet, turning against a government which, partly as a result of a split in the Justice Party, had become virtually incapable of action; its authority had been undermined by a corruption affair involving Demirel's brothers and it had loosened its grip on the reins of government despite the fact that the activities of extremist and anarchist groups had attained dangerous proportions, including bank robberies, abductions and bloody clashes between left-wing and right-wing organizations.

There is another difference even more important. In 1960 there was, at least at the outset, obvious unanimity among the military concerning the coup, while this March such unanimity did not exist.

No details are known about what happened in the army before and immediately following March 12, but the fact that, a few days after publication of the military ultimatum, five generals and 10 colonels were forcibly pensioned and lesser punishments were imposed on some 50 additional officers (presumably majors and captains), indicated that a group of officers was pursuing goals which did not fit in with the intentions of the highest-ranking military leaders.

For the time being, the more moderate military have maintained the upper hand. The new government will enjoy their protection and their support in its steps against troublemakers. It remains to be seen, however, whether the cabinet will be able to manage without abridging civil rights.

It is also uncertain whether the program of reforms with regard to land, minimum wages, social security, welfare and education, which is to be undertaken at the behest of the military leaders, goes far enough to staisfy even the socialist circles in the armed forces, not to speak of the extremists.

Nixon Names Five To Ecology Panel

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon Tuesday appointed five persons, including former astronaut Frank Borman, to the Citizens Advisory Committee on Environmental Quality.

Also named to the committee formed two years ago to develop environmental protecton guidelines were Rene Dubox, lecturer at Rockefeller University in New York; E. Corinne Galvin, environmental expert from Ithaca, N.Y.; Jack B. Olson, former Wisconsin lieutenant governor, and Laurance S. Rockefeller, director of Rockefeller Center.

Contractors, Union Trio Reach Pacts

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Contractors' associations have reached labor contract agreements with three of the seven unions striking in Northern California.

Subject to approval by a wage stabilization committee, the Laborers Union and Operating Engineers Union decided to accept 29.6 per cent increases covering wages and fringe benefits over a period of three years. Laborers had been getting $6.80 an hour.

Previously the Association of General Contractors and the Engineering and Grading Contractors Association had reached terms with the Painters Union.

Of those unions still negotiating, the "carpenters are the mainstumbling block," said John Otto, speaking for the AGC.

Heavy construction carpenters remain off the job throughout Northern California in a shutdown that has idled major projects including Corte Madera Creek flood control and a sewage pumping station in San Rafael.

Meanwhile, a strike by the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union enters its 14th day today with no negotiations since it tied up West Coast ports. A rumor that it had been settled spread through San Francisco on Tuesday but was denied by both labor and management.

Terms were also reached in two smaller strikes.

Subject to member ratification, the Morticians' Union reached an agreement to end an 85-day walkout at 22 San Francisco mortuaries.

Port of Oakland and Oakland International Airport reached agreement that ended a 12-day strike by 225 city workers.

Tahoe Planners Under Criticism

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Officials of the League to Save Lake Tahoe have accused the Tahoe Regional Planning Agency's governing board of being "flagrantly partial" to land developers.

"Over 94 per cent of the projects submitted were approved," Steve C. Brandt, the league's executive director, told a news conference Tuesday.

Brandt and league president Donald G. Ellis said the governing body had approved one big subdivision after another at Tahoe and was violating the spirit of the California-Nevada compact that established the planning agency.

Brothers Get 10 To Life In Officer's Death

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Two teen-aged brothers have been sentenced to state prison for 10-years to life on charges resulting from a March 19 shooting of a special policeman in a tavern.

Superior Court Judge Joseph Karesh imposed sentences Tuesday on Donald Banks, 19, and his brother, Vincent, 18, after they pleaded guilty to four counts of robbery and assaulting a police officer.

Special officer Donald Fatooh, 26, was shot during a holdup in a neighborhood bar. He was paralyzed from the waist down as a result of his wounds.

A third defendant, Zuretti Garvin, 23, will be sentenced Friday. Police said he was the actual gunman.

Senator Wants Recycled Paper

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, introduced a bill today to require that the Congressional Record be printed on recycled paper.

The Senator also introduced a bill making recycled paper available for use in congressional offices.

Moss contended the United States could reclaim 200 million tons of waste paper a year. He said this amount of paper represented about 3 billion trees.

Fairfax Man To Plead In Pot Case

Allan Harvey Tucknott, 29, of Fairfax, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a felony charge of cultivating marijuana.

Preliminary hearing was set for next Tuesday. Tucknott was arrested Sunday when Fairfax police saw suspected marijuana plants growing beside his driveway.

Be our guest in the White House

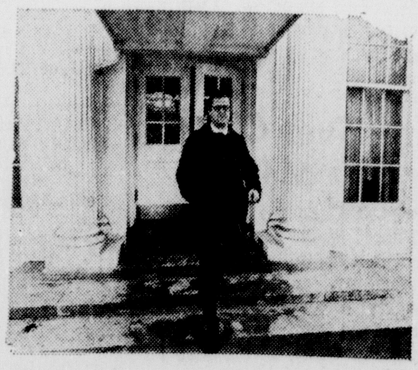
You will know as much as anyone about what goes on in the White House and in the Presidency by the simple act of reading the I-J. (Only the President and intimates will know more).

For the I-J, through its United Press International reporters, is virtually "in residence" as much as the President. Which makes you our welcome guest to the White House.

Our reporters are constantly alert to staff and cabinet meetings, to affairs of international import, to the diplomatic front, to the comings and goings which make the White House a world center of significant news. The job is sensitive. It requires a sixth sense to know when news of major concern is about to break. And concern in how to "break" it accurately and without bias.

Be our guest and stay as long as you like. Our columns lead right to the White House.

UPI A TEAM REPORT



This is Eugene V. Risher, another member of the UPI team assigned to cover President Nixon. You'll be hearing from him.

Spanish Fiesta Ends; 112 Injured

PAMPLONA, Spain (UPI)—The annual fiesta of San Fermin wound up today, leaving at least 112 people injured and thousands with jumbo hangovers after a week of bullfights, drinking and dancing in the streets.

The last of the daily "encierros"—where young men race the bulls through barricaded streets—took a tol of another eight injured this morning. This brought the total of casualties in the eight encierros to 112, including six people who were seriously gored. Two Americans were among the injured.

G.M. Recalling 6,331 Vehicles

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. is recalling 6,331 vehicles—all of them 1971 models—for inspection and correction, if necessary, of possible safety defects.

The company, in announcing the recall Monday, said no accidents or injuries had been reported as a result of the possible defects.

Involved were 6,000 Chevrolet station wagons, 171 Chevrolet and GMC heavy duty tractors and 160 Chevrolet light trucks.

Behr Drops Bid To Kill Oil Law

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to abolish the state oil and gas depletion allowance to finance purchase of coastal beaches and parks has been dropped by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

"The oil boys are too strong" to overcome their opposition to his bill, the assemblyman conceded.

He stressed, however, that he had been the "mainspring" in providing that pending legislation to impose mandatory withholding of payroll taxes earmark $50 million to purchase beaches. Reform of the oil depletion allowance will have to be made through the Democats' pending tax revision package, he said, because the Democratic controlled Legislature will not allow a Repulican package to pass.

Bagley, when he introduced the bill (AB 473) in February, had predicted it could pass because of the new emphasis on the environment, because of the January oil spill in San Francisco Bay and because Democrats, now in control of the Legislature, generally look with less favor on the allowance than Republicans.

New Hampshire Primary Set 1st

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI)—Gov. Walter Peterson Monday signed the bill giving New Hampshire the nation's first presidential primary next year, one week ahead of Florida.

Florida Gov. Reuben Askew last month signed a bill setting up a March 14 primary date in his state, prompting New Hampshire legislative leaders to advance the primary here to March 7.

Alaska also had challenged New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation status, but the bill was vetoed.

A.L. Turns Back Hands Of Clock In Home Run Derby

THAT'S SHOWING THEM — Frank Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles (left) and Reggie Jackson of the Oakland A's congratulated each other in the clubhouse last night after they each hit a two-run homer to help the American League beat the National League, 6-4 in Detroit. Robinson was named the All-Star game's most valuable player. (UPI Telephoto)

National All-Stars Outmuscled

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Sports Editor

DETROIT (UPI)—Home run muscle turned back the hands of the clock today and put the long-suffering American League on top of the baseball world.

With a 6-4 triumph over the National Leaue Tuesday night added to the Baltimore Orioles' world championship last Fall, the A. L. has ended the National League's eight-year rule in the diamond's "glamor game" —and, just as in the "good old days," home run power did it.

National League Tuesday night added to the Baltimore Orioles' world championship last Fall, the A. L. has ended the National League's eight-year rule in the diamond's "glamor game" — and, just as in the "good old days," home run power did it.

"As far as I'm concerned, I've got 28 Most Valuable Players on this squad," declared delighted winning manager Earl Weaver after Tuesday's triumph.

Frank Robinson of Weaver's Orioles, whose two-run homer put the A. L. ahead to stay, was officially voted the "MVP" of the game. But there was little to choose between him and the other two men who hit two-run homers for the A. L. — Reggie Jackson and Harmon Killebrew.

As a matter of fact, the American Leaguers themselves did most of their post-game cheering about Jackson's homer — a tremendous blast that nearly went out of the ball park.

"You can go your whole life and never see five blls hit that hard," declared slugger Frank Howard.

"He really crushed it," added 6-foot-7 Howard, who has crushed a few himself and did indeed hit one out of Tiger Stadium once upon a time.

Despite the MVP award to Robinson, it was Jackson's blast that turned the game around.

Until then it was all N. L., just as it had been since 1962. The "senior circuit" team had teed off on the fastballs of young Vida Blue for two homrs, a two-run blast by Johnny Bech in the second inning and a bases-empty homer by Hank Aaron in the third, and N. L. starter Dock Ellis was protecting a 3-0 lead going into the last of the third.

Luis Aparicio started the A. L. comeback with a single and then Weaver sent Jackson — ironically on the squad only as a substitute for injured Tony Oliva —up to pinch-hit for Blue.

Jackson slammed a high sli-

Wedding Bells Ring For Honor Jackson

Catching up on things after last week's all-too-brief holiday . . .

Honor Jackson, the former Tam High School, College of Marin and University of Pacific football flash, was married recently to UOP sweetheart Jacquelin Stanton.

Jackson, a wide receiver with great hands and speed, has signed a contract with the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League and will be in training camp soon.

GORDON PARR checks in to remind us that the Marin Cyclists are in the midst of their annual Time Trial Series every Wednesday evenings through Aug. 4 on the 10-mile Tiburon Peninsula course for riders of all ages. The program will be capped next month with kids' bike races at Corte Madera Center.

BOB PORTER, professional at the Rohnert Park Golf Course, says junior golf is going great guns at the Southern Sonoma County links. Currently there are 156 kids taking lessons every Monday.

And speaking of such, 12-year-old Scott Myers of Shelton, Wash., scored a hole-in-one on Rohnert Park's 165-yard 17th hole last week. Myers was vacationing at the Jack Malley home in Petaluma. Any younger ace shooters around?

F. A. SOUSA of the San Anselmo Fire Department says the Marin Figure Skating Club deserves cheers for its fine showing in the recent Central California Interclub Competition at Belmont, particularly Kym Likerman of Greenbrae, Peggy Sousa of San Anselmo, Patti Maley of Terra Linda and Allen Schramm of Greenbrae.

"I was most impressed by the dedication of all the youngsters," said Sousa, whose daughter Peggy recently received a trophy as the Marin club's most improved skater of the year.

KSFO RADIO MEN Jim Lange and Jeff Skov, both of Marin County, had a punderful time one recent morning with a sports quiz. Skov: "Do you know what they call Ron Santo's hands? They call them Santo Claws." Ooof!

Lange: "By the way, Jeff, do you know why radio announcers have small hands. Because, wee paws for station identification." Double oof.

Those are almost as bad as some of mine.

A READER suggests a plaudit for two Marin 20-year-olds, Manager Bill Johnson and Coach Don Meyer, for directing the Corte Madera Lions to their second straight championship in the very competitive Twin Cities Little League, a hotbed of junior baseball. Bill is the brother of Ken Johnson, property of the New York Yankees, and Don has been active in Marin sports for several years, currently working for the local recreation department.

Congrats, men, for a job well done.

Windward Passage's Record

HONOLULU (UPI) —Robert Johnson, whose sleek ketch Windward Passage set a new record in the transpacific yacht race, doesn't take his victory for granted.

"I never think you've got anybody in the bag until you get across the finsh line," Johnson said after his 73-foot ketch set a new elapsed time record in the biennial race.

Windward Passage, flying the colors of Hawaii's Lahana Yacht Club, completed the 2,225-mile race which began July 4 from San Pedro, Calif., in 9 days 9 hours 6 minutes, cutting 1 hour 14 minutes 12 seconds ff the old record of 9 days 10 hours and 21 minutes set by Blackfin in 1969.

Travelling at 15 knots over the finish Tuesday night with her spinnaker billowing in the island tradewinds, Windward Passage also broke her own unofficial record in the 1969 race by 18 minutes 11 seconds.

The record crossing was an espcially meaningful one for skipper Robert Mark Johnson and crew. Johnson's father, the late Robert F. Johnson, sailed Windward Passage to a first-to-finish two years ago but was penalized two hours for a rule infraction at the starting line. The two-hour penalty threw the victory to Blackfin.

Windward Passage, threatened earlier by a possible collision with hurricane Denise, took advantage of the tropical depression, the remains of the storm, at the end. The ketch sailed through the 25 knot gusts in the Hawaiian waters and despite small craft warnings, a spectator fleet of several hundred sail and power boats welcomed her arrival.

Race officials expect Blackfin today, a few minutes after the 73-foot ketch Ondine from the Larchmont Yacht Club. Ondine was expected to finish about 10 minutes ahead of Ken Demeuse's 73-foot ketch out of the St. Francis Yacht Club of San Francisco.

The Canadian ketch Graybeard, which lost her rudder and began taking on water Sunday night, was being towed by a Coast Guard cutter and also expected to arrive today. Graybeard, a 73-foot ketch out of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, once held the lead in the biennial race.

In corrected times, the 40-foot sloop Moon Day, out of the King Harbor Yacht Club, was in first place although she was not expected to cross the finish line until July 16.

The 50-foot cutter Warrior out of the Bahia Corinthian Yacht Club was the first in corrected class A, while Encore, a 43-foot sloop from the Balboa Yacht Club led class B. Moon Day topped class C and L'Allegro, a 36-foot sloop from the Richmond Yacht Club was first in class D.

Orduna Clocks Quickest Time

SANTA BARBARA (UPI)— The San Francisco 49ers opened team drills Tuesday with the gruelling Dick Nolan 1 3-4 mile run. Nolan, 49er head coach, requires his players to run the distance in 12 minutes.

The National Football League team officially opened their 1971 training camp Monday with 36 rookies, four veterans, and four taxi squad members on hand.

The fastest time recorded in Tuesday's run was by running back Joe Orduna, a second round draft choice from Nebraska, who made the dash in 10:07. Orduna was the most valuable player in last month's coaches all-American game in Lubbock, Texas.

The 49ers went through light morning drills following the running, and had a two hour work out during the afternoon. Veteran Jimmy Thomas, who is being converted from running back to wide receiver, was impressive in the afternoon.

Suyderhoud To Ski For U.S.

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (UPI) — Three men and three women were named Tuesday to represent the United States at the 12th biennial World Water Ski Championships Sept. 10-19 at Banolas, Spain.

The men are Mike Suyderhoud, the defending world champ, from San Anselmo, Wayne Grimditch of Hillsboro Beach, Fla., the 16-year-old defending world jumping champion, and Rick McCormick of Independence, Mo., who won the Masters ski championship here this past weekend. All three are veterans of the 1969 team that competed in Copenhagen, Denmark.

Two newcomers are among the three women selected for the team by the American Water Ski Association. Lisa St. John of Fall River Mills, Calif. and Christy Freeman of Thayer, Mo., will join Christy Lynn Weir of McQueeney, Tex., the winner of the women's Masters title.

The selections were made after two days of trials at Callaway Gardens.

All six skiers will be among the competitors at the California World Cup competition at Berkeley's Aquatic Park July 24-25.

DEPRESSED FEELING

Things Aren't Getting Any Better For Sparky

DETROIT (UPI)—Sparky Anderson has been having problems with arms and legs for almost a year.

Not his own, mind you, but those that belong to othr people.

It was a case of too much arms and legs —all of them belonging to the Baltimore Orioles —in last season's World Series.

Then an Achilles tendon — this one belonging to Bobby Tolan, who ruptured his playing basketball in the off-season and then reinjured it trying to come back. That injury has no doubt contributed to the current fifth-place showing of the team Anderson manages, the Cincinnati Reds, along with other miseries like Wayne Simpson's sore shoulder.

Then came Tuesday night's All-Star game in Tiger Stadium, in which Anderson's National League team received a 6-4 clubbing from the American League.

Two of Anderson's starters — Henry Aaron of Atlanta and Willie McCovey of San Francisco —had to come out after three innings because the manager didn't want to take any unnecessary chances with their bad knees and thus hurt their respective team's chances in the pennant race.

"Henry's had a little knee problem recently," Anderson explained his move of removing the man who'd put his squad up 3-0 in he top of the third, a margin which lasted just slightly longer than it took the breeze which gusted up to 31 miles per hour to blow from left to right field.

"It was a tribute to McCovey just coming to play in the game," he said. "And Willie (Mays, the Giants' centerfielder who came out at the same time), let's face it —he's probably the greatest of all time.

"I didn't want to take them out but I didn't want to hurt them, either. Their teams are fighting for a pennant. San Francisco comes in to play us next.

"And you've got to remember," Anderson said, "the fellows I replaced them with are pretty good ball players. Any time you put Willie Davis and Roberto Clemente out there you're not hurting."

Mays grounded out and flied out and Aaron grounded out before showing Detroit fans why even he thinks he's got a shot at Babe Ruth's 714 figure. McCovey grounded to second and struck out before being removed.

"I felt good," Aaron said of his home run, "because I hit it off the best young prospect in the American League (Vida Blue)."

Anderson said he switched his plans to pitch Steve Carlton of the St. Louis Cardinals and instead used Juan Marichai of San Francisco because the Giants' righthander "gets left-handed hitters out the way Cuellar (a left-hander) gets right-handed hitters out."

"I've lost the World Series and now I've lost the All-Star game," Anderson said. "Now I really feel depressed."

Ray Leach Fires 75 At Spyglass

I-J Special Report

PEBBLE BEACH — All-American Ray Leach of Novato improved upon his first round score by a stroke yesterday to finish sixth in the 36-hole qualifying phase of the Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournament.

Leach, who will be a senior at Brigham Young in the fall, carded a 75 over the par-72, 6,795-yard Spyglass Hill course which ranks as the toughest layout in California. Together with the 76 he shot Monday, that gave Leach a qualifying score of 151 going into today's start of match play. He will face Mark Lye, who qualified at 157.

Medalist honors for the qualifying part of the tourney went to Bruce Robertson of San Mateo, who tied the course record yesterday with a 70. Robertson, an 18-year-old freshman enrollee at Stanford, had a two-day total of 147, one stroke ahead of Tom Kite, Jr. of Austin, Tex.

Defending champion Alan Miller of Pensacola, Fla., was exempt from the qualifying, which cut the original field of 170 amateurs to 64.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Costs Come Down On Sport Of Sailing

The two-car family is now commonplace, but how about the two-BOAT family. There'll be a lot more by the end of 1971, and it's almost a certainty the second boat will have sails.

The boom in sailing is the recreational phenomenon of the past five years, and the statistics indicate it's continuing. Undoubtedly it's the result of the discovery that what used to be an expensive sport is now much cheaper — and just as exciting.

ONE REASON for the change in attitude is the change in sailboats themselves. It used to be that owning a sailboat automatically meant joining a yacht club. Nowadays many sailboat enthusiasts have their own yacht club in their backyard and trailer their boats to any water they like.

Also, sailboats are now faster and more exciting to handle. They plane and skim over the water like power boats. They have simplified rigging that doesn't require a large crew to handle, and above all they are now made of sophisticated jet-age materials that make them cheaper and within the economic reach of more people. These materials also make the manufacturing easier and the maintaining effortless.

IF YOU ARE bored with power boats as many people are, the next logical step is to try sailing. You'll discover an exhilaration that power boating can't give and a sense of accomplishment that can be surpassed only by learning to fly.

That sailing is a lively topic is obvious from some of the questions we've been asked:

Q. Are sails made of synthetic materials worth the extra cost over cotton?

A. From a practical standpoint, yes. They can be stored wet and are mildew proof. Cotton or canvas must be dried carefully before being put away.

Q. What are good first texts on sailing?

A. There are thousands, but the three I like are: "Sail in a Day" by George O'Day, Royces Sailing Illustrated; both available at boating bookstores and "A Minimum Sailing Primer" at 50 cents from John C. Jones III, 56 Hawes St., Brookline, Mass, 02146.

Q. Why are sails made of several pieces of material sewn together, instead of being in one piece?

A. Mainly it's a question of shape of the sail. Also seams give strength at points of strain, and anyway, most fabrics aren't made in such widths.

Q. In the shortest terms, tell me, how do you pick up a mooring under sail alone . . .?

A. Approach buoy from downwind on a course that would put mooring about a boat length to windward if you were to sail past it. On the approach, lower and secure jib. When mooring buoy is one boat length to windward, bring boat's head into wind (luff). The craft's momentum allows it to coast up to buoy. Secure mooring line, then lower mainsail. It sounds complicated, but watch an expert do it once, and you're an expert.

Q. Which is better for sails, Terylene or Dacron.

A. It's the same material. Terylene is the British name, fairly common in the U.S., because they have produced it just a little cheaper . . . so it was imported.

Q. What are the fastest sailboats?

A. There are several types of very light catamarans that will beat any other type of sailing craft under "average" conditions. That means fairly light winds and calm water. Most will do 20 to 25 knots (23 - 28 mph) easily. They are great fun but not very practical. C-class catamarans have to be clocked at 35 mph.

Q. What does "close-hauled" mean?

A. This is sailing against the wind, with the wind coming from ahead. A sailboat will not travel directly into the wind, but will make good speed in a direction that is only 45 to 50 degrees off the direction from which the wind is coming.

THIS DAY IN SPORTS

JULY 14, 1953

WARREN SPAHN, WHO PITCHED HIS FIRST BIG LEAGUE VICTORY ON THIS DAY SEVEN YEARS EARLIER, WAS THE WINNING TWIRLER AS THE NATIONALS TOOK THE ALL-STAR GAME 5-1, BEHIND ENOS SLAUGHTER'S BAT AND GLOVE.

Averages Show Dip In Minors

John Dolinsek of Novato saw his batting average drop to .284 with the Oklahoma City Astros of the Class AAA American Association in the latest figures available on Marin Countians playing in the minor leagues.

However, he was the only Marinite to get a hit during the week. Dolinsek had 7 safeties in 29 at-bats, including 2 home runs and 3 runs-batted-in for a .241 week.

Elsewhere, it was a dismal week for the four other local players. Dewey Forry of San Rafael went hitless in nine at-bats with Daytona Beach of the Class A Florida State League and is now batting .216 on the season.

Tom Corder of Novato was hitless in only one at-bat with Bakersfield of the Class A California State League and is now hitting .278 on the season.

Tom Thomas of Novato saw no action with Niagra Falls of the Class A New York-Pennsylvania League. He is hitless in only three at-bats this season.

On the pitching front, Russ Dillon of Novato walked the only batter he faced all week. On the season he has appeared in 18 games, winning 5 and losing 3 with a 2.51 earned run average. In 61 innings of work this year, Dillon has yielded 44 hits while striking out 64 and walking 30.

Amateur Golf Champion Lanny Wadkins Turns Pro

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (UPI) — National amateur champion Lanny Wadkins said today he has turned professional and will go to work next Monday as a teaching pro in his native Virginia.

"I'm married and I need the money," said Wadkins. "Amateur golf is getting pretty expensive. I can't afford it right now."

Wadkins, 21, is giving up a year's eligibility at Wake Forest University, where he has twice been an All-America selection, to enter the pro ranks.

Wadkins said that while he will initially be employed at his home club of Meadowbrok in Richmond, Va., he plans to try out for the pro tour this fall.

"I think I'll be pretty successful," he said. "I've played tournament golf all my life."

He intends to make his tournament debut as a professional two weeks from now in the Virginia State Open.

The timing of his decision, he said, was "mainly so I could play in the Virginia Open as a pro."

After that he will sharpen his game for the first step in becoming a touring pro, a preliminary qualifying round at the Tanglewood Course here.

If successful at Tanglewood, he will go to Palm Beach, Fla., and attend the professional golfers school.

In addition to the U. S. Amateur title, Wadkins has won the Western Amateur, the Southern Amateur, the Palmetto, Dixie Intercollegiate and Red Fox college titles.

Bears' Fullback Calls It Quits

CHICAGO (UPI)—Ralph Kurek, a fullback with the Chicago Bears, Tuesday announced he was quitting professional football because of injuries sustained in a motorcycle accident last summer.

Kurek, 28, joined the Bears in 1965 as their 20th draft choice after playing collegiate ball at Wisconsin.

The demonstration, open to the public and free of charge, will include all phases of girls gymnastics.

The Diablo Gymnastics Club, based in Pleasant Hill, has one of the country's top Amateur Athletic Union girls' team.

Free Tennis Clinic Set In San Anselmo

San Anselmo Tennis Club today announced it will sponsor a free tennis clinic for children 7 to 14 years of age starting next Monday and continuing through July 23 at Sir Francis Drake High School.

Children should register with the San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Department, according to Jan Labberton of the sponsoring club.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Taxes Are Factor In Sale Of Issues

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. In 1954 I bought 100 shares of Gillette. Subsequent stock splits increased my holdings to 600 shares and reduced my cost to $12.50 per share. Should I retain these shares or take profits? — W. T.

A. Since 1967, Gillette has made scant earnings headway, despite impressive strides in sales. A similarly uninspired performance was reported for the March quarter when earnings dropped 10.6 per cent on a 3.4 per cent year-to-year gain in sales. It is doubtful that 1971 earnings will reach to $2.45-$2.50 estimated by some analysts, and in my opionion only a very modest year-to-year gain is in prospect.

Several steps have been taken to correct the profit squeeze, including sale and liquidation of two loss operations last year. Because its consumer products business is highly competitive, promotional costs are a major factor for Gillette.

In 1970, 18 cents out of every sales dollar was spent on advertising and sales promotion; in 1969 the figure was just under 20 cents. A slower economy in Germany plus higher product prices combined to reduce contributions from the Braun division in the first quarter. Offsetting this, however, will be the continued brisk demand in the Toiletries, Safety Razor and PaperMate divisions, spurred by newly-introduced products.

While shares have moderate long range growth potential, dividend return is modest if income is of primary importance to you. In addition, you must consider the tax implications of the large capital gain which would result if shares were sold. Partial sale appears to be your best choice.

Q. I would appreciate your advising me what has happened to Bermec Corp., formerly listed on the NYSE. — B.R.

A. The New York Stock Exchange suspended trading in these shares in Nov. 1970, because the company no longer met the minimum listing requirements. However, the shares, which are listed on the Philadelphia-Baltimore-Washington Exchange, recently changed hands at 50 cents a share. On June 3, 1971, company's amended petition for reorganization under Chapter X of the Bankruptcy Act was approved by the Federal Court.

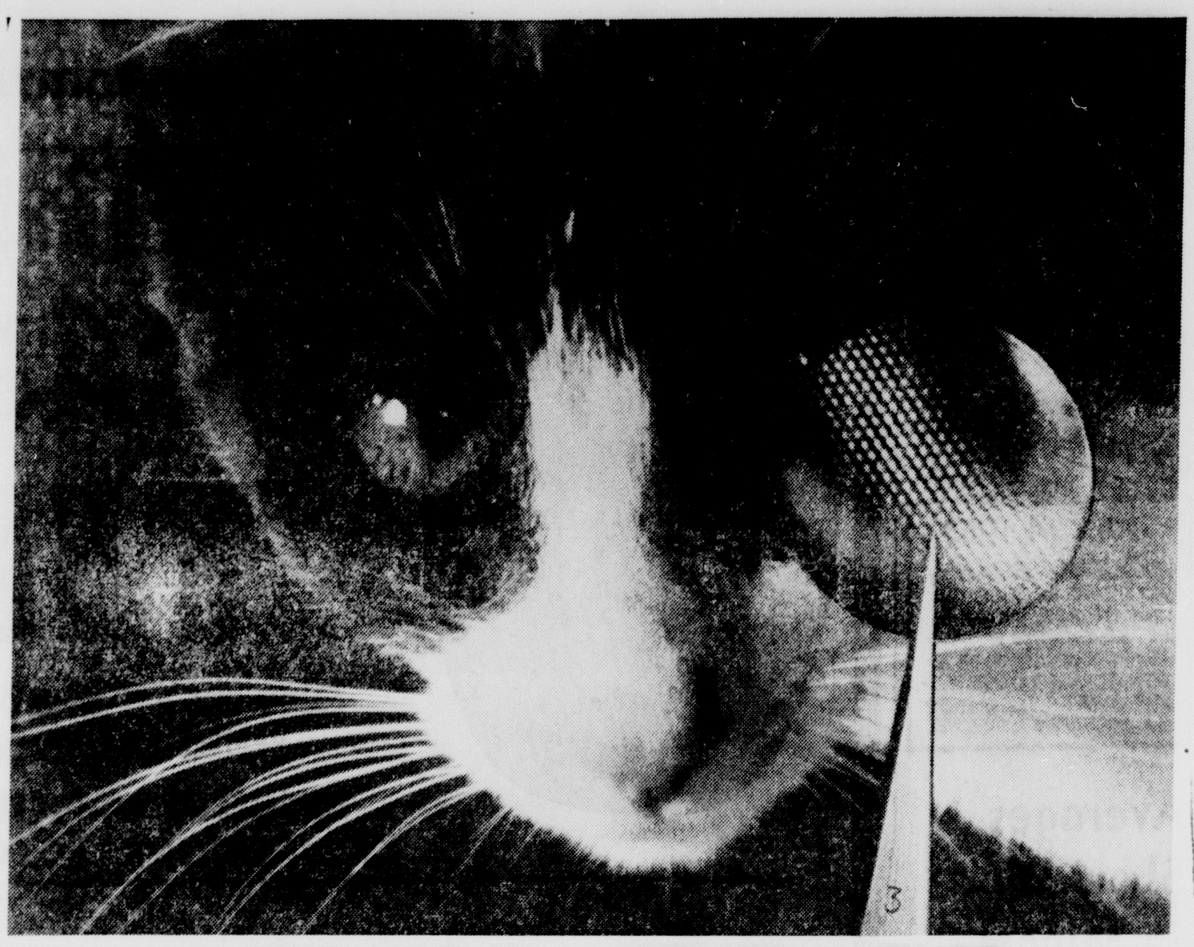
Stocks Drop With IBM Leading Way

NEW YORK (UPI) —IBM again led the way lower on Wall Street today after having tumbled 13 points the previous session. Turnover, however, was relatively light.

After almost two hours of trading, the computer giant's stock was off another 5 3-4. On Tuesday, IBM reported second quarter per share earnings in line with the year ago period. One analyst said investors were disappointed with IBM's quarterly report and added that there now was concern other glamor stocks also may report flat second quarter earnings.

Prices moved lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Declines led advances by more than 300 issues.

Among the most active issues were Asamera Oil fractionally lower on 15,000 shares, T. T. B. Corp. down slightly on 14,000 shares, and Emery Industries also slightly lower on 14,000 shares.



IMPROVING ON MOTHER NATURE

Cats long have been acknowledged champions of night vision, but Tabby now takes a back seat to this two-inch disc containing hundreds of microscopic image intensifiers called multiplier arrays. The tiny array, developed by Varian Associates of Palo Alto, Calif., is so sensitive it can be used in special equipmnet to let an observer "see" a person hundreds of yards away even on the darkest night. It is capable of making an image up to 10,000 times brighter.

Tristar, Rolls Engine Pass Tests

PALMDALE, Calif. (BW) — Rolls-Royce RB .211 fanjet engines for Lockheed's L-1011 Tristar have completed more than 1,000 test flying hours in the new jetliner.

The 1,000 hour milestone was achieved in the 127th test flight last Friday. In eight months of flight testing, the Tristar has successfully met its most critical flight objectives, said Jack Woodman, chief engineering test pilot for Lockheed-California Co.

"Our tests have shown the L-1011 to have stability and handling qualities rarely found in any large aircraft," Woodman said.

L-1011's will enter airline service in April 1972. Rolls-Royce has delivered 20 RB.211 engines to Lockheed and will deliver an additional 18 engines by year end.

Pilots from seven airlines have flown the tristar and have praised the smoothness of the RB.211, its handling characteristics, as well as its low noise and smoke levels. Airline crews have also praised the engine's thrust reversing system, which has been demonstrated down to zero speed, Woodman reported.

"RB.211's have proved very responsive to acceleration and deceleration in flight and their ground handling characteristics have been excellent. We've successfully operated engines in a 45-knot cross-wind and have started engines in a 20-knot tail wind," he said.

L-1011 test flights have reached a peak altitude of 42,000 feet, well above the expected cruising altitude. The L-1011 has flown at a top speed of 660 miles per hour, also well beyond its airline cruising speed.

Other highlights of L-1011 flight 1,000 RB.211 engine hours have included take-offs up to a maximum weight of 404,570 pounds and a maximum flight time of 6 hours, 41 minutes. Test flights have included two North Atlantic crossings, when the third L-1011 flew to Europe in June for the Paris Air Show and visited Rolls-Royce facilities in England.

A "perfect performance" has been turned in by the Tristar's automatic landing system, which will permit landings under poor weather conditions, Woodman said.

The L-1011's "flying tail," used for the first time in any American commercial aircraft, has also drawn compliments from test pilots, Woodman said. The "flying tail" gives a pilot better control of an aircraft, particularly in cases of severe air turbulence.

A third innovation in the L-1011, its direct lift control system, also has been successfully tested, Woodman reported. This system gives the L-1011 superior landing accuracy and improves control response.

End Near For Military Academy

Eighty-year-old San Rafael Military Academy will cease operations in late July, barring an unforeseen financial windfall, school officials said yesterday.

According to headmaster Derrick Whiting, the school "has had it unless a fairy godmother turns up damn quick!"

The school has been in a financial bind for about a year, Whiting said, and fund raising projects have not raised the nearly $1 n illion needed to reopen next fall.

Colonel Whiting said that the school's 140 students have for the most part transferred to other schools. A nine-member staff, including maintenance personnel, is now manning the academy office and officially closing the school at Fifth and College avenues.

The retired Army colonel said he does not know who will use the grounds in the fall, but officials of the Episcopal Diocese of California, which backed the school until last year and owns the grounds, said they hope to open a parochial school.

Chancellor John Gallaher the diocese's lawyer, said "the church would like to have a school on the grounds and is moving in that direction." Officials of the diocese are now meeting with "a group of interested people" who want an Episcopal school.

Such a development would be in keeping with the widely circulating rumor, last school year, that the academy could survive, retaining its ties with the diocese, if it would deemphasize the military aspect and adopt a regimen thought by some more in keeping with a church school.

There also were reports that a girls' school would have considered a merger if trappings were dropped. The academy board, however, preferred to stand or fall with the military tradition.

Gallaher said the San Rafael Academy was notified earlier in the year, that unless it was able to solve its financial problems, it would not be granted use of the grounds for next fall. However, according to Gallaher, the Diocese had to financially assist the Academy in completing its 1970-71 term.

Frank W. Hearne, president of the academy's board of trustees, has not yet conceded defeat, however. "No ball game is over until the final whistle is sounded," he said. "We are going to continue to pursue every available financial avenue open to us as long as possible," he said. But Hearne was pessimistic.

"My practical business sense tells me that only a miracle could save the academy right now." Hearne said he and the board have asked the diocese to make every effort to preserve the grounds as an educational institution "because people have come to depend on it as such."

Hearne explained that no private school can survive only on tuition. He linked the school's lack of donations with a general decrease in the popularity of the military.

"There is a segment of the population who feels that because of this country's involvement in Vietnam, anything that has 'military' in front of it is bad and they are not going to support it."

"The donating public is pretty much swinging with the times. There are any number of more popular causes and just so much money to be donated," Hearne said.

The military academy does not train boys to be soldiers, he said, but makes them "mentally tough" and instills discipline and spirit, Hearne said. "I can attest that it works because I have never known a finer group of young men than the students here," he added.

Two Fined For Drunken Driving

Two persons have been sentenced in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving.

Alma Gene Pender, 32, of 885 Chamberlain Court, Mill Valley, arrested June 29 in Sausalito, who was placed on probation for one year and fined $200.

Jackson To Eye Florida Primary

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said today he would take a six-day "look-see" in Florida starting Thursday to test his prospects in event he decides to seek the 1972 Democratic Presidential nomination.

"If I become a candidate I will enter the Florida primary without question or doubt," Jackson said in a statement. "It will be a pretty good indicator, a 'cross section' of the country."

Study Of Sewage Service Tonight

Members of the advisory committee for Improvement District A will meet with a steering committee consisting of members of the Bay Area Comprehensive Health Planning Council and the City-County Planning Council, at 8 p.m. today in the offices of the Marin Municipal Water District in Corte Madera.

John T. Schulte, project manager for the District A study on joint sewage service to the Southern Marin sanitary districts, said the steering committee had requested the meeting. He said he did not know what it would present to the advisory committee.

Today is Wednesday, July 14, the 195th day of 1971.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury and Jupiter. Those born on this day are under the sign of Cancer.

Swedish film director Ingmar Bergman was born July 14, 1918.

On this day in history:

In 1789 the French stormed the Bastille prison in Paris, a day now commemorated as a national holiday in France.

In 1798 Congress passed the Sedition Act, making it a crime to publish any "false, scandalous and malicious" writings against the government, Congress or the president.

In 1965 U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Adlai Stevenson died of a heart attack in London.

In 1966 eight nurses were found murdered on the South Side of Chicago. Drifter Richard Speck later was convicted of the crimes and sentenced to death. On June 28, 1971, the Supreme Court overruled the death sentence.

A thought for today: Samuel Butlersaid, "If people would dare speak to one another unreservedly, there would be a good deal less sorrow in the world a hundred years hence."

The German automobile industry was able to export 785,000 cars during the first four months of 1971, according to Federal statistics. This represents an 11 per cent increase compared to the same time last year.

Cautious Rubber Bridge Expert Often Misses Possible Overtrick

The national bridge tournament scheduled to begin at the Palmer House in Chicago this Friday reminds us that there are important differences between rubber bridge and tournament bridge. In a pair contest scored at match points, the expert goes after every possible trick, often neglecting plays that would assure the contract. The rubber bridge expert goes out of his way to safeguard the contract, often neglecting plays that would bring in an overtrick.

LEADS KING

West leads the king of hearts, and dummy wins with the ace. The next play depends on whether our expert declarer is playing rubber or tournament bridge.

In a tournament, declarer should lead the queen of spades and then the low spade to the king. He plans to ruff a club in dummy, get back to his hand by ruffing a heart and then draw one more round of trumps with the ace.

ALL 13 TRICKS

If the trumps have broken normally, he can then run the diamonds, winning all 13 tricks.

When the trumps break badly, South is in terrible trouble. He wins the second spade with the king, discovering the bad news, ruffs a club in dummy, gets back to his hand with the king of diamonds and draws a third round of trumps with the ace. Then he begins to run the diamonds.

CUTS COMMUNICATIONS

East ruffs the third diamond to cut communications and leads a heart, forcing South to ruff. South gives up a club and is forced to use up his last trump on another heart. West still has the ace of clubs and a good heart, and South is down three.

At rubber bridge declarer would make his contract by leading a low trump from dummy at the second trick. East plays the seven, and South plays low — giving up the trick without a struggle.

RETURNS HEART

East returns a heart (as good a return as any), and South ruffs. He ruffs a club in dummy, cashes the queen of spades, gets back with the king of diamonds, and draws trumps with the ace and king. Then he can safely run the diamonds. The cautious rubber bridge expert gladly gives up his play for 13 tricks to make sure of his contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one no-trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes. You hold:
♠ - J 9 8 7
♥ - 7 2
♦ - 8
♣ - J 10 9 5 3 2.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs, the Stayman Convention, asking partner to show a major suit of four or more cards.

If he bids two spades, you will pass! If he bids anything else, you will bid three clubs, showing a "club bust." You expect your partner to pass three clubs since you have shown only length in clubs but no strength.

Dock Permit Sought But Protests Erupt

A Greenbrae woman who applied to the Army Corps of Engineers for a permit for an existing dock on Corte Madera Creek, has drawn official protests from the county, state, and a private club.

According to Eugene Huggins, spokesman for the corps, Dorothy F. Sexton of 2170 Redwood Highway, Greenbrae, applied for the permit for the dock in June.

Charles E. Murphy, flood control engineer for Marin County, protested for the Corte Madera Creek Flood Control District and James F. Trout, manager of the State Lands Division, protested for the state, Huggins said.

Both contend that portions of the floating dock are on their property.

Before the corps of engineers will issue a permit, it must be approved by both the county and state, he said.

Murphy said that the flood control district cleaned out all docks when it worked on the creek in 1967 and that the floating dock appeared the next year.

He said that he is working with Miss Sexton and owner George A. Bertram to pull the pilings and dock back into conformity with county ordinances. He said that he thinks that it will be done so that the county can approve the application and send it on to the state.

Robert Cumming, president of Marin Rowing Association, protested that this dock might start a series of such docks and encroach on boating. The club sponsors the Redwood High School rowing team, Huggins said.

Regional Panel Asks Bids For Citizens Task Force

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — The regional planning committee of the Association of Bay Area Governments is soliciting nominations from community organizations for citizens to serve on a Regional Citizens Task Force.

Marin County Supervisor John F. McInnis, chairman of the planning committee, explained the task force will have a short-term job of designating a permanent Regional Citizens Forum and to recommend other ways to encourage citizen participation in ABAG.

The task force must be broadly representative of all Bay Area citizens, he said, and should include representatives from community organizations with regional concerns in planning, open space, housing, recreation, environmental quality and transportation.

Nominations for the task force may be recommended to ABAG's executive committee, which will make the appointments to the task force. Nominations are due at ABAG headquarters in the Hotel Claremont by July 28.

Colombo Treated For Infections

NEW YORK (UPI)—Joseph Colombo has contracted systemic infections which have his doctors more concerned than the three bullet wounds that have kept him in a coma since June 28.

Colombo, the reputed Brooklyn Mafia boss, was receiving antibiotics to combat the infections, doctors said Tuesday. He remained in critical condition at Roosevelt Hospital.

Colombo, 48, was shot at an Italian-American unity day rally by Jerome Johnson, 24, a black man who was killed at the scene by a still unknown gunman.

Vic Damone Files For Bankruptcy

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Vic Damone, claiming he was more than $700,000 in debt mostly because of back taxes, filed for bankruptcy Tuesday in federal court.

Damone, 43, whose real name is Vito Farinola, listed debts at $784,137 and assets at $35,371. The singer said he owed $277,797 in back federal taxes, $18,833 in state taxes and $2,211 in city and county taxes.

Pottery Warning; No Recall

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Food and Drug Administration (FD) has advised consumers against storing acidic food and beverages in ceramic dinnerware but has decided against a massive recall of pottery products.

The FDA announced Tuesday it had discovered that foods and beverages sometimes absorb poisonous lead and cadmium from decorative decals on dinnerware.

"Since there is no ready means to identify whether decaled dinnerware already in use contains excessive levels of these metals, the consumer should not store acidic foods or beverages in such containers for prolonged periods of time, such as overnight," the FDA said in a statement.

"Daily use of the dinnerware for food service will not pose any hazard," it added.

The FDA cited as examples of acidic items fruit juice, soft drinks, wines, cider, vinegar, sauerkraut, and tomatoes.

Thomas W. Brown, compliance director for the FDA Bureau of Foods, said the decal hazard was discovered during FDA checks for lead and cadmium in pottery glaze.

Brown said the decal hazard, although previously unknown, probably has existed for a decade. The FDA said millions of pieces of dinnerware were involved, from cheap pottery to expensive china.

Brown said the FDA considered a massive recall of all ceramic dinnerware, but decided the hazard was too slight and the recall problems too large for such a move.

With the exception of hand painted items, most dinnerware decorations are by decal, the FDA said. Common decals include stripes around the rim and pictures of fruit or flowers, sometimes embossed.

Driver Slain In Belfast Ambush

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Two gunmen ambushed an army landrover patrol in a Roman Catholic area today, killing the driver, an army spokesman said. The assailants escaped.

The victim was the second soldier to die in Belfast in little over 24 hours and the 10th in the province this year.

Only a few hours earlier, the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) issued a statement in Dublin claiming credit for Monday's killing of soldier David Walker, 30, and warning that others would follow.

Oil Production

BRUSSELS (UPI)—Crude oil production in the European Common Market fell from 13.8 million tons in 1969 to 13.1 tons in 1970. Imports of crude oil by the six Market nations increased from 359,000,000 tons to 403,600,000 tons in the same period.
